A DREAM.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY ZERO.

As I dozed in my chair, methought that my paper
Before me cut up an unusual caper;
Methought it addressed me, in musical tongue,
And these were the words to my ear that it sung:

'Think not I was always the thing you see now,
With expressionless face and a colorless brow,
Fit only for fools to besprinkle my cheek,
With inkspots—the proof of their intellect weak.

"A ribbon of silk, I once bound the fair tresses
Of a beautiful maid, felt her warmest caresses,
Heard sweet tales of love, 'mid a lover's fond kisses,
And revelled in rarest, most wonderful blisses."

Here, my Desk, in its pride, interrupted, and said:
"Oh, dear Mistress Paper, quite turned is your head!
Your history is nothing to mine, for you see,
The luxuriant tropics gave birth unto me.

"My blood is the sunshine of loveliest skies,
A thousand rare odors my wonderful dyes.
Afar in the past I a canopy made,
Where many fond lovers oft sat 'neath my shade.

"Thrilled my heart, in those days of the far distant past,
With scenes of love's romance, too witching to last."
Then up spoke the Lamp, with: "What nonsense I hear!
That I am the hero it soon shall appear.

"Afar in the cold Northern seas was I born,
Where for months ye may look all in vain for the dawn.
Where icebergs eternal loom up in their might,
And the bright borealis streams thro' the long night."

Just here, a few Coals from the grate tumbled down,
And said, with their cheeks growing red with a frown:
"Now that Lamp, Desk and Paper have all had their say,
We can tell a more wonderful story than they.

"For thousands and thousands of ages ago,
In trees most gigantic did we flourishing grow.
But a child was the earth when we rose in the air,
And wondrous was all that surrounded us there!"

* * * * * * *

Just here I awoke from my dream, and I thought
That nothing around us so common is wrought
But still a rare romance and mystery deep,
With patience, may man from its history reap.

DISCOMFITING A DEVIL-FISH.

THE YANKEE SKIPPER'S YARN.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

Did I ever see a devil-fish? Wal, I should remark, sir; an' why I make that remark is becos I've not on'y seen the critters, but onct had some dis'greable an' dang'rous dealin's with one o' the tribe, which, if he wern't the devil-fish Goliar of Gath, wer his next biggest brother, I feel sartin.

All this, as the weather beaten old Yankee skipper stirred his "Med" and molasses, getting outside of which he settled himself for another remarkable "yarn" of the sea:

Them critters has, I s'pose ye know, sev'ral names which has be'n given 'em, such as cuttle fish, octupus, squid—that bein' the name that sailor men call 'em by—an' fin'ly, devil-fish, a name which wer given 'em by that Frenchman, Victor Huger, I think, an' which fitted the critters like a key does a lock, fur they're uglier'n Satan an' jest as full o' cussedness—I dunno but fuller, sir, for Satan mout let up a trifle on a feller, but a squid—a devil-fish—never! Onct a squid—devil-fish—runs 'longside o' ye an' throws his graplin' irons, so to speak, ye're a gone smelt, onless a messmate stan's by to cut away the critter's tackle 'fore he kin cut his way into your innards 'ith his hawk like beak, hard's iron an' sharp's a razor! I tell ye, sir, ye don't want no dealin's with a devil-fish—most fittin' name!—at short range, 'cos the dealin' 'll all be done by the critter hisself, an' ye won't be in it all—wal, yes, ye'd be all in the critter's maw in short order, sure pop!

The devil-fish ar' one o' them critters that we can't see the use of in our short sightedness; but who knows he doesn't keep some other tuff cuss of the sea on his good behavior, who otherwise would tamper 'ith the food fish supply, say the cod crop, f'r instance? Nobody knows, in course; but the devil-fish, useful or useless, we shall have with us always, prob'ly, he bein' included in the survival of the fittest, by reason of his powers, which includes an ink bottle in his vest pocket, f'm which he ejects the ink, cloudin' up the water when a scrapper comes along that he don't care to put up his daddies 'ith, he then scattlin' away, leavin' the other feller in the dark, thus scuttlin' the shark an' other ras'lers o' the deep.

The fav'rit stampin' ground of the devil-fish is, I gess, wher' the water is warm the year round, tho' he prob'ly scuttles about more or less in temp'rit latitudes, in the Summer season, takin' good care not to git into freezin' waters. That he's be'n found as far North as 42, an' somewhat further, can't be denied, 'cos I've seen him there, an' well nigh to my sorrow, sir! tho' I gess that wer a 'ceptional case, specimens of his size not oft'n gittin' up as fur North or growin' ther', if they grow ther' at all, of smaller size.

I s'pose ye know the b'ild o' the critter—soft, gris'ly, 'thout form, but seldom void, I guess, he bein' a big feeder; green goggle eyes, of malignant expression, set into his jellylike head; mouth like a hawk's; that ink bag of his'n; six or eight legs, an' two tremenj'sly long arms, of insinuatin' reachin' power, an' perdigious strength of hold, arms an' legs bein' pervided with cup shaped suckers, which hold any food objeck they git onto fur keeps, unless cut off. That's 'bout the style o' the critter, sir, an' I tell ye, if ye ever come acrost one on 'em on the beach, sunnin' hisself, an' he puts out one o' them long arms or feelers o' his'n on a 'parently innercent explorin' expedition, don't stop to shake the hand that would shake the hand of Sullivan till the big feller wer done fur, but jest ye port your helm an' give the critter a wide sheer—he ain't no kempany fur you, sir. But now to my mutton, that squid—no, devil-fish, more fittin' name.

It wer a sufferin' day in August, in the year '58—not a blazin' hot day, but an overcast, close an' suffocatin' dog day, sticky, moist an' sweltrin', with the air so full o' moistur' that a leetle more would a-made it solid mist—a wuss 'n blazin' day by far. Such a day it wer when the Al, copper fastened, fast sailin' schooner Mary Jane—fast sailin' when ther wer wind enuff to sware by—wer on the home run f'm Boston to ol' Nantuck', with a good freight aboard, an' ev'rything lovely an' the goose hangin' high, barrin' the muggy weather an' the wind, which, f'm a fair to middlin' breeze, had be'n droppin' to one of zephyrlike complexion, an' threat'nin' to sneak outen the leetle end o' the horn, as it wer, leavin' us becammed off the gray sands o' Cape Malabar, a leetle "two fer" cape that juts out like the shank of a spur f'm the heel o' the Cape Cod boot—lookin' at the map, ye'll find that Cape Cod looks su'thin like a boot, with a dreffle long, slim foot, sir.

It wer jest six bells in the arternoon—as you landsmen would say, three o'clock—when I went below to look over the freight list an' other papers, leavin' my boy Sam at the helm—settin' on a camp stool, with his arm over the tiller an' his eyes harf closed, wer about the size on't, but quite ekul to the 'casion, fur the canvas were lazily skakin' and the reef p'ints patterin' out a sort o' funeral dirge for the dyin' wind; so, ye see, ther wern't no great call fur a helmsman, tho' it's well to keep an eye on the stick, even in a dead cam, when at sea, fur fear o' squalls that sometimes come a-rippin' outen a 'parently clear sky. I hadn't be'n below a great while when I felt, or fancied I felt, a sort of tremor of the ship, as tho' it had bumped agin suth'n', my boy Sam the next instant yellin' out: "Hi, below ther, Pop! Here's suth'n', I dunno what—a long, slender, dark, horrid lookin' thing—a wrigglin' in the air jest aft the fore chains, to starb'ud. Thunder'n' beeswax! but ther's anuther o' them things or critters, or whatsomever they may be. Tumble up, Pop, will ye?"

In course I couldn't let that appeal come in vain, but tumbled up's quick's I could to see them "long, slender an' horrid things" a-rearin' in the air on the weather beam, if ther' wer any weather to speak of.

"Gracious goos'b'ries, Pop! what is them?" 'sclaimed Sam, his eyes a-goggle an' his mouth agape. "Be they snaix or be they feelers of a bustin' big Jumbo lobster?"

"I think them ar'," says I, lookin' critically at me stop were this: The for'ard feeler had caught on to the fore shrouds, an' the other one wer weavin' 'round in search of anuther holt further aft, an' afore ye could think—almost as tho' the feeler wer a movin' intelligence—it caught on to the main shrouds, the Mary Jane listin' a leetle to starb'ud f'm the critter's weight, an' losin' the leetle headway she had; besides, her nose, owin' to the tide an' a current, wer swingin' shorewards towards the sands o' Malabar, on to which we should be set, as sure's preachin', onless we cast off the ugly customer afoul of us, or cast anchor.

Sam seen this, an' volunteered to git a hatchit an' chop off the critter's feelers wher' they hung agin the rail, but I cautioned him not to think of it, as one o' them same feelers, which appeared to know their biz, mout let go its hold on the shroud, gather him in fur keeps, an' yank him down into the briny deep, ther' to feed the maw of the terrible devil-fish! It ar' onnecessary to say that Sam relinkished the hatchit enterprise on the spot, seein' what the result mout be.

"We'll drop the anchor," says I—givin' the order an' tellin' the men for'ard to keep their eyes skinned—"an' git into the companionway an' watch the movements of the critter. He can't sink the Mary Jane an' he can't eat her; can't run away with her as the porpuses did, ram her sides in as the tartle mout a done, nor crush her like the sea sarpint could, an' not harf tried; so wher's the harm o' lettin' the critter do a leetle p'r'apsin'—p'r'aps I'll git one o' ye, an' p'r'aps I wont, as be mout think.

So, the anchor down an' the men alert, Sam an' I stowed ourselves, as mentioned, to watch developments an' be able to report on the doin's of a devil fish under what must a be'n pecoolyer sarkimstances, as I kensidered; an' we hadn't more'n got stationed when them feelers—remember, sir, them wer the critter's feet of tremenjus cup suckin' power—begun to work up'ards, one arter the other, which set it a-billin' agin, were a study of the disgustin'ly horrible, that one fond o' sech studies could a reveled in as long as the show lasted, an' fur some time arterwards, I reckon!

With two of his short arms or legs grippin' the rail, the critter hung ther', seemin'ly content with his position, an' looked over the s'roundin's; but whether or not he wer pleased with the prospeck couldn't be read in them baleful, jelly fish eyes o' his'n, which had on'y one expression, extreme cussedness! But ye could gess that the s'roundin's wer not objectionable an' disheart'nin' to him, f'm the fack that he continued to hang on as master o' the ship, which he sartinly wer—Ye couldn't say he wer "on deck," but all the same he wer boss on't!

"There's no gittin' any camphene into that cuss," all to onct says Sam, who had be'n gazin' wild'n' wide eyed at the goggle eyed horrer, "like we did into the tartle 'n' sea sarpint, so how'd buckshot do, right in the eyes, Pop?"

Conservative, os aliers, I advised caution, thinkin' that the critter, in his agony, mout discharge his ink blader 'n board, the contents o' which mout asfixiate the hull on us—don't monkey with things ye know naught of, is my motto, sir.

While I wer talkin with Sam, the starb'ud feeler of the green eyed horror left the fore shrounds on an explorin' expedition, an', in its weavin' way, examined the foremast, crept over the foresail, toyed with the halliards, came down the forestay, fondled the capstan an' suddenly disappeared—that is, as much of it as could get into the fo'c's'l—the men hadn't tho't of the hatch, ye see. Suddenly a cry of horror burst outen the fo'c's'l, an' then another of pain an' horror mixed.

"'It's Choc'lit!" say Sam; "it's Choc'lit—the critter's got him!" I mout say here that the cry o' pain f'm Choc'lit—he wer my darkey cook, ye know—wer caused by his bein' pulled by the legs one way by the feeler o' the devil-fish, an' the other way by Bill and Joe, my two men, such bein' the case, sir. We could see the strain an' tension of that horrid feeler in its effort to pull three men outen the fo'c's'l—case o' bitin off more'n ye could chaw, ye see—an' the darkey told me later that he tho't his leg would be pulled outen the socket.

Wal, when Sam had spoke, he dropped into the cabin, to come tearin' up a minit later with his double barrel shot gun, with which he rushed for'ard 'long the port gangway, regardless o' that goggle-eyed gorgon on the starb'ud rail, or his larb'ud feelers clingin' to the main shrouds yet. Reachin' the vital p'int, Sam stood not on the order, but shot that snake like feeler into fiddle strings or devil-fish hash, rushin' back then to reload, as I well knew. Wal, ye'd oughter seen that "puller in' of the devil-fish jerk itself outen the fo'c's'l an' thrash round, mangled as it wer! Shot thro' and thro', 'bout twelve foot f'm the end, that part hangin' by shreds, it thrashed round terrible, a livin' flail, crazed with pain an' rage! It wer a sight, I tell ye, but ther' wern't no damage done an' no blood spilt—no asfixiatin' fluid nuther—the critter sheddin' on'y a watery licker f'm his damaged tentacle, which, gittin' rid of its useless extremity, agin sought an' clung to the fore shrouds.

Not wishin' to be way behind Sam in ventur'someness, I stepped out on deck an' started 'long the port gangway fur the fo'c's'l to see how the cook had fared, actooally not thinkin' o' that puller-in on the starb'ud main shrouds, an' so not hurryin'. Just as I opened out by the mainmast, I felt a grip on my right leg, an' in a jiff were flat on my back an' bein' hauled rapidly to starb'ud. I well knew the cause of my involuntary journey an', luckily, caught the main halliard cleet an' hung on with both hands for dear life, yellin' fur Sam an' his shotgun loud's I could yell, my leg feelin' 's tho' it would be yanked outen the socket 'fore Sam 'rived on the scene. But Sam were on deck sooner'n it seemed, an' another devil-fish puller-in wer shot into hash, the two charges cuttin' it clean in two, the amputated end remainin' with me an' the other flyin' back over the vessel's side, singin' the song o' the whip-lash, but a perdigious one sent out f'm a like stock on a bizness boom intent by the mighty arm of a giant!—an' it sounded sweet to me, I tell ye!

I wer on my feet in a jiff, an' rid myself o' that slimy thing 'thout much fuss, the suckers losin' their drawin' power arter amputation had set in fur keeps, usin' a belayin' pin to do it with, however, havin' heerd that the touch of a devil-fish wer pizen. As for my boy Sam, he didn't trouble hisself bout me, jest after he performed his heroic surgical operation, but, havin' saved his dad's life, as well as the darkey cook's, plunged below to reload a second time, havin' a sartin end in view, which ye mout guess. Alas! he wer doomed to disapp'intment. I wer sorry fer the lad, fur he was entitled to a third shot an' the 'complishment of the end in view. But when he come up a minit later, with the double barrell heavily charged, an' moved for'ard, intendin' to git in front o' the critter, but not too close, not knowin' what them mangled remains o' feelers mout be capable of, the devil-fish fixed upon him his baleful yaller green eyes, full o' the concentrated extract o' double distilled cancerous malevolence an' billious hate, winked a wink o' diabolical rancor, give a forty hoss power snap of his vicious beak, showin' that he wer madder than a herd o' wet hens, an' then tumbled kersplash into the water, a sadder an' a wiser devil-fish than when he boarded the Mary Jane, Sam firin' jest as he disappeared, filling the bulwarks full o' buckshot! That, sir wer my first and last 'sperience with a devil-fish o' the live animile v'riety—I've spun ye the yarn o' the veg'table devil-fish, ye remember, wher' the terr'ble sea plant liked to capsized the Shootin' Star in the South Sea.

Yes, thanks. Ol' Med'n' m'lasses in mine. Wal, here's to the winds an' the seas that ye wish, but no runnin' afoul o' the wild devil-fish.

MAYNE BRAYCE.

A BOILING JACK POT.

Now, to give you a straight tip, last Saturday night I sat in one of those quiet little games that one occasionally hears of. Seven of the most sober pirates that you ever saw had combined against the winner, fresh from Virginia. Everything was lovely until a jackpot for $1 each was formed—wha was termed a consolation pot. Your humble servant was the dealer, and don't forget this particular point. When my turn came to play I was fool enough, with only the tray, four and five of diamonds to put into this now boiling pot just seven cold dollars, when the opener on my left kindly boosted it one more for my benefit, and then it cost me $3 more just because it was running my way and I raised it—just once, as Mr. K. would say. Well, sir, over $50 in that little pot, and all stayed. No. 1 drew two cards, No. 2 stood pat, No. 3 drew one, No. 4 drew two, No. 5 stood pat, No. 6 drew one. I had a pair of sevens, and to carry out the bluff I was forced to draw two cards to my three diamonds. The betting was lively, and after the call was made No. 1 held four jacks, No. 2 king high flush, No. 3 straight, No. 4 three aces and pair threes, No. 5 queen high flush, No. 6 straight, and I pulled in the deuce and six of diamonds—seven complete hands. If this record can be beaten I should like to hear of it.—The Richmond Dispatch.

MATTIE ROONEY.

The subject of our portrait this week is little Mattie Rooney, eldest daughter of Pat Rooney. She is petite, pretty and only ten years old, but, although so young, is fast becoming a clever soubrette. She had attended a fashionable New York school up to a few months ago, when she left to take dancing lessons from Eddie Collyer. She plays the piano very skilfully, and this is said to be only one of her many accomplishments. She has, besides, already composed several pretty airs. Miss Rooney has certainly a bright future before her. She is now playing in the support of her father, on tour.

GREAT is the difference between spirit and matter. You can yet your physical weight by dropping a nickel in the slot: but your political lightness is only ascertained after spending thousands in an unsuccessful run for office.

BOSTON'S LATEST ADVICES.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The revival of "Little Em'ly" at the Museum last night was a success of the most pronounced nature. The house was filled in every portion, and the audience was enthusiastic. The play was finely staged. Miriam O'Leary, in the title role, met every requirement, and Mr. Barron's Peggotty, J. B. Mason's Ham, Mr. Wilson's Heep and G. F. Boniface's Micawber were above criticism. Annie Clarke and Fanny Addison, on their first appearance this season, were accorded a royal welcome, and Emma Sheridan, Evelyn Campbell and Kate Ryan came in for a share of the applause..... "Shenandoah" was presented at the Globe to a magnificent audience. Standing room was scarce long before the curtain rose, and the play was received with unbounded enthusiasm. Its scenic effects called forth warm applause. It is evidently destined to have a most successful run at the Globe.....Edward Harrigan's "Squatter Sovereignty" drew a fine Fremont's crowd of members that filled the house to the doors.... The first production in this city of "The Stepdaughter," with Annie Ward Tiffany as the star, occurred last night at the Grand Opera, and met with an instantaneous success. Miss Tiffany, as Peggy Logan, added another leaf to the wreath she has won in Irish comedy.....Maggie Mitchell, at the Park, was greeted by a huge house.....At the Hollis, Jas. O'Neill was seen at his best in "The Dead Heart." Adeline Stanhope, who succeeds Alberta Gallatin as leading lady, was the recipient of warm applause for her finished impersonation of Catherine Duval..... The fourth week of "The Soudan," at the Boston, opened like its predecessors, to an audience that taxed the utmost sight seeing capabilities of the immense house. .....Harry Kernell's Vaudevilles filled the Howard..... "The Golden Giant" was finely presented at Lothrop's Grand Museum, and witnessed by large audiences..... The Gaiety-Bijou had splendid houses all day, and the other dime shows fared equally well.

CHICAGO LIVELY WITH NOVELTIES.

Prosperous Opening of the Most Brilliant Week of the Season So Far.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The present week is, beyond a doubt, the most brilliant of the season thus far. Nine productions new to Chicago were given Sunday night and last night.....At the Columbia, the Hanlon Volter and Martinetti Co opened Sunday night to an audience that packed the theatre. Business for the week promises to be immense. A return engagement will be played in January.... Rosina Vokes began a two weeks' engagement at Hooley's last night. The house was crowded..... Roland Reed opened at the Grand Sunday night to "Standing Room Only." Lawrence Barrett began his preliminary season at the Chicago Opera House last night to an overflowing house—one of the largest he ever had in this city. "Hamlet" was the play.....At the Haymarket, Nellie McHenry presented "Chain Lightning." It was not a success, being very inconsistent and unworthy the ability of this star..... Eva Mountfort made her debut in Chicago at the Windsor in "Eugenie Le Tour," and made a favorable impression.....The same may be said of "The Limited Mail" at the People's. Both houses were crowded.... "Master and Man," at the Alhambra, with Dominick Murray and Ralph Delmore in the leads, turned away hundreds last night..... "Ole Olson," at the Standard, had two phenomenal Sunday audiences—standing room only at the matinee and crowds turned away at night.... Le Norde's Gaities opened at the Madison Street Saturday night, and gave an alleged burlesque on "The Clemenceau Case." The performance was so weak that the audience threatened to treat the performers to a dose of over ripe eggs. It was not salacious, and the artist's model was heavily draped; but the show was so poor that the management wisely concluded to close the engagement at once.

AT OTHER POINTS.

Openings at Philadelphia, New Orleans, Cincinnati and Other Large Cities.

[Special Dispatches to The New York Clipper.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The several attractive novelties among the openings last night counteracted the effects of the disagreeable weather. "Castles in the Air" found a greeting from a large and approving audience at the Chestnut Street Opera House..... "Aunt Jack," by the Madison Square Co., filled the Broad, and found favor.....The Amberg Opera Co. opened to a large house at the Park.... McKee Rankin's "Canuck" was applauded by a fine house at the Walnut..... "The Bottom of the Sea" had a comfortable audience at the Arch..... Lewis Morrison returned to the Grand to a large audience..... "Held by the Enemy" drew numbers to the People's..... C. T. Ellis received favorable attention from a great house at the National..... M. A. Scanlan drew crowds at Forepaugh's..... A house show packed the Central..... The Black Thorn" opened auspiciously at the Continental..... "True Irish Hearts" had a good house at the Kensington..... The return of the Gaiety Opera Co. jammed the Bijou to suffocation, and crowds were turned away..... Lester & Allen's Co. fared well at the Lyceum..... The South, with Jack's Creole Burlesque Co., was crowded..... "A Texas Steer" continued at the Chestnut to large attendance..... Carncross' had crowds, as did the Museum.

ST LOUIS, Oct. 7.—The Henry Burlesque Co. turned people away from the Standard Sunday night, before the curtain rose. McIntyre and Heath made a big hit in their military act..... "Kajanka" drew a full house to the Grand..... "The Old Homestead" commenced its second week to a full house..... "Siberia" crowded Havlin's to the walls..... "A Pair of Jacks" turned people away from Pope's..... Big crowds are in the city, and all places of amusement were crowded last night..... The members of the "Siberia" and "Kajanka" Cos. had a narrow escape from a serious accident yesterday. As the special train on which they were coming entered the freight yard on the other side of the river, it ran into a freight train standing on the track. The engineer and fireman of the theatrical special jumped, and escaped with only a few bruises. No engine was attached, or the results might have been more serious. As it was, the engine on the special was smashed, the freight cars were demolished and two members of the "Siberia" Co. were hurt, but not seriously. Carrie Radcliffe was bruised and her back washurt, and Master Jack Ferris had his cheek cut. The cars containing the scenery of the two companies were broken up, and the scenery was scattered around.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—Society has its innings in the amusement world this week. "The Charity Ball," at the Grand, and the Emma Juch Opera Co., at Heuck's, drew largely from fashion's circle. "Carmen" was the opening bill at the latter. The inaugural houses were good. On Sunday night Heuck's was actually jammed, and Gus Williams and John T. Kelly were sorry "U and I" could not make an all week stay of it..... "The Great Metropolis" turned people away at Havlin's..... "Vesper Bells" filled Harris' to completion, and the box office had to be closed..... The People's also did a great business with the Parisian Novelty Co.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—Emma Abbott opened at the Bijou to a full house..... Marks' Internationals had a crowded house at the Grand..... "Held by the Enemy" packed Harris'..... Williams & Orr's Meteors filled Williams' Academy..... Room was at a premium at Harry Davis' Fifth Avenue, and the same can be said of the World's Museum.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 7.—E. F. Mayo, in "The Silver Age," at the Academy, had two topheavy houses Sunday. The attendance last night was fair..... "The Fakir" played to standing room at both Sunday performances at the Bijou. The house was crowded last night..... Herrmann's Trans-Atlantiques caught two fair sized audiences Sunday, at the Davidson. Strauss' Orchestra captured the large audience last night. At the People's, Rose Hill's Co. turned them away..... "A Noble Outcast," at the Standard, had a fair house 4, but played to fine business 5.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—The very large audience that greeted "Jim the Penman" at the Grand was an amiable one, yet much dissatisfaction was exhibited at the cast. Charles Riegel, William Sheldon and Louise Rial received all the applause..... "Lights and Shadows" opened the season at the Academy of Music with a well attended performance..... "A Soap Bubble" drew a fair audience to the St. Charles, while the Avenue had its usual fine opening, with "Tom Sawyer" as the attraction.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 7.—Macauley's opened with "U and I" to a big house..... Harris' displayed "S. R. O." for "The Hearts of New York"..... The Buckingham was jammed to the doors. Victor's Vaudeville Co. holding forth..... The new Central and the Grand Central opened to good houses.....Forepaugh's Circus filled the tent twice yesterday.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 7.—Good houses faced a hard rain to greet the Sunday opening of the Ninth Street. "McCarthy's Mishaps" filled the house completely..... Prescott and MacLean, at the Midland, opened to a fine house..... R. B. Mantell began his week at the Coates to a fair business..... The Barnum-Bailey Circus attracted two vast audiences.

MARYLAND.

Baltimore.—A fine list of attractions filled all the theatres Oct. 6, the counter attraction of a big torchlight parade having no apparent effect upon the attendance.

HARRIS' ACADEMY.—Cleveland's Consolidated Minstrels opened to a crowded house 6. The Fay Templeton Co did a large business week ending 4. "Paul Kauvar" 13.

FORD'S OPERA HOUSE.—Francis Wilson made his appearance in "The Merry Monarch" 6, filling the house with a representative audience, and making a great hit. Market International Vaudevilles closed a light week 4. Primrose & West's Minstrels 13-18.

HOLLIDAY STREET THEATRE.—Corinne commenced an engagement of one week 6 in "Carmen," before a splendid house. "Herminie" did only fairly week ending 4. "Wife for Wife" 13.

KENTUCKY.

Louisville.—At Macaulay's Theatre, "The County Fair" opened a week's engagement Sept. 29, to a crowded house, and drew big audiences the balance of the week. Oct. 6, 7, 8, "U and I;" 9, 10, 11, "Mr. Barnes of New York;" week of 13, "The Great Metropolis."

HARRIS' THEATRE.—'Siberia" was the attraction last week, turning people away every night. Week of 6, "Heart of New York;" 13, Gray & Stephens' Co.

MASONIC TEMPLE.—Geo. Wilson's Minstrels drew big houses 3, 4. Coming: 9, 10, 11, Noss Family.

BUCKINGHAM THEATRE.—The Ideal Specialty Co. played to "S. R. O." all last week, making the banner week of the season. Week of 6, Victor's Vaudeville Co.; week of 13, Whallen & Martell's Co.

GRAND CENRAL.—Week of 6: Flynn and Gentry, Mabel La Duke, Thomas Lavard, Williams and Duval and Maud Storey. Business is good.

NEW CENTRAL.—Week of 6: The Smith Sisters, Ed. Carey, Dixey Hargrave, Gilmore and Morton, Ida Wilks and Myers and Thiess. Business is booming.

FOREPAUGH'S CIRCUS comes 6 for two performances.

Paducah.—Will E. Burton, Sept. 26, drew an average house. Amy Lee in "The Clipper," Oct. 1, gave a fine performance to a fair audience. "Mr. Barnes of New York" promises to have a big house 4, in spite of the advance in prices. Coming: 7, Beach & Bowers' Minstrels; 16 17, Marlande Clarke.....Pat Clancey, who has been training the Terrell Bros.' troupe of educated horses, resigned his position Sept. 29. The Terrell Show is in Winter quarters here, but will start out early next Spring by wagons, and take in the towns in the interior. Capt. T. J. Oatman, who has been here for some time trying to buy or lease the Terrell Bros.' House, left last night for Boston, Mass., where he has secured a troupe of equine actors.....Forepaugh's Circus is extensively billed for Oct 10.....The Will E. Burton Co. opened the new Opera House, Metropolis, Ill., Sept 25. The new house has a full set of scenery, and is fitted out in good style. It will seat about seven hundred people. Bauer Bros. have secured the management.....R. H. Holland, manager of the Hopkinsville, Ky., Opera House, is here.

DELAWARE.

Wilmington.—At Proctor & Soulier's Grand Opera House, Lester & Allen's Co. did fairly well Sept. 29, 30, Oct. 1. Chas. T. Ellis pleased large audiences 2, 3, 4. Booked: "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands" 7, "The Water Queen" 9, Josephine Cameron 10, 11, Creole Burlesque Co. 13, Louis Morrison 14, 15.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Geo. A. Baker's Opera Co. began a week's engagement 6, under favorable circumstances. N. S. Wood did a tremendous business Sept. 29, 30, Oct. 1, 2. Booked: "The Fugitive" 13, 14, 15, M. A. Scanlan 20, 21, 22.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS of the Street and Sewer Department passed resolutions at their meeting, early last week, to the effect that the display of billboards of theatre managers on Market Street (the principal business street here) on Sundays would no longer be allowed, and that in the future any billboards displayed on Sundays would be collected and put in the pound. There being some small boards displayed on last Sunday, the Department collected five wagon loads, which were taken to the pound. Wherever a board projected over the building line it was taken, but when it was back of the building line it was allowed to remain, as the department only has jurisdiction of the streets from building line to building line. The boards were principally 2x3ft., and to secure them the management of the Academy and Grand Opera House will be compelled to pay the costs of hauling. Manager Jermon and Jas. H. Shoemaker, of the Academy, have retained attorneys, and will make a test case of it.

MAINE.

Portland.—At the Portland Theatre, "Muggs' Landing" comes Oct. 6, 7, T. E. Murray in "A Silent Partner" 8, 9, "The Blue and the Gray" 10, 11. "Erma the Elf" played to fair business Sept. 29-Oct. 1. "Hands Across the Sea" drew large audiences 2-4.

CITY HALL.—The Stockbridge course opens with the Bostonians in "Robin Hood" 10 and "Il Trovatore" 11. "Shenandoah" played to fair houses Sept. 29, 30.

BIJOU THEATRE.—Under the management of Frank C. Chase, this house will open Oct. 6 with the Whippler Twins, Ed. H. Banker, Nick Hughes, Clare Furren, Geo. Scrobie Mlle. Etta, the Higgins Bros., Flora Scott and Jennie Pickert.

CLIPPER POST OFFICE.

☞ A STAMPED ENVELOPE, plainly addressed, must be inclosed for each and every letter, and the line of business followed by the party addressed should be given, in order to prevent mistakes.

NOTE.—Professionals and others should bear in mind that all letters, etc., in transit between the United States and Canadas must be prepaid, otherwise they are not forwarded.

THE NEW YORK STAGE.

Laura Keene's New Theatre (Continued).

Nov. 5 witnessed an elaborate production of "The Sea of Ice," and the cast was:

| | |
|---|---|
| Henri De Lascours | Chas. Wheatleigh |
| Louise De Lascours | Laura Keene |
| Carlos | Geo. Jordan |
| Sarabas | Jos. Jefferson |
| Medoc | C. Peters |
| Pierre | Brown |
| Paequin | Burke |
| Jano | F. Evans |
| Marie | Mary Bullock |
| Jose | Muneret |
| Horace | G. W. Stoddart |
| Georges | T. Duncan |
| Don Jose | Carlton Howard |
| Countess | Mary Wells |
| Mlle. Diana De Theringe | Charlotte Thompson |

Ice scenes were witnessed on the stage as early as 1818. There was produced at Birmingham, Eng., that year, a drama called "The North Pole, or the Arctic Expedition." The final scene was described on the bills as follows: "A ship of immense size, fully rigged, with a crew of forty persons, commanded by a naval officer, will effect her passage through floating islands of ice, which, on separating, will show an expanse of ocean covering the whole stage. She will sail down to the footlights with her bowsprit over the pit, producing as novel and powerful an effect as can be exhibited on the stage." Benj. Webster produced at the Adelphi Theatre, London, Eng., in October, 1853, a play entitled "Thirst of Gold." The dominating scene in this exhibited a sea captain, with wife, child and a faithful companion, perishing of cold and hunger among gaunt icebergs. Suddenly, without a note of warning, crack! crack! went the ice, and in rushed the waters, submerging all the characters save the child Mani, who floated away on an ice drift. The success, of this piece evoked another adaptation early in 1854, at the Marylebone, in which a Danish vessel was brought on the scene, simultaneous with the breaking up of the ice, to rescue the immersed. Although scenes of this nature are of comparatively recent date, ordinary nautical effects must be of very considerable antiquity. So far back as the year 1713, for instance, a piece was produced at Paris, called "Les Amours Deguises," in which a fully rigged ship sailed on the stage, with her decks covered with sailors and passengers. Then, again, the first "Pinafore" set was, if I mistake not, completely anticipated in a man of war scene in the fifth act of a piece called "Travelers', or Music's Fascination," brought out at the London Drury Lane early in January, 1806.

This drama ran until Dec. 21, when "The Corsican Brothers" was acted, with the following cast:

|---|---|
| The Twin Brothers | George Jordan |
| Chateau Renaud | C. Wheatleigh |
| Alfred Meynard | Geo. Stoddart |
| Le Baron De Montgiron | Duncan |
| Le Baron Giordano Martelli | Howard |
| Mme. Sevilia Del Franchi | Mary Wells |
| Servants | Sadler and Churchill |
| Emilie De Lesparre | Charlotte Thompson |
| Orlando | Wise |
| Boissec | C. Peters |
| Colonna | Burke |
| Marie | Mrs. Thompson |
| M. Beauchamp | Muneret |
| Coralie | Miss Lang |
| M. Verner | Dowton |
| Celestine | Miss Walters |
| Griffo | E. K. Burke |
| Estelle | Mrs. G. W. Stoddart |
| Antonio | Brown |

The farce "Take Care of Dowb" was acted, and Josephine Manners made her first appearance this season, as Mrs. Wallop. Henrietta Lang was the Fanny. 24, in addition to "The Corsican Brothers," the comic pantomime, "Harlequin Blue Beard, or the Good Fairy Triumphant over the Demon of Discord," was acted. Sallie Bishop was the Columbine; Henrietta Lang, Harlequin; Mons. Leon, Sprite; Ben Yates, Harlequin; W. Kennedy (his first appearance in this city in fifteen years), Pantaloon; C. Henry, Clown. Tom Taylor's original comedy, "An Unequal Match," was acted for the first time Jan. 4, 1858, cast as follows:

|---|---|
| Harry Arncliff | Geo. Jordan |
| Sir Sowerby Honeywood | Laura Keene |
| G. W. Stoddart | |
| Blinkensop | C. Peters |
| Heyduk | Burke |
| Miss Leech | Miss Everett |
| Lady Honeywood | Mrs. Thompson |
| Bessy Hebblethwaite | Miss Manners |
| Hester Grazebrook | Laura Keene |
| Dr. Botcherby | Jefferson |
| Grazebrook | Burnett |
| Chillingham | Frank Hodges |
| Tofts | Duncan |
| Oberkelner | Brown |
| Herr Dumpkoff | Wise |
| Mrs. Montressor | Mary Wells |

The comic drama, "The Muleteer of Toledo," was first acted here Jan. 15, and 25 Wilkie Collins' drama, "The Lighthouse." For the benefit of Laura Keene, 30, was acted, for the first time a play adapted expressly for this theatre by Cyril Turner, from Chas. Reade's novel, entitled "White Lies." Feb. 4, the burlesque of "The Lady of the Lions," Jefferson as Clod Meddlenot. "The Courier of Lyons" was acted 6, for the benefit of George Jordan. Joseph Jefferson's first benefit in New York took place 13, when he played Toby Twinkle in "All that Glitters is Not Gold;" Mr. Brown in the farce, "My Neighbor's Wife," and Diggory in "The Spectre Bridegroom." John Courtney's comedy, "Double Faced People," was first acted here 26; "Mind Your Own Business" was acted for the first time, Mrs. H. B. Phillips as Mrs. Dricksey. H. B. Phillips was assistant stage director from Feb. 23. For Stage Manager J. G. Burnett's benefit, 27, "Mind Your Own Business" and an original piece de circonstance by Wm. P. Hinds, entitled "A Steamboat Disaster." Polly Marshall made her first appearance at this house March 1, as Polly Crisp in the farce, "Unprotected Female," and as Captain Charlotte in the two act comedy of that name. 2, "The Heir at Law" was acted, when Virginia C. Howard made her debut here as Caroline Dormer. "Green Bushes" was acted 3, and H. F. Daly first appeared here as Connor O'Kennedy. Harry A. Perry was added to the company 13, and opened as Alfred Evelyn in "Money." 15, "Flowers of the Forest" was acted for the first time here. 22, "Jonathan Bradford" was done for the first time here. H. F. Daly played Jonathan Bradford, Harry Perry, Dan Macraisy, and Jos. Jefferson, Caleb Scrimmidge.

"The Elves or the Statue Bride" was acted for the first time this season 27; "Flowers of the Forest" was revived April 7 with Levick as Alfred, Cline as Hugh Lavrock, Harry Perry as Lemuel. "Plot and Passion" was revived 12. The theatre was closed Wednesday evening, April 21, for the purpose of having a dress rehearsal of "Blanche of Brandywine," which had its first representation here 22. The scenery was painted by Minard Lewis (his first effort in this city). The cast of the drama was:

|---|---|
| General Washington (first appearance here) | Edwin Varrey |
| General Green (first appearance here) | McDouall |
| Sampson (first appearance here) | Denham |
| Gilbert Gates (first appearance in this city) | Frank Bangs |
| Blanche of Brandywine | Laura Keene |
| Randulph | H. F. Daly |
| Clerewood | Arthur Alleyne |
| John Walford | C. Wheatleigh |
| Rose Frazier | Miss Alleyne |
| Col. Frazier | J. Burnett |
| Marie | Miss Warde |
| Sally | Miss Walters |
| Seth Hope | Jos. Jefferson |
| Gen. Howe | Mr. Martin |
| Krout | C. Peters |
| Geo. Percy | Milnes Levick |

On this occasion a new drop curtain was shown, painted by Delamane, and represented a fac simile of Leutze's picture of "Washington Crossing the Delaware." "Blanche of Brandywine" was played for the last time May 12; also "An Unequal Match," for the benefit of Joseph Jefferson. E. A. Sothern made his first appearance here on this occasion, acting Harry Arncliffe in "An Unequal Match." Geo. W. Stoddart died July 9, 1888, at the residence of his son-in-law, Neil Burgess, at Atlantic Highlands, N. J. He came from a family of actors, his father being a well known Scotchman and actor, and his mother and four brothers (including J. H. Stoddart) being all professionals. He came to this country in 1853, and made his American debut in Boston at the National Theatre. His best work was done twenty-five years ago, as a leading comedian with the elder Booth, Edwin Forrest, Macready, Charlotte Cushman and Chas. Kean. His last appearance on the stage was as the Elder in "The Widow Bedott." His daughter married Neil Burgess, and is now playing in "The County Fair" with Mr. Burgess under the name of May Taylor.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers made her first appearance in New York May 17, 1858, in "The Lady of Lyons." In the company were Sam Hemple, F. B. Conway, Geo. Boniface, L. R. Shewell, Fred Dubois, W. B. Chapman, W. Davidge Sr., Anna Cruise, Sara Stevens, Mrs. Silsbee and Cornelia Jefferson. "Camille" was acted 18. William Davidge made his first appearance at this house as John Small, in "The Two Buzzards." 20, "The Jealous Wife;" 21, "Fazio, the Italian Wife;" 22, "The Willow Copse;" 23, 24, "Leap Year;" 25, 26, "The Hunchback;" 27, 28, "The King's Rival;" 29, "Love and Loyalty," when Mrs. Bowers closed. J. H. Hackett commenced May 31, as Sir John Falstaff, in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," which was repeated June 1, 2. C. Walcot acted Sir Hugh, and Mrs. Walcot as Mrs. Page. 3, Hackett acted Mons. Mallet and O'Callaghan. Mrs. Bowers took a benefit 5, and acted Margaret Elmore, in "Love's Sacrifice." Mrs. F. B. Conway acted Hermione; E. A. Sothern was also in the cast. Matilda Herron's new play, "Mathilde," was acted June 7, for the first time in this city. Very unexpectedly the theatre closed June 10. E. A. Sothern came before the curtain, and said:

Ladies and gentlemen—I am under the painful necessity of announcing to you that there will be no performance this evening. (A voice—"Because of the smallness of the audience, I suppose?") No, sir, Miss Heron, and the rest of the company are dressed for their parts, but I have this moment been notified by two parties to pay the rent, both of whom claim it, and if I pay it to one party I am threatened with a prosecution by the other. Under these circumstances, therefore, I think it better to close the establishment, and the audience will receive their money at the box office.

The speaker was greeted with a few hisses, but otherwise the announcement was good humoredly received. It was rumored that a fracas took place in the greenroom between the respective allies of Laura Keene, Matilda Heron and Mrs. D. P. Bowers, and that during the melee Mr. Sothern rushed forward and made the above announcement to prevent an expose. The next regular season opened Aug. 25, 1858, with "The Willow Copse," cast as follows:

|---|---|
| Sir Richard | E. A. Sothern |
| Col. Vanguard | J. G. Burnett |
| Luke Fielding | C. Couldock |
| Dick Hulks | E. Varrey |
| Arthur Apsley | Marden |
| Staggers | C. Peters |
| Augustus | Jos. Jefferson |
| Joseph | B. Brown |
| Bubblemere | H. Wharton |
| Lynk | McDouall |
| Fungus | Mr. Clinton |
| Lady Apsley | Mary Wells |
| George | Evans |
| Rose Fielding | Laura Keene |
| Lucy | Sara Stevens |
| Georgiana | Miss Couldock |
| Meg | Mrs. Sothern |
| Miss Apsley | Mrs. Marden |

There were two important additions to the company this season. Charles W. Couldock, who had been in America for nine years, and had already made his great hit as Luke Fielding (when Mme. Celeste presented "The Willow Copse" at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia) was one of them, and William R. Blake, an actor of old men who has scarcely been equaled in our time, was the other. After the drama, the premiere danseuse, Louise Lamoureux, and George Smith did a dance. Sept. 2 was presented for the first time here Plunkett's drama, "The Advocate," after which was acted for the first time, and in honor of the telegraph celebration, a new fairy extravaganza, called "Love and Lightning, or the Telegraph Cable." In the cast were Kate and Maria Duckworth. The old English comedies were put forward this season in fine style. The first was "The Rivals," Sept. 6, which introduced here Mr. and Mrs. William R. Blake for the first time. The cast was as follows:

|---|---|
| Sir Anthony | W. R. Blake |
| Lucy | Mrs. Sothern |
| Falkland | Frank Bangs |
| Capt. Absolute | E. A. Sothern |
| David | Chas. Peters |
| Sir Lucius | J. G. Burnett |
| Fag | Milnes Levick |
| Bob Acres | Jos. Jefferson |
| Mrs. Malaprop | Mrs. W. R. Blake |
| Boot Boy | Master Bullock |
| Lydia Languish | Laura Keene |
| Coachman | McDouall |
| Julia | Sara Stevens |

On 7 "Louis XI" was acted with Mr. Couldock in the title role, Laura Keene as the Dauphin. "The School for Scandal" had a phenomenal cast 13:

|---|---|
| Sir Peter Teazle | William Marden |
| Wm. Rufus Blake | |
| Sir Oliver Surface | Edwin Varrey |
| J. G. Burnett | Milnes Levick |
| Joseph Surface | Mary Wells |
| C. W. Couldock | Laura Keene |
| Charles Surface | E. A. Sothern |
| Crabtree | Joseph Jefferson |
| Sir Benjamin Backbite | Charles Peters |
| Careless | Frank Bangs |
| Rowley | William Marden |
| Moses | Edwin Varrey |
| Snake | McDouall |
| Trip | Milnes Levick |
| Sir Harry | Wharton |
| Lady Teazle | Laura Keene |
| Lady Sneerwell | Mary Wells |
| Mrs. Candour | Mrs. Wm. R. Blake |
| Maria | Sara Stevens |

It will be seen that this magnificent comedy was revived, with the smaller parts filled by excellent artists, while the principal characters were sustained by eight acknowledged stars. This was followed Sept. 20 by "Old Heads and Young Hearts:" 27, "The Road to Ruin," and the farce, "Jenny Lind," in which Minnie Macarthy made her first appearance as Jenny Leatheriungs. Oct. 4, "London Assurance," with the following unexceptionable cast:

|---|---|
| Sir Harcourt Courtley (first appearance this season) | J. S. Browne |
| Dazzle (first appearance this season) | C. Walcot |
| Charles Courtley | James B. Brown |
| E. A. Sothern | Soloman Isaacs |
| Meddle | Mr. Wharton |
| Max Harkaway | J. G. Burnett |
| Lady Gay Spanker | Laura Keene |
| Dolly Spanker | Chas. Peters |
| Grace Harkaway | Sara Stevens |
| Cool | Milnes Levick |
| Martin | Evans |
| Pert | Miss Flynn |

Benjamin Brown died in this city Sept. 22, 1890, at 2,451 Second Avenue, of consumption. He had been ill for a long time. He left a widow and one child, thirteen years of age. He was buried in the Actors' Fund plot.

8, "She Stoops to Conquer," and, for the first time, the original burlesque English opera, "Fra Diavolo," in which Effie Germon made her bow here as Zerlina. Jefferson played Beppo.

"Our American Cousin" was first produced Oct. 18, 1858. After the reading of the comedy to the company, and before the characters were cast, Mr. Couldock was asked if he would play Coyle, the lawyer, or Abel Murcott. He declined to play in it at all. Sothern was cast for Lord Dundreary, a fourth rate old man, with only forty-seven lines to speak. He also refused the part, but he and Couldock finally agreed with Mr. Burnett, the stage manager, to play on the condition that both Dundreary and Abel Murcott should be rewritten. In writing up Dundreary, Sothern threw into it everything that struck him as wildly absurd. He added business and words, and sneezes, and hops, skips and jumps until it became the most attractive part in the piece. The creation was his own. He cut out the bad cellar scene, a drunken act, and so rearranged the play that instead of seventeen scenes, which it had when it came from the hands of Tom Taylor, Sothern made it in four acts of one scene each. On the first night no one knew what Sothern was going to do, and Sam's letter was a surprise to everybody, although the part was by no means a pronounced success. In fact, it was two or three weeks before the people began to understand what he was about. "Our American Cousin" proved a great favorite with the public. Without having any particular merit as a literary production, it was the most successful comedy produced here in a long time. I do not remember any character which called forth such hearty laughter and successive rounds of applause at this theatre as Jefferson's Asa Trenchard. In spite of Asa's unpolished manners and ridiculous ways, one could not help feeling that there was a genuine gentleman beneath the outward show of national eccentricity. The cast was as follows:

|---|---|
| Asa Trenchard | Joseph Jefferson. |
| Sir Edward Trenchard | Edwin Varrey |
| Lord Dundreary | E. A. Sothern |
| Lieut. Vernon | Milnes Levick |
| Capt. De Boots | Clinton |
| Coyle | Burnett |
| Abel Murcott | C. Couldock |
| Binney | Chas. Peters |
| Buddicombe | McDouall |
| Rasper | Wharton |
| John Whicker | B. Brown |
| Florence Trenchard | Laura Keene |
| Mrs. Mountchessington | Mary Wells |
| Augusta | Effie Germon |
| Georgiana | Mrs. E. A. Sothern |
| Mary Meredith | Sara Stevens |
| Sharpe | Miss Flynn |
| Skillet | Mrs. Levick |

A matinee performance of "Our American Cousin" took place Dec. 25. Laura Honey became a member of the company, making her first appearance 27, as Gertrude in "A Loan of a Lover." Laura Honey was afterwards known as Laura Church Honey Stevenson. She died at Oakland, Cal., Dec. 25, 1884. Wednesday, 29, a matinee performance was given for the benefit of the Mount Vernon Fund. On the evening of Feb. 5, 1859, a display of fireworks was given, consisting of an apotheosis of the Goddess of Liberty, surrounded by the national insigna and emblems of England and America. In commemoration of Washington's Birthday, a series of tableaux illustrative of the life of Washington was given, and consisted of Washington as a surveyor, a farmer, a son and as a general. Charles Peters' benefit took place March 12, on which occasion Master F. W. Peters (now a member of Edward Harrigan's Co.) made his first appearance on any stage as Master Peter White in the farce, "Mr. and Mrs. Peter White." R. C. Carpenter was succeeded as prompter by F. S. Reignolds Dec. 6, who in turn gave way Feb. 17 to L. J. Vincent. April 1, "The Heir at Law" was cast:

|---|---|
| Zekiel Homespun | E. A. Sothern |
| Lady Duberly | Mrs. W. R. Blake |
| Caroline Dormer | Sara Stevens |
| Cicely Homespun | Laura Keene |
| Lord Duberly | W. R. Blake |
| Dr. Pangloss | Jos. Jefferson |
| Steadfast | Edwin Varrey |
| Kenrick | Chas. Peters |
| Henry Moreland | Wm. Marden |
| James | F. Evans |
| Dick Dowlas | Milnes Levick |
| John | B. Brown |

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

— The bright young song writer and composer, Isadore Witmark, has finished another catchy yodle song, entitled "My Sweetheart True." It promises to be a success. It is now being sung by Harry C. Dietz, with "Two Old Cronies;" Queenie Vassar, with "The County Fair;" Al. H. Wilson, with Nelsons' Great World Co.; May Howard, with the Howard Burlesque Co.; May Templeton, with "The Broommaker;" Dagmar, the Sherwood Sisters, Minnie Schult, Alice Coleman and others.

— Robert Robertson closes with "The Kindergarten" Oct. 12. He was presented 1 with a handsome silver watch by Master Eddie Pray, of the same company.

NEW PLAYS AND NEW THEATRES.

First American Performance of "New Lamps for Old," by Jerome K. Jerome.

With the opening of the season of 1890-91 at Daly's Theatre, this city, Tuesday evening, Oct. 7, Jerome K. Jerome's comedy, "New Lamps for Old," was done for the the first time in America. Originally acted at Terry's Theatre, London, Eng., Feb. 8, 1890, it has since been revised and augmented by its author to fit Mr. Daly's stock company. The plot is a satire of the free love theory. Edwin and Elvira Honeydew, a young couple, have gone through the process of disillusionment. Elvira, having discovered all her husband's bad habits, thinks she has found her real affinity in an affected æsthete named Postlethwaite. Edwin, wearying of her simple nature, has fallen victim to the somewhat stern blandishments of one Octavia, a strong minded female, who had formerly contracted to Postlethwaite, but who has separated from him on account of incompatability of temper. When the play begins Edwin and Elvira are about to elope with their chosen ones. Each is ignorant of the others intentions; but the suspicions of an old family lawyer, Buster, are aroused, and, eager to unearth a divorce in which he may distinguish himself, he follows the fugitives to the Sweatbriar Arms. In getting to this retreat the temper of both the newly joined couples are sorely tried, and they arrive at the Arms slightly disgusted with each other. Buster gets to the hotel and cross questions Jemima, a waitress, who takes him to the husband of the two ladies, who, Jemima supposes, have left the old man whom she believes a Mormon. Buster takes refuge in a cupboard which stands in the room. After the pairs have come to the conclusion that their present state is worse than the former, the climax of meeting and recognition, which has been imminent, is reached. At the instant this mutual discovery takes place, the lights go out, and the quartet manage, by various strange expedients of travel, to get home. The difficulty of explanation is avoided by the denouement of both husbands believing that Buster was the individual who ran away with both their wives. The solicitor is turned out, and the curtain falls on the reconciliation between Edwin and Elvira, Octavia and Postlethwaite resuming their former relations.

Memphis' New Grand Opera House.

The New Grand Opera House, Memphis, Tenn., which opened Sept. 22, is situated on the southeast corner of Beale and Main Streets. The inside arrangement is patterned after the Broadway, this city. The building is 100x280ft., and has a front of Bedford stone. The main entrance, on the west side of Main Street, is 25x80ft., and combines a lobby, vestibule and foyer, with tiled flooring. The walls of the vestibule, etc., are finished in relief plastique, combed and bronzed, while the ceilings are handsomely frescoed. The woodwork is grained antique oak finish, and the glazing is of incrusted beveled edge plate glass, with burnished trimmings. On the right of the foyer is an entrance from Beale Street, 9x25ft. The main ticket office is on the left. The dress circle is reached by a handsome hard wood stairway, leading from the right of the foyer, where the ticket office for that department is also situated. The house has a seating capacity of 2,100. The auditorium is 100x80ft., and will accommodate 727 people on the first floor. Between the orchestra chairs and orchestra circle there are 25 stockholders' boxes, each containing four chairs and divided by a railing of burnished brass. There are six private boxes on either side of the proscenium opening, with carved and ornamented wood surroundings, handsomely decorated in the prevailing, highly burnished gold leaf and bronze, and draped in dark Vienna plush. The centre boxes seat eight people, while the two adjoining seat four each. In front of each box is a burnished nickel rail, supported by standards and scrolls of burnished copper. Stairways in rear of the lower boxes lead to those above. To the left of the promenade, in the rear of the orchestra circle, is a handsomely furnished ladies' waiting and retiring room, and at the other or opposite end is the smoking room, with a retiring room attached. The arches separate the promenade from the auditorium proper. These are handsomely draped in sienna toned plush, and supported by carved spendrells, decorated in gold. The chairs are of the folding pattern, with perforated seats, and backs upholstered in old gold plush, with burnished gold trimmings. They are furn shed with hat, umbrella and overcoat racks. The orchestra inclosure reaches across the entire stage front, and will seat twenty-five musicians. The aisles and loges are carpeted with moquette. The walls and ceiling are finished in Renaissance fresco. From the centre of the ceiling is suspended a large chandelier, surrounded by four of smaller size, of antique design, and with burnished brass trimmings. Gas or electricity can be used with the illuminating fixtures of the entire building. The dress circle, or second tier, is divided into two departments, with a promenade running through the centre, seating in all 450 people. It has folding chairs, and is carpeted with body Brussels in the aisles and promenade. The gallery is seated with cherry colored benches, from each of which a complete view of the stage can be had. The proscenium opening is 30x40ft., the stage is 80ft. wide, with a depth of 51ft., and a height of 80ft. There are twelve traps and five sets of grooves. On either side, elevated above the stage, five feet back from the proscenium arch, are suspended two fly galleries, the first being 28ft. above the stage floor, and the second 49ft. above the stage. There are five rows of stage border lights, 30ft. long. There are seventeen dressing rooms, 10x12ft., and one for the star, all handsomely furnished and heated by steam. There are twenty sets of scenery, painted by Noxon & Toomey, of St. Louis, who also painted the drop curtain, which represents Weeks' celebrated painting of "The Rajah's Triumphant Entry into Singapore, India." The staff: Frank Gray, manager; G. R. Harsh, treasurer; Tom Dwyer, doorkeeper.

"The Silver Shield."

This three act comedy, by Sydney Grundy, was done for the first time in this country at the Euclid Avenue Opera House, Cleveland, O., Oct. 3, by Rosina Vokes. It was originally acted at the Strand, London, Eng., May 19, 1885. A young husband is jealous of the attentions extended to his wife. He watches her, and soon finds a portion of a letter addressed, apparently to himself, in which his wife admits her preference for another man, and asks him to absent himself from her. He leaves, and when the play commences six years have elapsed. The opening act is at the country house of Sir Humphrey Chetwynd. Tom Potter, an artist, and a distant relative of Sir Humphrey, is at work on a picture, "The Silver Shield," which deals with the fable of two knights who had seen a certain shield. Tom proposes to Sir Humphrey for his ward's (Lucy Preston's) hand, in so doing so relates his past history. He had formerly lived at Melbourne, and left his wife in the manner above described. Going to England, he changed his name, devoted himself to art, and one day read of his wife's death. Sir Humphrey also has a story to tell about Lucy. The girl, through no fault of her mother's, is illegitimate. In her guardian's way of thinking this is sufficient reason for not marrying any of his family. Tom thinks differently, and is on the point of proposing to Miss Preston, when he catches sight of a new visitor, a widow, who is also an actress, Alena Blake. In her he recognizes his wife, whom he thought dead, and hurriedly leaves the house. The fact that he has proposed to Sir Humphrey for Lucy's hand leaks out, with the result that Ned Chetwynd, Sir Humphrey's nephew, declares that he has already married the girl. Sir Humphrey disowns the couple, and turns them out. Lucy is jealous of the attentions her husband pays to Miss Blake. Ned has written a play, which he has submitted to Miss Blake. His wife finds a letter which he has written to the actress. It is couched in the most amorous terms, and the young wife, heartbroken at what she believes infidelity on her husband's part, leaves the house. The scene of the last act is laid in Miss Blake's boudoir, when the mistake of the letter is explained, and Tom Potter and his wife are reunited. Miss Blake meets Mrs. Chetwynd, explains her mistake to her, and all ends happily.

"Die Novize."

This three act musical comedy (German) was done for the first time in America Oct. 1, at the Amberg, this city, with the following cast: Dr. Mobius Von Ingenhof, Herr Walter; Frau Von Giesbach, Frau Trautmann; Severin Holberg, Kapellmeister, Herr Friese Sr.; Gustav, Herr Horwitz; Frau Langhofer, Frl. Werner; Timothea, Frl. Schmitz; Kuhne, Herr Rank; Fraulein Sivori, Frl. Englander; Fraulein Schneitzhofer, Frl. v. Varndal; Fraulein Reitzenbeck, Frl. Blanche; Leontine, Paula Loowe. It is from the pens of Fr. Zell and Wilhelm Rab. The plot is most simple. Leontine, a scholar in Frau Von Giesbach's seminary, is destined for a convent by her guardian. Against this fate she rebels and decides to join a theatrical company, and, donning the first disguise that presents itself, runs away with her boy lover, a tutor of music in the seminary. Now this lover is none other than the son of the Kapellmeister, and, through his intercession, the father is persuaded to allow the novice to impersonate Endymion in the approaching presentation of a classic drama. This part had previously been given to another member of the company, who is righteously indignant at the change of cast. In the midst of a rehearsal of the piece the professors appear upon the stage with a squad of soldiers and demand their former pupil. Leontine makes her escape and leaves the other Endymion to be carried off to the convent. In the last act the lovers are united.

"Hamarchis."

At the Masonic Temple, Louisville, Sept. 24, the MacLean & Prescott Co. produced, for the first time on any stage, the five act play, "Harmachis," dramatized from H. Rider Haggard's novel, "Cleopatra." This was the full cast: Harmachis, R. D. MacLean; Anthony, John D. Craig; Brennus, Maclyn Arbuckle; Dellius, Collin Kemper; Amenemhat, Charles Grey; Sepa, Cyrus Douglas; Centurion, Augustus MacLean; Eros, Griffith Evans; Officer of Guard, Oliver Taylor; Wrestler, Alexander MacKenzie; High Priest, Morris Bauer; Charmion, Agnes Maynard; Atoua, Rose Anthon; Cleopatra, Marie Prescott. Manager, John Whiteley; stage manager, Cyrus Douglass. The piece is said to have scored a success. As it is based upon a widely known story, we do not deem it necessary to give the plot. The adapter's name is not stated.

"Paul Jones."

At the Broadway Theatre, this city, Oct. 6, Robert Planquette's opera, "Paul Jones," was sung for the first time in America outside of San Francisco. In that city, on Sept. 22, an English version called "The Privateer" was sung at the Tivoli Opera House. This adaptation has been Americanized, as it were, the scenes being laid in Nassau, New Providence and Salem, Mass., during the war for American independence and its close. The work was, in its original French form, under the title of "Surcouf" (the libretto by MM. Chivot and Duru), first sung on any stage at the Paris Folies Dramatiques, Oct. 6, 1887. The English book is an adaptation by H. B. Farnie, whose work was first sung at the Theatre Royal, Bolton, Eng., Dec. 10, 1888, and afterwards had a London run at the Prince of Wales'. In the first act we find Paul Jones apprenticed to Bicoquet, a ship chandler of St. Malo. Paul is in love with Bicoquet's niece, Yvonne, and finds a rival in Rufino De Martinez, nephew of Don Trocadero, Spanish governor of the island of Estrella. Upon this account, Bicoquet presses Rufino's suit with Yvonne, and is seconded in his endeavors by Malaquena, Rufino's sister. Bicoquet discharges Paul Jones from his service, and Paul, with two friends, Pierre and Bouillabasse, enlists on board an American privateer, but not before he has elicited a promise from Bicoquet that Yvonne shall be his if in three years he can return with a fortune of a million francs. In the second act the three years have passed, and we discover that Bicoquet has married Malaquena and retired from business. Rufino has become the captain of a Spanish man of war, and, Paul Jones being supposedly drowned, he claims Yvonne's hand, promised to him by Bicoquet. She, however, learns from a newspaper that Paul is alive, and, at the moment when the marriage contract is about to be signed between Yvonne and Rufino, he returns with the required million francs. Paul, now captain of the Bon Homme Richard, is challenged by Rufino to a duel. Instead of this taking place, Paul is entrapped by Malaquena, and arrested, with his two friends, now officers on his ship. The two latter manage to escape, and reach their vessel, lying at St. Malo. Bicoquet and Yvonne now depart on board Rufino's frigate, which also contains Paul Jones as a prisoner. The vessel is bound for the island of Estella, and in the third act we meet Don Trocadero, its eccentric Governor. Rufino's ship arrives, and he is informed that his dreaded enemy, Paul Jones, is a prisoner on board. Paul escapes, however, and hoping to find Yvonne, enters the Governor's palace. Here he is mistaken by Don Trocadero for Malaquena's husband, Bicoquet, and, when that personage arrives, the Governor, taking him for Paul, has him secured. The flight of Paul and Yvonne to his ship is proposed, and Bouillabasse and Pierre, disguised as the Mosquito King and his son, in an endeavor to bring this about, gain access to the palace just as Paul Jones' identity is discovered. He is once more about to be arrested when the American crew, headed by Bouillabasse, suddenly attack the Spaniards. Don Trocadero is taken prisoner. Paul claims Yvonne, and all ends in the usual happy manner.

The New Lyceum Theatre, Memphis.

The New Lyceum Theatre, Memphis, Tenn., opened Sept. 29, occupies the ground floor of the Amateur Athletic Association's building, lately completed, situated on the northwest corner of Union and Main Streets. The edifice is built of brick, six stories high, and its ground space covers 78x160ft. The upper portion is for the exclusive use of the Association. Through a vestibule doorway, 18ft. wide, the grand entrance (40x43), with tiled flooring and frescoed walls, is reached. Within this inclosure, to the left of the auditorium entrance, the steps and elevator ascending to the club rooms are situated. The manager's and ticket office are placed on the left of the grand entrance, and the corresponding space on the right will be occupied as a store. At the far end of the grand entrance, and to the right of the auditorium floor, a hard wood stairway leads to the balcony. The auditorium is 70x80ft. The orchestra and orchestra circle seat 650 people; the balcony has 450 chairs, and the balcony circle will accommodate 96 spectators, making a total of 1,196. There are six boxes on either side of the proscenium opening, draped in old rose colored plush. In front of every box is a burnished brass rail, supported by bronzed standards and scrolls, and at the top of each is an arch of ornamental fret work. The chairs on first floor are of the folding pattern, with plush backs, and hat, overcoat and umbrella racks. The aisles are carpeted with moquette. The woodwork is finished in antique ivory, and the walls and ceiling are decorated in the Byzantique fresco style. A ladies' retiring room and a smoking room are at each end of the promenade, in the rear of the orchestra circle. The balcony has body Brussels carpet in the aisles, and bronzed folding chairs. Seven bracket cluster lights, illuminated by either electricity or gas, and twenty intermediate electric lights are arranged around the gallery facing. The principal illuminating fixtures of the house are arranged for either gas or electricity. The lower floor has three exits, with one fire escape from the balcony. The proscenium opening is 28x25ft.; width of stage, 70ft.; 33ft.; heighth, 40ft. The stage has eight traps and four sets of grooves. Fifteen dressing rooms occupy the space under the auditorium, in the basement. Hot air and steam are used in heating the house. The drop curtain, representing "Antony and Cleopatra," and the scenery were painted by Sosman & Landis. A plush curtain will be used. The following officers comprise the staff: John H. Robb, manager; Thos. Orgill, treasurer; H. E. Robb, doorkeeper.

"Superba."

At Harmann's Bleecker Hall, Albany, N. Y., Oct. 1, "Superba," a three act spectacular drama, by the Hanlon Bros. and John J. McNally, was done for the first time on any stage. This was the cast: Superba, Maud Midgley; Walhalla, Mildred Halland; Sylvia, Rose Foster; Leander, Howell Hansell; Piemot, George D. Melville; Mora, Marie Cahill; Ferdinand d'Istrait, Charles Hall; Henora, Louise Mitchell; Peter Pater, Frank Backus; Bridgeta, A. Rocardi; King Malign, J. Cattunio. "Superba" is on a somewhat higher plane than the usual spectacle. It possesses a connected plot, and partakes largely of the nature of a drama. The story tells the strife of the good fairy, Queen Superba, with the wicked Queen Walhalla over the loves of Sylvia and Leander, whom the wicked queen is bound to destroy. In his search for his betrothed, Leander wanders through strange places, Egyptian villages, Arabian deserts and African jungles, in turn furnish the scenes of the action. In each the splendor of the spectacle is intermingled with the startling trick effects for which the Hanlons are noted. The piece is in three acts. In the first there is a notable scene in the palace courtyard, with a cathedral and illuminated bridge in the distance, changing to an awful mountain gorge, the home of the evil spirits. The second act opens with a grand abbey scene, and closes with the floral fairy ship. In the third act there is in turn an African jungle, an Egyptian village, and a scene on the desert, near the Sphinx. The climax is in the palace of Walhalla, who is destroyed by Superba as she is about to cremate Sylvia. The finale is a transformation, showing the united lovers in Superba's palace, in which fountains play in a glow of colored lights. The ballet was led by Mme. Earle.

"Sunset."

At the Garden Theatre, this city, Oct. 6, as a curtain raiser for "Dr. Bill," Jerome K. Jerome's one act play, "Sunset," was performed for the first time in America. It was originally acted at the London Comedy Feb. 13, 1888. The piece is based upon Tennyson's poem, "The Sisters." Lois and Joan are half sisters. Lois is intended by her father to become the wife of a young farmer, Azariah Stodd, his intention being the outcome of his knowledge of the fact that Stodd has inherited an uncle's wealth. Lois' heart, however, has been given to the handsome clerk of a London barrister, and she is secretly corresponding with him. Her father knows the clerk, but is ignorant that the young people are in love. Lois' half sister, Joan, is just home from a Continental school, and the two girls naturally confide their secrets to one another. Lois to Joan reads her sweetheart's gushing letter, and Joan to Lois tells of the love she has conceived for a fine young fellow she had met abroad, and who had saved her life, and professed an affection for her, but alas! has filled her young heart with sorrow by revealing the fact that he is engaged to another. Lawrence Leigh presently appears on the scene, and then, as everybody naturally expects, it turns out that he is the beloved of both damsels. Lois, however, keeps her secret well from Joan, and tells Lawrence that her heart has changed, and that she is to be married to Mr. Stodd. And so, while her own heart is breaking, she smooths the way to her half sister's happiness, and the curtain falls.

'A Little (More or Less) Lord Fauntleroy."

This one act curtain raiser, by Archibald D. Gordon, was performed for the first time on any stage Oct. 4, at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, the cast being: Earl of Dorrincourt, George S. Woodward; Little Lord F., Stuart Robson; Mr. Hobbs, J. B. Everham; Thomas, J. L. Wonderson; Dearest, May Waldron. Mr. Robson made an emphatic hit as the Little Lord. As he appeared at the Park he was tired of the title, weary of being photographed, and was possessed of a wild desire to tear off his curls, and his collar into rags, jump on his picturesque cap, and, in short, be something else and "give himself a rest." The stately old Earl of Dorrincourt sits with his gouty leg upon a cushion, and in tones of frozen dignity begins: "Little Lord Fauntleroy ——." "Oh, drop to yourself. Come off!" shrieks his grandson. "You give me a pain in the neck!" Later the heir to the earldom of Dorrincourt shocks "Dearesth" and the Earl, by entering shorn of his flowing hair, wearing a rowdyish jockey cap and bearing in his arms what passes for a villainous, fighting bull pup. Mr. Gordon has produced

"Lady Barter," a new modern society play, in three acts, written by Charles Coghlan for his sister, Rose Coghlan, is to have its first production at Denver during the week of Oct. 13. — Edward Waldron will act as advertising agent for Manager Hammerstin's Harlem Opera House and the new Columbus Theatre, this city.

— An accident, which might have terminated seriously, happened to Margaret Mather at Peterborough, Can., Sept. 26. The play was "Romeo and Juliet." In the closing scene Miss Mather formerly used a trick dagger, which closed up when the blade struck; but it had been lost, and a genuine dagger substituted. Miss Mather forgot about the change made, and plunged the weapon into her side. She uttered a suppressed scream as she fell, but finished her part and dragged herself over to the body of her lover as the curtain dropped. An examination revealed the fact that she had a narrow escape from serious, if not fatal, injury. The blade penetrated the clothing and corset, and struck the sixth rib about an inch below the heart, making a slight flesh wound.

— C. E. Inwood, business representative of Frank I. Frayne, was a CLIPPER caller Oct. 3. Just now Mr. Inwood is also acting as advance agent of Daniel A. Kelly's "The Shadow Detective" Co. He reports business with both attractions to be very encouraging, especially through Pennsylvania. Mr. Frayne has revived familiar old "Si Slocum" as his chief play for this season, and is traveling under the direction of Actor-Manager Kelly.

— Most of the members of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's Co. arrived in this city Oct. 3. They were Florence Bennett, Florence Corvell, Violet Vanbrugh, Nellie Campbell, Barbara Huntley, E. Fairbrother, J. H. Barnes, J. E. Dodson, A. M. Denison, Joseph Carne, Seymour Hicks, H. D. Deane, H. B. Wildman, H. Nye Chaut, Arthur White and Herbert Cathcart. Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, with their daughter, arrived 5.

— Chas. B. Welles will retire from Lewis Morrison's "Faust" Co. at the close of this week. David M. Murray will take his place.

— Several changes are in prospect among the ranks of the Pauline Hall Opera Co. Jos. S. Greensfelder, the stage manager, has retired, and is succeeded by Murry Woods.

— Presley B. French is enjoying a lengthy and congenial engagement as leading man and stage director of a repertory company. He is not at liberty, as has been erroneously reported.

— Nelse Cannon, having retired from Fitzpatrick's "Rip Van Winkle" Co., has joined the Carrie Stanley Co.

— Austin & Niseley's Comedy Co., playing "Two Old Chums," open their Winter season at Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 6, and go direct from there to London, Can. The company: Jimmie Field and Henry H. Winchell, Harry Austin, J. C. Niseley, Johnney Patton, Fred Austin, Bessie Field, Emma Gertrude, Irene Curtis, Lola Green and S. A. Porter, with A. E. Root, advance.

— The "Out of Sight" tour is to be resumed shortly. The new company will include John G. Magee, Robert Milton, Wales Winter, Geo. M. Drake, the Delmores, C. L. Tibbetts, John M. Patterson, Rose and Lilly La Verde, Lucy Taylor, Vera Bedell, Peral Elliott, Henry F. Smith (musical director) and Geo. M. Granger (business manager). Thos. E. Mills is the manager, as before.

— Frank W. Samm and Ed. Barnet have secured a proprietory interest with Billy Arlington in Arlington's Comedy Co. The new organization will begin the season Oct. 15 at Spokane Falls, and play eastward through Idaho and Montana, with New York as their destination. They have secured two comedies, and are having new scenery painted.

— The company engaged to support Adele Frost in "Lucille" will include Ogden Stevens, Alfred Follin, John W. Thompson, James Percival, Robert McWade Jr., A. S. Goodell, Madelaine Bouton, and Beatrice Ingram. Thomas Taylor is to be the manager, and John M. Hickey will travel in advance. The tour opens Oct. 20. "Lucille" is Archibald D. Gordon's adaptation and translation of a Sardou play.

— Herbert L. Cawthorn, of the "Little Nugget" Co., writes us from Carbondale, Pa., that the company had a narrow escape at Scranton. A heavy piece of lumber projected from a train standing on a side track near Scranton, and scraped along the entire length of their train, smashing the windows. Susie Forrester, of the company, received several slight cuts across the temple. All the passengers were pretty badly scared.

— Master Silsby and the Harlem Quartet gave an entertainment at Maryland Hall, Baltimore, Sept. 29, for the benefit of Laurel Council, No. 1, U. F. A.

— Warren W. Ashley resigns from the "Ole Olson" Co. this week.

— Anna MacGregor has been engaged for Adelaide Moore's tour.

— Harry J. Clapham Jr. reports excellent business for "Grimes' Cellar Door" through New England.

— Sam S. Sanford has organized a "Ten Nights in a Barroom" Co., which left Philadelphia Oct. 6, to fill engagements in the South. The roster: Sallie Parington, Ida May Lewis, Eva Bradford, Little Grace, James M. Bradford, Harry Davis, John Stout, Mort Erb, R. Bourd, Harry Smith, Frank Camillo, stage manager and Sam S. Sanford, proprietor.

— W. B. Powell has assumed the management of Hagen's Opera House at Lexington, Mo.

— The company engaged by Manager T. A. Hall for the support of Mme. Janauschek in her coming tour includes Thornton Raymond, Genevieve Beaman, Jessie Rossells, Mrs. Graham Crawford, J. W. Rennie, A. H. Stuart, O. H. Barr, George F. Bird, Graham Crawford, Tyrone Power, Paul Davis, L. M. Steckler, J. Brewer, George C. Connor and Frank Thayer. The company will open their season, Oct. 20, at Troy, N. Y., producing Dr. Heinrich Laub's five act play, "Essex," in which Mme. Janauschek will appear as Queen Elizabeth.

— Eugene La Rue has closed his engagement with the Dudley Family.

— A. N. Davis, formerly with the New London Shows, is now traveling in advance of the Ruble & Taylor Co., supporting the child actress, Gertie Ewing, and J. C. Taylor.

— Clair Tuttle has closed with "The Silver Bird" Co. to play emotional leads in "Braving the World."

— E. J. Parker, an old and well known manager, is very ill at the residence of his son in law in this city. Mr. Parker is suffering from an abscess on the inner side of his left ear, which has already occasioned two severe surgical operations.

— W. F. Rochester has been engaged as the leading comedian of the McCaull Opera Co. He will assume the role of Paracelsus in "The Seven Saubian," replacing R. F. Cotton.

— Lew Gleason has closed his brief engagement with "The Silver Bird" Co., and joined the Ely Stock Co. to play leads.

— Genevieve F. Sawtelle, formerly with Sawtell's Dramatic Co., is at her home, Catskill, N. Y., recovering from an attack of nervous prostration.

— Manager W. J. Fleming, of the "Around the World in Eighty Days" Co., sends word that from the first his business has been excellent. He adds that there have been no changes in his roster since the opening date.

— "Sam" will be used as the chief piece in Henry T. Chanfrau's repertory next season. Managers Bertram & Willard have already booked some good dates for it.

— The Webber "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co. have just concluded a most successful week at Forepaugh's, Philadelphia. The company is composed of twenty-two people, and in the "Voudoo Festival" scene twelve live alligators, seven Siberian bloodhounds and a donkey and pony are employed. The version used is by Clay M. Greene, and the scenery for each act was specially painted by Henry Hoyt and his assistants. Nine musical specialties are introduced, exclusive of the jubilee singers, and many startling feats are performed during the levee scene by Mons. H. Sweeney and Mme. Alna Don Jonato. Carrie Webber, George Reynolds, Harry Webber and John Murray are the principal people in the cast.

— The Prestonville Dramatic Club is the name of an association of amateurs recently organized at Wideawake, Ky.

— Gus Reed has signed with Maude Sypher's Co., as leading comedian.

— The roster of Katie Putnam's Co. in "Love Finds a Way" is: Nellie Donald Leffingwell, Bell Theadore, Myron Leffingwell, Charles Mortimer, H. B. Emery, Edward P. Temple, T. Findlay, Thomas Grimes, J. M. Crowell, E. B. Brown, manager; Junius B. Howe, business agent; Charles A. Prince, musical director, and M. M. Bennett, press agent.

VAUDEVILLES AND THE MINSTRELS.

NOTES FROM CLEVELAND'S COLORED MINSTRELS.—"The Voudoos' Feast," Manager Semon's latest addition, has proved a decided go, and the boys take much pride in doing the act. Several changes have been made in the company of late. Lon Lewis, our robust tenor, is receiving considerable praise for the manner in which he sings Banks Winter's "Neona." James Bland has purchased the largest diamond ever worn, probably, by a colored performer, its weight being 4¾ carats. Manager Semon's wife is very proud over the success of her sister, Ada Melrose, who is winning high praise for her work in "Fort Donelson." We expect our supply of Winter coats every day. Manager Semon has been on the sick list for several days, but is now improving. The arrival of CLIPPERS is eagerly looked for each week, and a fine of fifty cents is imposed upon anyone lending or borrowing the old standby. The company have a sick fund, into which all fines go. We are all anxious to see our general, W. S. Cleveland, again. He has not been with us since the opening, but he is doubtless satisfied that his business with this company is in good hands. Levard, sword walker, is very indignant at another sword walker at the Grand Museum, New York City, being advertised as Le Vard. He claims the name is original, as it was bestowed upon him by Manager F. F. Proctor, in whose employ he was for several years. Harry Eaton, our popular stage manager, celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday last week, and received some valuable presents.

LIZZIE WEAVER, sister of Mrs. Emma Phillion, wife of Achille Phillion, died suddenly Sept. 23, at the residence of Mrs. Phillion, at Brooklyn. The interment was at the Lutheran Cemetery.

ORKS, the juggler, and Dina Sawtelle joined French's "New Sensation" Co. at Cincinnati last week.

AMONG recent engagements for Goodrich, Elitch & Schilling's Minstrels are Geo. H. Edwards, Bentley Bros.' Quartet, London Bros., Mason and Titus, and Symonds, Hughes and Rastus, with A. R. Wilber, business manager.

W. W. NEAL was the recipient of a handsome gold watch from his wife, Pansy Reynolds, and a gold chain and charm from W. R. Thompson, on Sept. 18. It was his birthday anniversary.

CHAS. DE BAR, of De Mora and De Bar, contortionists, is at St. Vincent's Hospital, this city.

MORTON, RENO AND MACK are with Pains' "Last Days of Pompeii," at Washington, D. C.

ROSTER of Victor's Vaudeville Co.: The American Four, Lottie Gilson, the National Trio, Videlia and Denham, St. George Hussey, Somers and Boshell, Ward and Lynch, and Pickert and Mayon.

WILLIAM SHADE is reported as having received an offer from W. S. Cleveland to become general press agent for Mr. Cleveland's attractions.

THE following people appeared at the New Mascot Theatre, Missoula, Mon., last week: Thos. Sullivan, Jas. Williams, Viola St. Clair, Madeline Marshall, Caprice Van Lissa, Lota Forbus, Geo. W. Allen and Lottie Delmain, Mario and Castellat, Lizzie Hall, the Victorellas, Henry and Elton, and Minnie Flynn.

AT THE LYCEUM THEATRE, Baker City, Ore., week of Sept. 29: Ritter and Russell, L. S. Wells, the Zoyarras, Dollie Merton, Eva Lester, Kittie King, Edith Clifton and Ned Nesteil.

THE following people appeared at the Novelty Theatre, Ogden City, Utah., Oct. 4: Bertha Waring, Ella Conkling, Susie Wilde, Ada Armour, Pearl Ardine, Miles and Keating, Young Sisters, James Thompson, Mabel Rivers, Maud Clifton and Frank Duffy.

CHAS. A. MACK will hereafter be known professionally as Charles Kenna. He has excellent reasons for making the change, the most important being that there are now upwards of half a hundred Macks in the profession. This fact has caused considerable inconvenience of late years among the performers of that name.

WALTER PLIMMER and Kittie Burke are with Sun's Phantasma Co.

DAVE OAKS will be tendered a benefit at Miner's Bowery Theatre, this city, Sunday, Oct. 12. Mr. Oaks was recently stricken with blindness, and is in need of assistance. He is one of the best known performers on the stage today, and the list of volunteers promises to be large.

MANAGER O. B. SHEPPARD, of the Grand Opera House, Toronto, was before the Police Court of that city Oct. 1, charged with posting lithographs of the London Gaiety Girls, which were alleged to be indecent. Mr. Sheppard promised in future to submit doubtful lithographs to the police department.

ROSTER of M. E. Ashton's World's Fair Burlesque Co.: Mabel Stanley, Hattie Ray, Maude Montford, Helen Stanford, Sisters Rentfrow, Daisy Bedford, Mattie Hays and Jennie Mortomore, Dan Daily, Wm. Fay, Johnny Henderson and the Ashton Bros., with M. E. Ashton, proprietor and manager, and Wm. J. Andrews, agent.

MCCAFFREY & DEMPSEY'S Co. includes Maude Davis, Bessie Bartell, Hattie Bartell, Pauline Werner, Annie Granger, Georgie Blake, Mabel Davis, Gertie Davis, Alice West, Polly Debere, Dottie March, Pearl and Ruby Smith, and Bella and Clara Dempsey. The White Spectre emerges from his retreat every Tuesday, and rattles his bones among the dressing rooms, a most welcome visitor.

THE HENRY BURLESQUE Co. reports excellent business thus far. J. H. Smith, the proprietor, will have two shows on the road next season. He is now engaging a number of people of note, and feels confident of making as good a showing with Co. No. 2, as he has with No. 1.

THE following from Hoosic Falls, N. Y., dated Oct. 2, is signed by one of the persons interested: "Harry Weldon, of Weldon and Henshaw, and Mamie E. Donovan, a non-professional, of Bennington, Vt., were engaged to be married Oct. 2."

THOMAS EMERSON ADDY and Bertha Augusta Benn were married in this city Sept. 30. Mr. Addy is engaged at the Harlem Museum, while Miss Benn, although a non-professional, is the daughter of the well known Shakespearian actor, Walter Benn.

BESSIE BONEHILL was married to William Seeley, formerly of the Four Emperors of Music, at Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14. The bride and groom are both members of Tony Pastor's Co., now on tour.

BINNS AND BURNS deny that they were at Doris' Harlem Museum, last week. They are with Harry Kernell's Co. They write that they have never been under engagement to Manager Doris.

THE PHŒNIX THEATRE, Durango, Col., had these people last week: Schaeffer and Turner, Mable Loomis, the Hayters, Grace Monroe, Theo. Price, Maud Cleveland, Burt Bruner, Wm. Caufield, John Libby, Bessie Rivers, Kittie Blouger, Wm. Coury, Millie Bryant and James Dixy.

FRANK J. KIRK, formerly known as Frank Hart, of the Hart Bros., will do a black face specialty, as his partner, Geo. Hart, has left for parts unknown.

THE LEW PALMER COMEDY CO. opened their regular season at Chippewa Lake, Mich., Sept. 26. The company will play week stands. Lew Palmer is proprietor and manager, Chas. Dorman, stage manager; J. C. Hartman, advance agent, and Mat Henderson, leader of band and orchestra.

NOTES FROM FIELD'S MINSTRELS.—Business is big all along the line. Louis Kerr, our former band director, made it very pleasant for some of the members while at New Castle. Chester Ayrus, our solo B-flat cornettist, is afflicted with Job's complaint. Our band headed the exhibition at East Liverpool, O., Oct. 2. The Bijou Quartet are doing some excellent work. Will A. Junker and Billy Van will become members of Columbus Lodge, B. P. O. E.

JERRY CAVANA, stage manager of the Palace Theatre, San Francisco, who has been connected with that favorite resort for some years, was recently presented with a handsome and valuable quartz watch chain by the management and employes of the house, on the occasion of the anniversary of his birth.

PROF. HARRY MAYNARD, well known all over the country as a promoter of sports, had a benefit at the 'Frisco Orpheum Oct. 2.

AT HAMLIN'S THEATRE, Dallas, Tex., last week: Barrett and Livingstone, Maud Glenny, Ella Davis, Coyne Bros., Powers and Rooney, Maggie Lawler, Joe Mills, Smith and Bright, Amy Stanley, Rose Hall, Mamie Russell and Lillie Wilson.

ROSTER of Will H. Davis' Trans-Atlantic Novelty and Specialty Co.: Will H. Davis, manager; Chas. H. Davis, business manager; Frank Carry, agent; Prof. Lepion, leader of band and orchestra, with ten musicians; Chas. Walker, mechanicalist; Darrellos Bros., Marton and Mack, Davis and Clark, Three Kinney Sisters, Hardie and Levanion, Franklin and Collins, and Bertha Stearling.

MARIE LOFTUS, the prominent feature of Reilly & Wood's Co., was too ill to appear at the matinee of Oct. 4 at Miner's Eighth Avenue, this city, but was able to go on at the evening performance.

THOMAS AND GERTIE GRIMES are meeting with much favor on their Western tour. They will return East toward the end of the year.

CUPONTI, juggler, has been engaged as lecturer and assistant manager at the new Fulton Museum, Brooklyn, N. Y.

JAMES DALTON is at his home, Chicago, suffering from blood poisoning, occasioned by an injury to his left hand while playing at Peoria, Ill., last week. He has undergone a surgical operation, and will probably recover.

NEW YORK CITY.

Review of the Week.—Prosperity and activity were the features of last week's city theatricals. At a dozen or more playhouses there were large audiences throughout the week, old and new attractions sharing in this pleasant reward of merit. Besides, the week had one event of more than common note, for Sydney Rosenfeld's latest drama, "The Whirlwind," was subjected to the crucial test of a metropolitan premier.....The STANDARD was the scene of the christening of "The Whirlwind," Tuesday night, Sept. 30, the theatre having remained closed 29 for a last rehearsal. Helen Dauvray's tour for 1890-91, under the new management of Charles E. Power, began with this engagement. She was greeted upon her first appearance with every indication of cordial esteem from a crowded and rather imposing audience, and throughout the play she was encouraged by keen and sympathetic attention. "The Whirlwind" presents much of the brilliancy and not a few of the vagaries of its clever author. Its theme—the wrecking of a city bank—has a sentimental side that saves it from prosaic dullness; but it is still not the best of devices dramatic, by any means. We have already published a synopsis of the plot, and our readers are, therefore, familiar with the course of the story. It is sketched with a fair degree of technical skill by Mr. Rosenfeld, though in places—notably the first and fourth acts—it drags dangerously. These acts will need condensation and a general overhauling before Miss Dauvray can be certain of success. The episode of the Clearing House and the attendant bank panic was a stirring thing, and really carried the play to the point of success. Mr. Rosenfeld took a curtain call on the opening night. The acting was excellent, on the whole. Sidney Drew made the conspicuous hit of the cast by a breezy sketch of an impecunious advertising agent. Agnes Miller, a lovely woman and an actress of much sincerity and force, was seen to advantage in a rather thankless role, and Helen Lowell was a captivating and comely ingenue. J. G. Saville's portrait of the polite villain was in his usual cold and colorless mood. Charles H. Bradshaw worked hard to make fun out of a very uninteresting character, while Theodore Hamilton was a dignified and powerful bank president. William Wilson deserves credit for a neat and consistent sketch of a dude. Mrs. Henry Vandenhoff retired from the cast late in the week, and was succeeded, as Mrs. Clarges, by Kate Dennin Wilson. Of Miss Dauvray's work mingled praise and criticism may be recorded. She was extremely nervous on the first night, and her fussiness seriously damaged her performance. In the technicalities of her art she is still amazingly crude. There were, however, two scenes of light comedy which were capitally interpreted by her. The piece was handsomely mounted, new scenery having been painted for it by Maeder and Schaeffer. The costumes of the ladies were faultless in design and in colors. Miss Dauvray's engagement at the Standard is limited to three weeks, and it is likely that her audiences will be large, as they have been so far. We append the full cast of the opening performance: Samuel Clarges, Theodore Hamilton; James Cameron, James Dunn; Robert Brent, J. G. Saville; Eugene Forbes, Wm. Harcourt; Press Fenwick, Sydney Drew; Geoffrey Van Rensselear, Wm. E. Wilson; Jerolamon Pritchard, Chas. H. Bradshaw; Walter Prime, Louis Carpenter; Assistant Manager, Frank Russell; Deputy Marshall, Chas. Kelly; Belle Cameron, Agnes Miller; Mrs. Clarges, Mrs. Henry Vandenhoff; Valentine, Helen Lowell; Sarah, Ada Crisp; Polly Fargus, Helen Dauvray. Executive staff—Manager, Chas. E. Powers; business manager, James Jay Brady; stage manager, George E. Lask. The incidental music was written by Louis J. Cornu.

.....Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" Co., at the NEW PARK; E. H. Sothern in "The Maister of Woodbarrow," at the LYCEUM; "Dr. Bill," by T. H. French's Co., at the GARDEN THEATRE; Marie Tempest, in "The Red Hussar," at PALMER'S; "Mme. Angot," at the CASINO; "The County Fair," by Neil Burgess, at the UNION SQUARE; "The Senator," by W. H. Crane and his company, at the STAR; the German Lilliputians, at NIBLO'S; the Hanion-Voiter-Martinetti Co. at the ACADEMY; "Goggles," by the J. K. Emmet Jr. Co., at the FIFTH AVENUE; "The Merry Monarch," by the Francis Wilson Co., at the BROADWAY; "All the Comforts of Home," by Chas. Frohman's Co., at PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET; Col. Sinn's "Good Old Times" Co., at the FOURTEENTH STREET; Richard Mansfield in "Beau Brummell," at the MADISON SQUARE—these were the continued attractions, the Park, Lyceum, Palmer's, Star, Madison Square, Union Square, Broadway and Proctor's faring especially well. The Hanion-Voiter-Martinetti Co. closed their rather long engagement) it had lasted since Aug. 23), at the Academy with their performance Thursday night, 2. The aerial apparatus, etc., were then shipped to Chicago, where the troupe opened 5, the Academy, meanwhile, remaining closed. The disastrous fortnight of "Goggles," at the Fifth Avenue, terminated 4, doubtless to the relief of all concerned. The comedy will not be toured, and its failure is thus admitted. A notable engagement in every way was that of the Francis Wilson Co. at the Broadway. It began with a crush on Aug. 18, and it ended with that same crush Oct. 6. "The Merry Monarch" could easily have reigned in New York all Winter. Col. Sinn's "Good Old Times" Co. ended their three weeks' engagement at the Fourteenth Street 6.....DALY'S, the LENOX LYCEUM and the METROPOLITAN were dark. So was HERRMANN'S, a postponement of its opening having been made from 4 to 11, owing to a delay by the workmen.....At PILLING'S (the ROUMANIA OPERA HOUSE) and the THALIA there was a continuance of Hebrew drama..... Corinne's fortnight at H. R. JACOBS' THEATRE closed 6, "Monte Cristo" and "Carmen" having formed the final week's hits. The houses were quite large.....These were the week stands finished 6: Robinson's "Paul Kauvar" Co. at the PEOPLE'S, F. G. Renolds at the EIGHTH STREET, Daniel Sully's "Millionaire" Co. at the WINDSOR, Walter Sanford's "My Jack" Co. at the GRAND OPERA, Gilmore's "Sea King" Co. at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE and "True Irish Hearts" at the HARLEM THEATRE.....TONY PASTOR'S, the HARLEM OLYMPIC and all the down town vaudevilles had their usual brisk business and attractive programmes.....At the AMBERG, German comedy and opera alternated as the week's bills. Carl Streitmann sang in "Clover" part of the week. Night of 1 Paula Loewe appeared in "The Novice" for the first time. In its original form it is "Die Novize," a musical comedy by Frederic Zell, the music by Wilhelm Rab, and this was its first time in America. It scored a large degree of success, Paula Loewe carrying off the honors. Elsewhere we give the plot and the cast.....Anton Seidl's Orchestra remained the attraction at the big MADISON SQUARE GARDEN AMPHITHEATRE.....At the EDEN MUSEE, night of Oct. 1, Carolina Otero, a Spanish character dancer, made her American debut before a crowded and enthusiastic audience. She is a singer as well as a dancer, and she began by singing two or three Spanish songs, to the evident pleasure of the audience. She was extremely nervous, but the audience received her most kindly, and more flowers were handed up to her than she could carry. When she had left the stage, her little orchestra played some selections, and one of the men gave a grotesque dance, accompanying himself with the tambourine, and a repetition of it was required. After more music from the mandolins and guitars, Senorita Otero appeared again in a typical Spanish costume, and gave some of the dances by which she has won her fame at home. They would not be easy to describe, for they were quite unlike anything that is familiar here; but the dancer was recalled again and again, and flowers were thrown to her from the galleries, till the stage had to be swept, in order that the dancing could go on. In one of the dances, perhaps the prettiest of all, one of the young men joined, and all were accompanied by the music of the mandolins and by clapping of hands from the Spanish girls. Otero promises to rival Carmencita, we should say.

PROF. WORTH'S NEW MUSEUM is still dark, and the friends of the popular manager are also in the dark as to why Mayor Grant persistently refuses to grant a license to this new acquisition to our city pleasure resorts.

THERE is no decrease in the even success of "The County Fair" at the Union Square, where a change of play need hardly be looked for this season, from present indications.

THIS is the last week of Marie Tempest and "The Red Hussar" at Palmer's. The Jefferson-Florence Co. come Oct. 13, for a month. Miss Tempest and "The Red Hussar" Co. go to the Grand 13 and week. On 6 Birdie Irving, an English solo dancer, made her American debut at Palmer's. R. N. Dunbar, late of the McCaull Co., joins "The Red Hussar" this week.

DALY'S THEATRE opened its Fall and Winter season with its stock company, Tuesday night, Oct. 7, when Jerome K. Jerome's comedy, "New Lamps for Old," was acted for the first time in America. A synopsis of the plot appears on another page. A review of the performance, which is in progress as THE CLIPPER goes to press, is necessarily deferred until our next issue.

RICHARD MANSFIELD will vary the successful run of "Beau Brummell" at the Madison Square, by giving a special matinee, Oct. 8, of "Leabia" (its first in America) and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In "Leabia," Beatrice Cameron will appear.

THIS is the last week of "Mme. Angot" at the Casino. "Poor Jonathan" will be introduced to America Oct. 14 (Tuesday night), with Lillian Russell in the cast.

"THE SENATOR" continues prosperously at the Star, where W. H. Crane and his competent company have several months longer to stay. Georgie Drew Barrymore's ill health has compelled her to retire from Mr. Crane's support, and Hattie Russell has again taken the part of Mrs. Hillary.

THE ACTION of Frank W. Sanger against T. Henry French, for an accounting and division of the profits arising from exploiting "Little Lord Fauntleroy," is at last nearing an end, after a trial of more than a year in the courts. The summing up was begun Sept. 30, before Referee Daniel G. Robinson. Mr. Sanger brought the suit on the ground that he was a partner with Mr. French in touring "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Mr. French denies that there was any such partnership.

THE motion on behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth I. Rankin to have her husband, Arthur McKee Rankin, compelled to provide for the support of herself and their daughter, Phyllis Rankin, pending her suit for a separation, was argued Sept 30, before Justice Lawrence in Supreme Court, Chambers. Mr. Rankin put in an answer denying that he had abandoned his wife, and alleging that she had deserted him. He also denied that he was in as prosperous financial circumstances as Mrs. Rankin alleges, and declared that, in fact, he was $4,000 in debt. His property, he said, consisted of his interest in "The Canuck," and he owned no real estate at Spokane Falls worth $10,000, or indeed worth anything. Numerous letters were received by the Court, and others were rejected. Justice Lawrence will take further affidavits on the application.

KATE G. HENLEY is suing her husband, E. J. Henley, the actor, for an absolute divorce, in the Supreme Court. They were married April 24, 1884, and have no children. She is now at Chicago, and her attorney is prosecuting the divorce suit. Mr. Henley has not defended the suit, and on Oct. 2 Judge Dugro signed an order appointing Louis Steckler as referee, to take testimony in the case. It was announced from San Francisco some months ago that Mr. Henley had married May Hampton. Mr. Henley and Manager J. M. Hill have quarreled, and Mr. Henley has left Mr. Hill's company, in which he was rehearsing for the production of "Reckless Temple," on Oct. 27, at the Standard. Mr. Henley was under contract to appear with Mrs. Leslie Carter when he signed with Mr. Hill, and Manager Price has repeatedly threatened Mr. Henley with the law to compel him to play with Mrs. Carter. It is understood that Mr. Henley will avoid legal complications, and at the same time secure an engagement by keeping his contract with Mr. Price. Joseph Holland has been engaged to succeed Mr. Henley in the "Reckless Temple" Co.

HERRMANN'S THEATRE (late Dockstader's) will not be ready for occupancy until Oct. 11, after all. This is the third or fourth postponement of its inaugural. The Minnie Palmer Opera Co., who are to dedicate the reconstructed house, began their tour Sept. 30, at Trenton, N. J., in "Suzette," and will play on the road until Herrmann's is ready for them. A. W. F. MacCollin has been added to the company, which is being reorganized, we believe.

DORIS' EIGHTH AVENUE MUSEUM.—The season up to date is in a pecuniary sense far in adv

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—This popular resort is now riding on the topmost wave of prosperity, and not without just reason, too. The programmes of late have contained some of the strongest specialties on the vaudeville stage, yet the bookings for the week of Oct. 6 promise to eclipse all previous bills in potency and variety. Carmencita is, of course, retained as the chief entertainer. Her Spanish dance movements have found wide and instant favor, and next week she will have plausible excuse for the introduction of some new terpsichorean essays as the leading character in "The Dumb Girl of Seville," which replaces the present burlesque of "Mme. Angot." A decided novelty on the current bill was found in the first American appearance on Monday night, 6, of Marie Lloyd, an English serio comic of much repute. She scored a distinct hit. Miss Lloyd sings and dances exceptionally well, and was the recipient of many hearty encores. Her greatest success was made in the songs, "When You Want to See a Dance You Must Go to Paris, France," and "Then They Wink the Other Eye." In the former she neatly imitated different dances while she sang. Other new features were the Newcomb Trio, Zemori, Ali Bros., Hamlin and Hamlin, and the Alexandroff Bros.

LONDON THEATRE.—The management of this popular house has added another good one to the list of its attractions. Its full title is the Lester & Williams London Novelty and Gaiety Co., headed by the popular team it is named after. The company have made a successful tour of the Northwestern circuit, and came East in two big jumps to fill their engagement at the above theatre, and a profitable one it will undoubtedly be. The house on Monday night, Oct. 6, overflowed with an appreciative audience, who collected to greet the large list of well known performers on the programme, all of whom seemed to be favorites, and received much encouragement. The two act burlesque, "Me and Jack," with John West as Me and Matt Gallagher as Jack, has a very faint suggestion of plot, but does very well to introduce the specialties appropriately. The little favorite, Polly McDonald, as Wildrose, was as lively and chic as ever, and her acting, as well as her singing and dancing, captured the audience. The Washburn Sisters, with voices blended harmoniously, rendered several selections of merit. Sid. Euson and Anna Queen had a lively bout with the gloves in their act, "McAuliffe vs. Slavin," which found ready response from the pugilists in the audience. Englehart, the lady fencer, assisted by Misses Robinson and Kimball, gave an exhibition of skill in sword womanship with foils and broadswords, and kept the eyes of the spectators busy trying to follow their intricate attacks and guards. Next came Polly McDonald in her singing and dancing specialty, and, if possible, she raised the favorable opinion the audience had of this little lady. The first act was concluded with a medley by the company. Lester and Williams themselves opened the second division with some new songs and witticisms. The lightning delivery with which their songs are poured forth is astonishing. Burke and Forrest, as two servants aspiring to histrionic honors, presented a pleasing number of changes. Mr. Burke's trapeze act, assisted by a rope and pulley, being very humorous. The Washburn Sisters again appeared, this time in character songs and changes. Estrella Sylvia, the popular vocalist and graceful danseuse, received several recalls. Gallagher and West, with a discharge of jokes and conundrums, many of which were new, caused much laughter. Lew Carroll then gave his Dutch imitation, concluding with a burlesque on magic, which was received well. The burlesque was ended with a grand entry of the company and a medley of popular songs, led by Miss Sylvia. The executive staff of this company is: Lester & Williams, proprietors; F. S. Pierce and A. W. Showell, business managers; John West, stage manager; Harry Albert, musical director. Irwin Bros.' Big Show comes next week.

WINDSOR THEATRE.—Late comers were unable to gain admission Monday, Oct. 6, the house being filled before eight o'clock. Monroe & Rice's "My Aunt Bridget" is the attraction. Frank W. Holland has assumed the role of the coal dealer, vacated by Bernard Dyllyn. Otherwise the cast remains unchanged. Next week, "Money Mad."

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD" opened its third consecutive season in New York City Oct. 6, at the Academy, to a good sized, though not crowded, audience. Denman Thompson was in excellent form, and was greeted very cordially as Uncle Josh. His company this year is made up as follows: Geo. A. Beane, Walter Hale, Frank Thompson, J. L. Morgan, Frank Knapp, Mrs. Louise Morse, Annie Thompson, Lillian Stone, Celia Baker, Minnie Lackstone, Walter Lennox Sr., Gus Kammerlee, Frank Mara, Lena N. Jones, Harry Earle, Tom Law, C. M. Richardson, P. Redmond, Marie Kimball and others. Executive staff: Denman Thompson, proprietor and manager; E. A. McFarland, business manager; J. Van Dusen, treasurer; J. L. Morgan, stage manager; P. Redmond machinist; R. Van Dusen, property master. It is expected by the management that the familiar play will again receive its annual run at the Academy.

MINER'S BOWERY THEATRE.—The Vaidis Sisters' Novelty Co. opened their first city engagement this season at the Monday matinee, Oct. 6, to the largest day audience in the history of this house. At the night performances the house was also packed to the doors, and there is a good prospect that this company will make a new record for a week's receipts. The company, as now organized, contains many features familiar to our city's vaudevilles. There are also two specialties new to this city. Prime in prominence are Drummond and Stabley, two importations who made their American debut with this company at Boston, Sept. 1. Their act opens with a scene in a blacksmith shop, where the "Anvil Chorus" is given with pleasing effect. In a flash the scene is changed to a drawing room, wherein skilful playing on musical instruments is introduced, with an exhibition of some of the neatest clog dancing seen here in a long time. The act caught the audience in great shape, and the talented pair were accorded four encores. Eva Bell, from the London music halls, who also first appeared at Boston Sept. 1, sang several catchy songs, and at once installed herself a favorite. She has a dashing appearance, sings sweetly and dances neatly. Her turn was a success in every way, and the boys gave her their heartiest applause. Petrie and Elise, old time favorites at this house, opened the show with one of their popular sketches, full of fun and melody. Hanley and Jarvis did a familiar act of song and dance in an agile manner, followed by Eddie Giguere, who has the gift of four distinct singing voices in his throat, actually ranging from soprano to base. The audience seemed loth to lose their chance of hearing this remarkable voice (or voices), and he obligingly sang for them until he was thoroughly exhausted. Donovan and Albright then appeared in a laughable skit, entitled "Troubles in the Delaney Family," representing a bad boy and an Irish woman. It was new to the audience, and was one of the best things in the evening. The dialect of Mr. Donovan was perfect. The Braatz Bros., in an entirely new act of posturing and head balancing, showed how gracefully the most difficult feats of strength can be performed. Their act with the ascending and descending flights of stairs while balancing from head to head, is wonderful, and is the best yet seen here. Melville and Stetson rendered several new solos and duets, their voices blending sweetly. A. O. Duncan, the popular ventriloquist, with his talking heads, made his usual hit, and was followed by the stars of the evening, the wonderful Vaidis Sisters. Though their act had probably been witnessed scores of times by most of the audience, still it created a furor by its grace and daring. The mechanical features of the act, original with these ladies, have been improved upon, and the sisters introduce new features in their midair specialty, ending with the wonderful dive by one of the sisters from the dome of the house to the net. They left the stage amid the cheers of the audience. The closing number of the bill was the familiar method used to introduce a prominent pugilist in a setto. He Weir was the man on this occasion, and his three rounds with his younger brother, Hugh, was a scientific exhibition of the art of self defence. The executive staff of the company is: J. H. Allen & Co., proprietors; J. D. Hopkins manager; Chas. Claborne, representative; A. O. Duncan stage manager. Next week, a house company.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—Effie Elisler was cordially welcomed here Oct. 6 by a good house, notwithstanding the bad weather. The play was "The Governess," in which the star had appeared at this theatre early this year, when the piece was fully reviewed in these columns. The character of Zorah Warden, the governess, is exactly suited to this popular actress' emotional powers. We give the cast in full, some changes having occurred since the piece was first produced here: Jarvis Coulter, Frank Weston; Jack Rogers, Clifford Dempsey; Job Monckton, John A. Elisler; Adolphe Honore Segrist, Adolphe Lestina; Jimmy Needles, Joseph Wheelock Jr.; Mr. Jones, John A. Holland; Mr. Tate, Geo. S. Taylor; Sam, J. C. Churgon; Mrs. Hamilton, Lilian Hadley; Chrissy Rogers, Lillian Daly; Helen Talbot, Louis Porter; Lenny, Little Rene; Zorah Warden, Effie Elisler. Executive staff—W. C. Elisler, treasurer; Branch O'Brien, advance. Next week, 'My Jack."

THE annual meeting of the Treasurers' Club of America was held at the office of Walter Damrosch, at the Metropolitan Opera House, Oct. 5. The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follow: President, E. S. King, of the Casino; vice president, S. J. Thompson, Metropolitan Opera House; secretary, Edward C. Neilson (re elected), Star Theatre; treasurer, Max Hirsch (re elected), Metropolitan; governors—Ed. J. Rice, Standard; William Gavin, Garden Theatre; Edward J. Gillett, Herrmann's, and W. W. Walters, the People's. Every theatre in the city was represented.

GAIETY MUSEUM.—Business the past week was extraordinarily large. Good attractions always draw big crowds, and Manager Bernstein is determined to give patrons a fine list of people each week. Curio halls—The Aztecs, Maia (Albino), Venetian Troubadours, Master Akers (Snake charmer). Wassiwa (Indian Princess) and Campbell's Punch and Judy, together with numerous wax figures. Stage—J. W. Macready, supported by the stock, in "One of the People."

H. R. JACOBS' THEATRE.—"Fabio Romani," Chas. W. Chase's dramatization of Marie Correlli's novel, "The Vendetta," was seen for the first time in New York at the above house Oct. 6, by a good sized audience. It is of that class of plays well suited to Mr. Jacobs' patrons, who were not slow to perceive its merits. The play was originally acted at Elgin, Ill., Aug. 29, 1889. It is not the first dramatization of that novel. "Count Claudio," by Robert L. Downing (done at Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2, 1889), and "The Vendetta," by W. A. Whitecar (acted at Concord, N. H., June 12, 1889), are from the same source. As presented at Jacobs', the piece contains many thrilling situations and displays some beautiful scenery, especially in the first and last acts, representing the City of Naples with its magnificent bay. In the last act the same picture is presented, with the addition of Mount Vesuvius in active eruption, accompanied by the roar of an earthquake and the crumbling of buildings. It is, indeed, an effective picture. With these auxiliaries and a strong cast, 'Fabio Romani" should prove a money maker for Manager Aiden Benedict. Walter Lawrence, in the title role (as Horatio Appleby he also played Gaspero Pontremolo, the thug); John Fay Palmer as Guido Ferrari, Geo. C. Denton as Pietro and Addie Farwell as Mother Biscardi were excellent, and did some clever acting; while Frances Field, as Nina, the false wife, was as near perfection as possible, without being a reality. One could easily imagine he saw a woman who cared nothing for man's love, but who delighted in the possession of gold and jewels, false as the most captivating siren, and ever willing to throw womanly virtue to the winds for a new lover, capable of gratifying her desire for jewels. Her acting was perfect, and when bereft of her reason in the last act, while in the mausoleum of the Romnia family, her pleadings were pitiful. This was the finest piece of acting during the play, and gave to both Miss Field and Mr. Lawrence an opportunity to display their fullest ability. Miss Field's emotion and Mr. Lawrence's portrayal of a man whose idol had proved false and whose sole desire was the worst kind of revenge, called for numerous outbursts of applause. The cast: Fabio Romani, Conte Cesare Oliva, Walter Lawrence; Guido Ferrari, John Fay Palmer; Respetti, Chas. L. Farwell; Fra Antonio, F. Bernard; Gasparo Pontremolo, Horatio Appleby; Francisco Gualdro, T. R. Hamblin; Pietro, Geo. C. Denton; Vincenzo Flamma, Chas. Ashley; Piavano, Harry Linton; Mother Biscardi, Addie Farwell; Lilla, Belle Mortimer; Nina, Frances Field. Next week, N. S. Wood, in 'Out in the Street."

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.—Louis Aldrich made his first appearance this season in a downtown theatre Oct. 6, at the above house, to a good sized audience, who enjoyed every good point brought out in "The Editor." The cast: Col. John Hawkins, Louis Aldrich; Sir Montague Mopu, Alexis Markham; Stephen Morton, William Lee; William Barrington, L. R. Willard; Clinton Barrington, A. W. Nichols; Ruby, P. J. Reynolds; Tim, Frank B. Hatch; Josephine Jeffries, Dora Goldthwaite; Ellen Barrington, Grace Huntington; Laura Hawkins, May Haines; Pat ie, Marie Dorman. Next week, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal make their American reappearance. The Hon John L. Wheeler gave an illustrated lecture 5

BIJOU THEATRE.—"The City Directory," revised and presented by Russell's Comedians, afforded two hours and a half of solid, unadulterated enjoyment here night of Oct. 6, to an audience that completely filled the theatre. The visitors were largely composed of those who had not forgotten how agreeably they had been entertained during the former appearance of the company at this house. They came prepared to extend a cordial greeting to old friends and favorites, which they did enthusiastically, emphasizing their welcome in individual cases with handsome floral offerings. Some changes have been made in the cast, and the piece was presented by the following people: Charlie Reed, William Collier, Ignacio Martinetti, William F. Mack, Burt Haverly, Charles V. Seaman, Josie Sadler, Flora Irwin, May Irwin, Rosa France, Bessie Cleveland, May Kelso, Lillian Rivers, Amelia Glover, Alf. Hampton and Joseph Jackson. The changes have not detracted from the strength of the organization, who gave a most enjoyable performance, brightened with fresh songs and witticisms and bubbling over with sparkling fun. Charlie Reed, in his various disguises as the detective, convulsed his auditors with laughter. W. Collier, as the mouldy stage manager, was as dryly humorous as ever, and the other old members of the company tightened their hold upon the affections of former admirers, while the clever Irwin Sisters, in their solos and duets, achieved a certain success. The dancing of pretty, agile and graceful Amelia Glover, especially in the closing act, when the little lady indulges in some remarkable high kicking, fairly took the house by storm, and gained for her several enthusiastic recalls. "The City Directory" may be depended upon to attract full houses to the cosy Bijou during the ensuing four weeks.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—A band of twelve Moorish and Bedouin Arabs formed the chief feature on the bill for the week commencing Oct. 6. The troupe performed some wonderful acrobatic and tumbling feats, and added variety and zest to their entertainment by a Moorish mock marriage feast and school. Their efforts were thoroughly appreciated by a good sized house. A notable event was the return to the vaudeville stage of pretty and vivacious Lizzie Derious Daly, who was warmly greeted in her capital singing and dancing specialty. Billy Birch and A. C. Moreland kept their hearers in a continual roar of laughter. Till's Marionettes were encored again and again and A. C. Moore was well received in his several character sketches. The latter is an English performer and the occasion marked his first American appearance. Mlle. Garetta, with her aviary of educated birds and troupe of performing dogs, was highly entertaining, and Robert Bellor, Japanese juggler, assisted by Mlle. Aouda, proved decidedly interesting. Prof. H. J. Campbell concluded the splendid programme with a very accentable illustrated lecture, entitled "A Trip Around the World." Next week, Reilly & Woods' Specialty Co.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.—A large and enthusiastic audience witnessed the first production on any stage, Monday night, Oct. 6, of "Blue Jeans," a sensational comedy drama by Joseph Arthur (author of "The Still Alarm"). The play derives its title from a rural district of that name in Indiana, where the author was born and reared, and is a true and pleasing picture of village life. In fact, it is just what the programme designates it to be. It is a comedy drama in every sense of the word, and an intensely sensational one, besides. From its first scene onward "Blue Jeans" was an instant and unqualified success, and Mr. Arthur has added to his achievements one that will doubtless hold public favor long and profitably. The theme in some respects is a rather ordinary one, but it is so deftly handled so interwoven with pleasant incidents, so relieved by quaint characters and so enhanced by bright dialogue that its interesting quality is forgotten, if not fully forgiven. In a word, "Blue Jeans" is an unusually splendid conception. Its humor is always agreable and clean, and its several character sketches are vigorous, clear and natural. The plot presents a proper balance of joy and pathos, fun and philosophy, industrial light and political shade. A detail of the story is deferred until our next issue. The cast was remarkable for individual ability. Jennie Yeamans, charming and graceful as ever, created the role of June—a city foundling reared by country folks, and afterwards the wife of a prosperous New York settler in the West—with superb naivete and quiet womanliness. She developed the emotional elements with fine perception, and her spicy treatment of the comedy touches was thoroughly delicious. Her success was immediate and true. Indeed, her exemplification of the power of woman's love and faithfulness was a masterpiece. Robert Hilliard enacted the part of a New York adventurer with consummate art. He made a charming lover and a manly husband. He was strongest in those scenes where the trials of adversity beset him. The inward impulses of a loyal mind and an honest heart were indelibly stamped upon his work, and brought out his best energies. Judith Berolde, as a wronged gypsy girl and a zealous schemer, displayed uncommon fire and passion. Her delineation of woman's love and hate, wit and sarcasm was excellent, and in the first act she executed some splendid dance movements with all the hitheness and abandon of a country maiden. George Fawcett gave a capital representation of a disappointed bucolic swain, brutal and fierce at one moment, humble and forgiving in the next. George D. Chaplin was a typical Hoosier politician rotund in form, jovial in manner, liberal in dialogue, and with an eye to the main chance always. Jacques Kruger, who reappeared on the New York stage after a long absence, gave an agreeable representation of a minstrel, who in the guise of a minister, deceives his simple parents as to his vocation. He was creditably assisted in his essay by Laura Burt, as his sister, who had also adopted the stage without the knowledge of her home folks. The other members of the company were evenly good and acceptable. The scenic features, accessories and situations in "Blue Jeans" were unusually real and sensational. They comprised a horse, a young bullock, a flock of pigeons, a genuine barn, real smoke from a brick chimney, the shaking of foliage from a fruit tree, a village band, the undressing of a baby, a barbecue festival, and—last, but not least—a real saw mill in full operation. The latter scene was intensely thrilling and realistic. The placing of the body of the proprietor by one of his employes on the carriage in front of a rapidly revolving buzz saw and the daring rescue of the victim by his wife, proved one of the most startling climaxes ever seen on the contemporaneous stage. The crowded audience, when relieved of the thrilling strain of the moment, bestowed abundant approval upon this very daring essay in stage craft. Hearty appreciation was also accorded the exactness and natural effects of the rural pictures. The latter, by the way, were gems of lovely landscape, the surroundings and perspectives being absolutely perfect. Author Arthur, Artist Emens and Stage Director Teal were the recipients of curtain calls. The first named, in response to an urgent demand for a speech at his second appearance, briefly, feelingly, expressed his thanks to the spectators. Incidentally, the Columbia Quartet rendered some choice songs. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, and the costumes and appointments were elegant and elaborate when occasion required. The complete cast: Perry Bascom, Robert Hilliard; Col. Henry Clay Risener, Geo. D. Chaplin; Ben Boone, George Fawcett; Jacob Tutewiler, J. J. Wallace; Jim Tutewiler, Jacques Kruger; Isaac Hankins, W. J. Wheeler; Seth Igoe, Ben Deane; June, Jennie Yeamans; Sue Eudaly, Judith Berolde; Cindy Tutewiler, Alice Leigh; Samantha Hankins, Marion Strickland; Neil Tutewiler (Belcena Kicker), Laura Burt. The supplementary people included the Columbia Quartet—F. M. Berrian, Albert E. Caldwell, F. S. Winthrop, Geo. L. Leeds, T. Walker; J. J. Marcy, Annie E. Williams, Ada Chester, Bertha Dowling, Edith Raymond, Ida Wagner and Ida Francis. "Blue Jeans" will remain until Nov. 10—and probably longer.

PRIMROSE & WEST'S MINSTRELS attracted a very large attendance at the Grand Opera House Oct. 6, when they commenced an engagement limited to one week, their first in New York this season. Twenty five performers, handsomely costumed, appeared in the first part, when all except the eight end men were in white faces. The opening end men were Janson, Waldron, Martin and Swift, bones, and Powers, Queen Smith and Chase, tambos, with Joseph Natus interlocutor. Lew Dockstader and Geo. H. Primrose afterwards appeared on the ends, with Wm. H. West interlocutor. Mr. Dockstader was warmly welcomed, and responded with a few remarks, thanking his auditors. The first part included the enjoyable vocalization of Joseph Natus, John H. Davis, Fred Oakland and J. P. Sullivan, droll songs and sayings by John Queen, Melville Jansen and Lew Dockstader, together with a clever banjo solo by George Powers, specialty songs and dances by Mr. Primrose, W. H. Smith, George Powers and Dan Waldron opened the olio with an amusing sketch, "Fun-O Graph," followed by Cain and Loreno, whose clever and grotesque acrobatic act, concluded by evolutions on the trapeze, earned plenty of applause and laughter. Messrs Janson, Primrose, Powers and Queen caused much amusement in the sketch, "Log Cabin Neighbors." Mr. Dockstader displayed quaint drollery in his familiar specialty, "Miserere." The "March of the Imperials," fifteen in number, led by W. H. West, proved a very attractive feature, and their graceful and artistic evolutions received hearty approval. Swift and Chase elicited much laughter in their musical eccentricities, and the Big Four—Smith, Waldron, Martin and Daly—were received with shouts of laughter in the pantomime, "A Horrible Night," that brought the performance to a close. Next week, "The Red Hussar."

"SUNSET," a one act play by J. K. Jerome, was performed for the first time in New York Oct. 6, when it was done as a curtain raiser for "Dr. Bill" at the new Garden Theatre. On another page we give its plot, and tell of its source and its foreign production. The cast: Lois, Sadie Martinot; Joan, Isabelle Evesson; Aunt Drusilla, Mrs. Louisa Eldridge; Lawrence, W. G. Reynier; Azariale, J. B. Polk; Mr. Rivers, George Becks. It met with a fair degree of success, though it sadly needs revision in its opening scene. Mr. Polk, Miss Martinot and Mrs. Eldridge are to be commended for effective acting.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—A very large and brilliant audience welcomed the American reappearance of Agnes Huntington at this theatre Oct. 6. The occasion was indeed notable. Robert Planquette's comic opera, "Paul Jones," was then sung for the first time in this country, a number of English performers made their debut here, and Miss Huntington for the first time came before a New York public in light opera. She was last seen in this country with the Boston Ideals, and before then had sung in concerts here. This was the cast of "Paul Jones:" Paul Jones, Agnes Huntington; Rufino de Martines, Karl Mora; Bicoquet, Eric Thorne; Don Trocadero, Herve D'Egville; Kestrel, Winslow Walters; Boullabaisse, Hallen Moysten; Petit Pierre, Albert James; First Lieutenant, George Preston; Chopinette, Fanny Wentworth; Malaguena, Millie Marsden; Yvonne, Marguerite Van Breydell. Executive staff—Managers, Mayer, Abud & Bashford; business manager, Ben Stern; acting manager, Chas. N. Schroeder; leader and director A. J. Goldicott. On another page we tell the story of "Paul Jones," and give the record of its various foreign performances. In London Miss Huntington sang the title role continuously several hundred nights. The success she achieved there will be duplicated in this country, beyond a doubt, though she will not be able to stay so long. Her rich contralto voice, her handsome face and perfectly moulded form combine to make her an ideal impersonator of the comic opera hero. Of the company, all save Fanny Wentworth made their American debut. Mr. Thorne, Mr. Moysten and Mr. James are clever comedians, and will become popular here in time. Miss Van Breydill sang excellently, but acted rather amateurishly. The choruses were large and well drilled, and the dance movements were as good as any we have seen in many a month. A shepherd's dance in the second act deserves special commendation. John H. Young painted new and picturesque scenery for the production, and the costumes were notably elegant and in good taste. Miss Huntington was repeatedly called before the curtain. The music of M. Planquette does not by any means equal his work in "The Chimes of Normandy," but there are half a dozen solos and concerted numbers of striking gracefulness, which carry the opera far towards its success. The libretto of H. B. Farnie is as stupid and as dull as most of Mr. Farnie's latter day books. Miss Huntington's engagement at the Broadway can only extend to Nov. 8. Mrs. Leslie Carter's debut follows 10.

Harlem.—Hammerstein's new Columbus Theatre failed to open Oct. 6, as announced. The Fire Department would not report favorably on the house, and the Mayor could not grant a license. Nearly the entire house was sold, and the money was either refunded or the tickets exchanged for another night. Margaret Mather was to have been the opening star, but it is doubtful if Mr. Hammerstein will get his license in time to open this week.

HARLEM THEATRE.—"True Irish Hearts" did an immense business last week, and has been booked for a return. Kennedy and Williams had out the "S. R. O." sign Oct. 6, and the prospects are good for big business. "Peck's Bad Boy" next week.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—Nicely shaped women in gaudy costumes always draw big at this house. Bryant & Saville's Burlesque Co. did a good business last week. Weber & Fields' Co. opened to a tip top house 6. Next week Lester & Williams' Co.

HARLEM MUSEUM.—Manager Toovey and his able assistant, Ed. C. Smith, are doing everything possible to please their patrons, and that they succeed is shown by the crowds always in attendance. This week's bill: Curio hall—Prof. Milton and Miss Afres, the Turtle Boy, Andy Gaffney, Sig. Russell, Prof. H. Eyre, Genello, the Two Van Raltes, Mme. Zoe Yura Thos. E. Eddy's collection of curiosities and a Punch and Judy. J. Frank Stanley is now the lecturer. Stage—Fred and Jennie Mackley, John C Cullivan, Edwin F. Armand and Gus T. Raymond. John Sanders and Rena Sanders, Jessie Smith-Carl and Geo. Williams. The Reed Family were here last week. I omitted them in my report, by accident.

DORIS' MUSEUM.—Manager Doris cannot complain of poor business. The house is holding its own very well. This week's bill: Curio hall—The Rosmunich Family, Irene Seymour (tattooed lady), Mora (juggler), a Byronic beauty, Harry Allen's Punch and Judy, the Russian bears with their trainers. Stage—The Unique Quartet, Campbell and Kenny, N. Evans, Kittie Randolph and Madden and Callahan.

NEW YORK STATE.

Brooklyn.—While the business of last week was large in the aggregate, patronage was very unevenly distributed. The attractions for the current week are of average strength and of varied character, though, in the Western District, variety has the call by a large majority, the Grand Opera House being the only theatre presenting the "legitimate." Though handicapped by very unfavorable weather, the various openings, Oct. 6, were of more than favorable size, giving promise of a good week's business.

PARK THEATRE.—Variety holds the boards this week, being administered in allopathic doses by the Boston Howard Athenæum Co. As the personnel of the company bearing this title is the cream of the profession, I need hardly say that the first performance, 6, was seen by a large audience. As Brooklyn goes strong on variety, especially when good, the books of the week will show a nice balance on the right side. "The Henrietta" raked in shekels last week to a degree convincing to Stuart Robson that he has a "cinch" on the regard of Brooklyn theatregoers. Next week, "The Prince and the Pauper," with Rose Leslie as the star.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—"The Mask of Life" opened at this house, 6, being presented by the company lately seen in New York. The audience greeting it was of good size. "Two Old Cronies" cut up their capers for the last time 4, closing a good week. Maggie Mitchell comes 13.

HOLMES' STAR THEATRE.—Manager Holmes' intention is to intersperse variety during the season, and this week gives us the first in tailment. The Nelsons' Great World Co., strengthened for the occasion, opened 6 to good business. The company, as at present organized, comprises, besides the Nelsons, Conroy and Mack, the Hennessy Topack and Steele, Roach and Castleton, McBride and Goodrich, Harry E. Pike, Fred Roberts, Al. H. Wilson, Mlle. Forgardus and La Belle Adele. "A Dark Secret" closed 4, having played a week to decidedly topheavy business. "Held by the Enemy" 13.

HUBER & GERHARDT'S CASINO.—This week's people are Harland and Kollinson, Froehlich and Neumann, Rob. A. Kelly, Jamie Carroll, S. J. Robinson and Minnie Schult.

FULTON MUSEUM AND THEATRE.—This new holder for public patronage, giving several performances a day, presents as this week's change of bill Leonard and Hart, McGloin and Lucille, Lillian Bretting and Prof. R. H. Mohr.

BENNETT'S CASINO.—Situated in the Twenty-sixth Ward, formerly East New York, this re-sort has established itself in public favor. Programme for the week: The Four Clovers, the Silbons, Walter Hyde H. King, Ma Bickingham and the International Lady Orchestra. Sacred concerts are given on Sunday.

AMPHION.—Tommy Russell, in "The Prince and the Pauper," faced a large audience 6. He is supported by an able company, and was liberally applauded. Lewis Morrison played to good business week ending 4.

LEE AVENUE ACADEMY.—The McCaull Opera Co. opened here to a good house 6. During the fore part of the week they will be heard in "The Seven Suabians," and the remainder of the week will be devoted to "Nanon." "Natural Gas" comes 13.

PROCTOR'S.—"Erma the Elf" opened 6 to a large house, "The Fugitive" did a fair business last week. McCaffrey & Dempsey's Co. come 13.

LYCEUM.—Dan Mason in "A Clean Sweep" is the change this week. It was well received night of 6. "Eagle's Nest" 13.

GRAND.—This will be another week of vaudevilles. It is the first appearance at this house of Gillett's World on Wheels. They were welcomed 6 by a big house. Last week's business was good. Next week, Weber & Fields' Co.

NOTES.—Peter Morrison, a roofer, was killed Sept. 30 by falling from the roof of Hyde & Behman's New Theatre.....Edward Harrigan will begin an engagement at the Academy of Music 20.....Work is nearing completion on Hyde & Behman's New Theatre, but is yet at a standstill at Herrmann's, no move toward resumption being apparent.

Buffalo.—At the Star Theatre, Hanlons' "Superba" is to be seen all this week. The Boston Ideals Oct 13-15, "The Corsair" 16-18. The Madison Square Co. rather had the best of it last week, and another winning score must be chronicled for the new playhouse.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Marie Wainwright began a half week's stay 6. Sol Smith Russell presents "A Poor Relation" the balance of week. Conreid's Opera Co. 13-15, "The Editor" 16-18. "Old Jed Prouty" departed well satisfied, and "The Wife" was liberally patronized.

CORINNE LYCEUM.—"Devil's Mine" this week. Dowling and Hasson next week. The curtain went up before large audiences at "Held by the Enemy" last week. Manager Jacobs looked in 3, and seemed gratified.

H. R. JACOBS' COURT STREET THEATRE.—The London Gaiety Girls this week. Next week, the American Stars. Williams & Orr's Co. closed an excellent week 4.

WONDERLAND MUSEUM AND THEATRE.—In the Muse this week: Stahrl (slither player), Austin (dislocator), Musical Carson, Thompson (blind whittler) and the Parisian allusion, "Aphrodite." Stage—Stella Madella, Mathew and Bulger, the Montalieus and Macargo and Alto. The attendance is heavy. Frank Hall, who has been at the head of the stock at this house since its opening, over a year ago, and has also acted as stage manager, has been compelled to resign, and will depart this week for the Sandwich Islands via Southern California, owing to lung troubles. The management benefitted Mr. Hall afternoon of 2, and on 4 he was presented by his associates with a gold badge with an elk inscription.

NOTES.—Manager Louis Levi, of the Star, has returned from a three weeks' vacation in the East.....Harry Evarts Jr., by guardian, recovered a verdict of $5,336 against the United States Mutual Accident Association in the Supreme Court 2. His father was known as the "Little Giant Orator" in museums and with Forepaugh's Circus, and was killed in an accident on the Grand Trunk R. R. in Canada a year or two ago.....Annie Winters, in "Galatea," was warmly received at Concert Hall 30.

Rochester.—Business last week at the different houses was generally satisfactory. At the Lyceum, "U and I" did a fair business the first three nights. The Boston Ideals presented "Fauvette" the last half of the week to good business. The Trans-Atlantique Novelty Co. at the new Grand Opera House did a large business the entire week. Sheridan & Flynn's Co. at Jacobs' Academy did satisfactory business.

LYCEUM.—Sol Smith Russell Oct. 6-8, Marie Wainwright 9-11.

NEW GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The Rentz Santley Co. this week. Week of Oct. 13 Valdis Sisters' Co.

H. R. JACOBS' ACADEMY has "Amina, or the Shah's Bride," the first half of this week, Rice's World's Fair Minstrels the last half. Week of 13, "The Mask of Life."

Syracuse.—At H. R. Jacobs' Opera House, Oct. 6, 7, 8, Sheridan & Flynn's Co.; 10, 11, "Amina." "One of the Bravest" and "The Devil's Mine" divided the past week, to fair business.

WIETING OPERA HOUSE.—Due 8, Stuart Robson; 10, Boston Ideals. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" drew large houses 2, 3, 4. Fisher's "A Cold Day" Co. come 11.

STANDARD THEATRE.—Due 6 and week, Grieves' Burlesque Co. Business was good last week, with a house company.

Troy.—At the Griswold Opera House, "The Corsair" comes Oct. 6, 7, Boston Ideal Opera Co. 8, 9, Muldoon and Kilrain in "The Winning Hand" 10, Joseph Murphy 11. McKee Rankin's "Canuck" pleased many Sept. 29, 30, as did Primrose & West's Minstrels Oct. 1, 2 and "Held by the Enemy" 3, 4.

RAND'S OPERA HOUSE.—"Natural Gas" 6, 7, 8, Gilmore's "The Sea King" 9, 10, 11. The only performances last week were "Little Lord Fauntleroy" (Gertie Homan) Sept. 29, and Gorman's Minstrels 30, but to good business. During the latter show John Hyams, baritone, a Trojan, was presented with a gold headed cane by John Gorman, on behalf of some of Mr. Hyams' Troy friends. Louis Aldrich 13, 14.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Bryant & Saville's Burlesque Co. 6 and week. The house company did a good business week ending 4.

Albany.—Hanlons' "Superba" was given its initial presentation at Bleecker Hall Oct. 1, and drew big audiences the balance of the week. [The plot appears on another page.—ED. CLIPPER.] There is great opportunity for spectacular effects. Throughout, the changes are new, and the scenery, painted principally by Walter Burridge, C. H. Ritter and C. H. Witham, is above the average and wonderfully realistic. The work of George D. Melville has received the highest commendation. His pantomime is finished and very popular. Marie Cahill, as Nora, Mildred Holland as Wallalla and Maud Midgley as Superba won laurels for their earnest work. A clever musical turn is performd by Charles Coole an I wife in the last act.

PROCTOR'S.—"Amina, the Shah's Bride," and McKee Rankin divided the past week to good business. The Boston Ideals come Oct 6, 7, Joseph Murphy 8, "Natural Gas" 9, 10.

JACOBS' OPERA HOUSE.—Herrmann drew large audiences the first half of last week, as did Primrose & West's Minstrels the latter half. "The Sea King" comes 6-8, Sheridan & Flynn's Co. 9-11.

BARRY'S GAIETY.—"The Night Owls" 6-11, the Rentz-Santley Co. 13-18.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.—Last week was one of fair prosperity for local managers. The current week should show improvement, as the bill of fare presents at least half a dozen novelties, all of which come with considerable prestige won in other cities, and in the regular order of things, are, therefore, almost certain to do well here.

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE.—The local debut of the De Wolf Hopper Opera Co. in "Castles In the Air" was an interesting event Oct. 6. A solid week of tightly jammed houses was concluded 4 by Aug. Daly's Co. Oct. 27, Fanny Davenport; Nov. 3, "The Red Hussar."

CHESTNUT STREET THEATRE. The second week of "A Texas Steer," which has scored a local hit with large audiences, opened Oct. 6. Due 13, James O'Neill; 20, Cora Tanner; 27, Richard Mansfield.

BROAD STREET THEATRE.—The Madison Square Theatre Co. started 6 for two weeks, presenting "Aunt Jack" for the first time here. Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Co. wound up their two weeks' stay 4, which were marked by patronage of unusual quantity and quality. Due 20, Julia Marlowe.

PARK THEATRE.—The Amberg Opera Co. appeared 6 for a week to fill the time originally alloted to "Overlook." "The Pearl of Pekin" secured fair prosperity last week. Due: 13, Margaret Mather; 20, "The Prince and the Pauper."

WALNUT STREET THEATRE.—McKee Rankin gave 'The Canuck" its local production 6. Two weeks of large business were ended 4 by the Pauline Hall Opera Co. Due: 13, Joseph Murphy; 20, "Natural Gas;" 27, Lotta.

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—"The Bottom of the Sea" began a week 6. James T. Powers, in "A Straight Tip," found considerable encouragement in the warm reception accorded him by audiences of fair size. Due: 13, "The Millionaire;" 20, "Two Old Cronies."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Louis Morrison's "Faust" was seen 6. The McCaull Opera Co. in "The Seven Suablans" occupied the house last week with good results. Due: 13, "The Flying Scud," for two weeks; 27, Amberg Opera Co.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—C. T. Ellis started a fortnight 6, "My Aunt Bridget" turned people away nearly every night for the past two weeks. Due: 13, Corinne; 20, "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands."

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—John A. Stevens was treated to large audiences last week. Due: 13, "Raglan's Way;" 20, "The Millionaire."

FOREPAUGH'S THEATRE.—M. A. Scanlan introduced "Neil Argyle" to Manager Forepaugh's patrons 6. Harry Webner's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" drew goodly numbers last week. Due: 13, Sheffer & Blakeley's Vaudeville Co.; 20, "The Two Orphans."

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lester & Allen's Co. started a week 6. George A. Baker's Opera Co. finished two weeks of fair receipts 4. Due: 13, Gowongo Mohawk; 20, H. T. Chanfrau.

KENSINGTON THEATRE.—"True Irish Hearts" appeared 6 for a week. The London Specialty Co. was moderately well patronized last week. 13, Geo. A. Baker's Opera Co.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Frank E. McNish, heading a house company, opened 6. The roster: Bryant and Richmond, Le Clair, Leslie and even excel in America, the Parisian presentation..... There is not the slightest foundation for a rumor which obtained considerable prevalence in theatrical circles last week, to the effect that Phil A. Shea, the genial and popular treasurer of the Tremont, was to be superseded at that house. Certainly Abbey & Schoeffel, nor Business Manager Childs know of no such change to be made, and, if such was intended, it is reasonable to suppose that they would be liable to have some knowledge thereof.

Lawrence.—At the Opera House Sept. 29, Thos. E. Murray, in "A Silent Partner." Thatcher's Minstrels played a return engagement 30 to a good house. "The Two Sisters" had a big house Oct. 10. Joseph Murphy had one of the biggest houses of the season 2. Lotta was well billed 3, but Manager Grant deemed it advisable to cancel, owing to a big River Carnival. She will appear later in the season. "The Social Session" has a good sale for 4. Coming: 8, "Aunt Jack;" 10, 11, "Shenandoah;" 20, "The Ivy Leaf;" 22, Annie Pixley; 24, 25, Annie Ward Tiffany..... At the Gayety Theatre, business is fair. Another change in management has taken place, Mr. Crapeau has sold his interest in the house and retired. Fred Diamond is now sole proprietor, and is ably assisted by his wife, Nellie Diamond. Bookings for 6: Shearer and Mantell, Prouty and Hafford, Sam Archer, John Mayer, H. E. Milliken and Fred and Nellie Diamond.....Lawrence Lodge of Elks, No. 65, received its charter 4.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago.—Considering the dearth of attractions, the past week has been a remarkable one, for all the theatres had not only large, but in several cases phenomenal, business. Only one novelty was presented—"A Fair Rebel," at the Haymarket. Indeed, this can hardly be called a novelty. It is a war comedy drama borrowing some fair ideas from "Shenandoah" and "Held by the Enemy," and presenting little that is original or meritorious. The opening, Sunday, was one of the most brilliant of the season. The troubles at the Kelly & Leon's Minstrel Theatre have culminated in the ousting of Francis Leon from the management, and Spencer & Fordham will attempt the feat of running the house. They had engaged Frank Cushman's Minstrels for the week, but Mr. Cushman, who had played there earlier in the season, regarded the venture as risky, and demanded salaries in advance. They were not forthcoming, and the engagement was declared off. Considerable scurrying around was done to get an attraction, but none could be secured in time, and the house remained closed until Saturday night. Le Narde's Galeties will fill in the present week.

HOOLEY'S.—J. K. Emmet played a profitable engagement, but at no time did he turn away people. Rosina Vokes comes Oct. 6.

GRAND.—Herrmann's Trans-Atlantique Vaudevilles had a decided falling off as compared with the first week. Tejero, the Spanish dancer, heralded as Carmencita's rival proved so unsatisfactory that her engagement was concluded and her place was filled by George H. Wood. Roland Reed opens Oct. 5.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—Rice's Surprise Party in "The World's Fair," in its second week, drew only fair houses. It is understood that Mr. Rice is hard at work upon it, and will improve Paul Potter's effort. Lawrence Barrett begins a two weeks' season Oct. 6.

AUDITORIUM.—The Duff Opera Co.'s third and last week was equal in point of receipts to the first two combined. The entire week was for the benefit of the Policemen's Benevolent Association, which took a share on each ticket sold by the police. Eduard Strauss' Vienna Orchestra come 9 for four concerts.

COLUMBIA.—Hallen and Hart, after playing a tremendous week on the West Side, did the biggest business of the past week on the South Side. The Hanlon-Volter and Martinetti Co. open Oct. 5.

HAYMARKET.—"A Fair Rebel" had excellent business the past week. Nellie McHenry comes Oct. 5.

ALHAMBRA.—"The Stowaway"—second consecutive week in Chicago—had crowded houses. Sunday night, people turned away. "Master and Man" Oct. 5.

HAVLIN'S.—Katie Emmett, after filling a successful week on the West and North Sides, came here and played one of the best engagements of the season. Several nights the standing room sign was displayed. Oct. 5, Kiralfy's "Around the World."

PEOPLE'S.—Jane Coombs had a fair week. "The Limited Mail" Oct. 5.

STANDARD.—"A Barrel of Money" played to average audiences. "Ole Olson" comes Oct. 5.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Manager Jacobs has had no cause for complaint. Madame and Augustin Neuville crowded the theatre nightly. Oct. 5, "Beacon Light."

LYCEUM.—Rose Hill's English Folly Co. filled Manager Grenier's pretty house at each performance. Week of 6, Whallen & Martell's Co.

CLARK STREET THEATRE.—"Lost in New York" attracted audiences that were in every way satisfactory to the management. Week of 5, P. F. Baker.

NEW WINDSOR.—Edwin F. Mayo had an excellent business. Eva Mountford Oct. 5.

CRITERION.—"The Hidden Hand" did well last week. The City Club Co. Oct. 6.

MADISON STREET THEATRE.—This name has again been adopted, as "Kelly & Leon's" does not suit the present management. It was closed last week. Oct 4, Le Narde's Galeties.

KOHL & MIDDLETON'S DIME MUSEUMS.—South Side—Typewriting contest. The Gaiety Skirt Dancers in Theatre No. 1, the Irwin Family and the Chapmans in Theatre No. 2, and in Theatre No. 3, the Big Four Co. West Side—Kil Kil, wrestling contest between a man and a bear, and Hamilton & Kelly's Meteors Specialty Co.

EPSTEAN'S DIME MUSEUM.—Mrs. Gen. Tom Thumb (Countess Magri) and her company of Lilliputians are the chief attractions. Millie Mazie (female Hercules) is still a strong card. Manager Epstean and wife are visiting in the Yellowstone Park.

EDEN MUSEE.—This place continues to do a large business. The attractions for the week are: Irwin (juggler and necromancer), the Kehoes (club swingers), the Gaiety Skirt Dancers and Mme. Rose's Juvenile Ballet. Paul Olah's Hungarian Orchestra gives concerts.

CLAT.—Little Tuesday, who was probably the strongest drawing of Herrmann's Trans-Atlantiques, left that organization Oct 4 and returned to New York. Marion Manola withdraws from the Duff Co. at the end of the present engagement, and returns East.....Next week will be a big one at the Haymarket, when John L. Sulli. van appears in "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands.".....The Madison Street Theatre advertises a burlesque on "The Clemenceau Case," in which a woman will display her seemingly nude charms, a la Sibyl Johnstone.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence.—Our managers report the past week's business quite satisfactory, although the celebration of the Cotton Centennial, which closed at Pawtucket Oct. 4, proved a strong counter attraction to local amusements, and at some of the theatres there was a marked fall. ing off from the usual good attendance, especially at the matinees. At the Providence Opera House, "Aunt Jack" pleased fair audiences Sept. 29, 30, Oct. 1. Prof. Herrmann followed 2, 3, but failed to draw large attendance He was booked for three nights, but canceled 4. At Keith's Gaiety, the Valdis Sisters' Novelty Co. played to large business. Nothing seems to affect the attendance at this house, which is in a great measure due to excellent management and the social attributes of Local Manager P. F. Connell. At Lothrop's Providence Museum, "The Strangers of Paris," with J. Gordon Edwards and Kate Glassford in the leading roles, and a fine specialty list crowded the house at nearly every performance. At the Westminster Theatre, variety was given to fair attendance.

PROVIDENCE OPERA HOUSE.—Lotta opened a week's engagement in "Ina" 6. "Musette" will be given 11. Aronson's Opera Co., in "Mme. Angot," 13, 14, 15.

KEITH'S GAIETY OPERA HOUSE.—Henshaw and Ten Broeck began a week in "The Nabobs" 6. Week of 13, "The Bottom of the Sea."

LOTHROP'S NEW PROVIDENCE MUSEUM.—Week of 6: H. Percy Weldon and Stella C. Ainsworth, in "Ranch 10," supplemented by a strong olio, introducing Billy and May Golden, the Three Days, Jerome, Morris Cronin, J. J. Fenton and Burnham and Phillips. Week of 13, J. Gordon Edwards and the stock, in "The Golden Giant."

WESTMINSTER THEATRE.—A house company billed as "Austin's Australian Novelty Co." began a week 6. The list includes Sablon, Howe and Doyle, Davene Bros., Kavoch Family, the Tissots, John B. Wills and May Adams, Martin and Selee, Alice Montague, Star Trio, Fitzgerald and Kelly, Steffeno Bros., Laura Lee and McAvoy and Allen. Week of 13, Sam Devere's Specialty Co. Col. Al. Cunningham continues to occupy the box office.

NOTES.—A new and commodious property room, adjoining the stage, is being built at the Providence Museum.....Mrs. J. Gordon Edwards (Edith Pollock) has been obliged to close her engagement with the Hardie & Von Leer Co., and is seriously ill at Boston..... Alex. Zanfretta and family passed 5 in town..... Manager Sam Dessauer, of the Westminster Theatre, complains that John Wills and May Adams, Britton and Ward and Lynch, booked for last week, disappointed without notice, putting him to great inconvenience .....Manager Geo. E. Lothrop met R. C. Taylor, of Worcester, Mass., and State Inspector of Public Buildings Dyson 4, when all the details concerning the plans, erection and lease of the new Taylor Opera House were arranged. Manager Lothrop was in town on that date, carrying a ten years' lease of the place in his pocket.....Manager B. F. Keith passed through the city 3, en route to Philadelphia, where he will be joined by Mrs. Keith this week, and proceed on an extended pleasure trip through the South.....Justin Paige closed with Lothrop's stock 4..... Managers Lewis & Wolf, of the Westminster Theatre, display on our streets a handsome new advertising wagon, drawn by a fine thoroughbred horse. It is an elegant turnout, and attracts much attention. On Sept. 30 Manager Dessauer and the members of the company playing at the Westminster, in five baronches, participated in the trades procession at the Pawtucket Cotton Centenary Manager B. F. Keith had also five handsome equipages in line..... Harry Callender, treasurer at the Providence Opera House, has recovered from a severe illness which confined him to his bed a greater portion of the time for the past two weeks..... Frank Monroe, property man at the Westminster, closed 4, and left for Philadelphia to join the Sheffer & Blakely Novelty Co.

NEBRASKA.

Omaha.—At Boyd's Opera House, Mattie Vickers comes Oct. 5, Alexander Salvini 6, 7, "The Hustler" 9-12, W. J. Scanlan 13, 14, 15, Barry and Fay 16, 17, 18, 19, Rose Coghlan 20, 21, 22, "The World's Fair" 23, 24, 25, Nellie McHenry played to good houses Sept. 28, 29, 30, Oct. 1. The Hess Opera Co. played to fair houses 2, 3, 4.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Agnes Herndon opens a three night engagement 12, Hubert Wilke 19, 20, 21, "Irishman's Love" 26-29. "Said Pasha" was presented to a good house Sept. 28. "The Fakir" had a fair house 29. The Lily Clay Co. appeared Oct. 2 to a crowded house.

May Demming, Grace Thurston, Jessie White, Belle Gordon, Zorena, Symonds, Hughes and Rastus, Maude Deuel, May Lewis, Nettie Sawin, Mable and Grace Wallace remain. Business is good.

VAUDEVILLES AND THE MINSTRELS.

MANAGER SAM T. JACK, after a series of solid successes with his Lilly Clay Colossal Gaiety Co. in Uncle Sam's broad domains, has decided to revolutionize things theatric in our sister republic just across the Southern border. He is now busily engaged in transferring his entire company of Lilly Clay Burlesquers to the City of Mexico, where the company will open their season Oct. 25. Manager Jack's brilliant coterie of comely women and lively dancers are sure to work pleasing havoc among the senors of the sunny clime, and the prospects for a long and prosperous tour are very encouraging. Manager Jack, however, does not allow the States to suffer for lack of a burlesque company under his able direction. His Creole Burlesque Co., under the management of E. H. Davis, are meeting with splendid results on the road, and their season is booked solidly up to next Summer.

F. P. STONE, of Stone & Shaw, the well known Boston firm of museum managers, will shortly visit Paris and other European cities, in search of attractions and novelties.

HARRY BOWER, aerialist, presented his wife, Nellie Bower, with a handsome diamond ring Sept. 29, at the World's Museum, Fort Wayne, Ind. Frank Turle, an English gymnast, will shortly join the Bowers. The trio will be known as the Three Bowers.

LIZZIE BOOTH presented her husband, Arthur Booth, of the Booths, with a handsome gold headed cane and silk umbrella Sept. 28, in honor of his twenty-second birthday.

THE following people appeared at the Standard Theatre, Port Townsend, Wash., week of Sept. 29: Harry Devere, Mullin and Morris, McCollum and Barrington, Saville and St. Clair, Hattie Wade, Ollie Leonard, Rose Harper and Billy Mack.

ED. LOGAN is incapacitated just now by a broken hand. He is resting in this city, but expects to resume work in a fortnight or so.

BONIFACE SHAW, of Baltimore, tendered the members of Weber & Fields' Specialty Co. a grand banquet at his hostelry in that city Oct. 3.

GEO. F. MCCANN, a well known song writer and comedian; Dave Murphy, comedian; Major Gorman, lightning drill artist, and Eddie Le'arre, acrobat, have been specially engaged by the Canadian Association Co., for the Exposition at St. John, N. B.

FRANK HENDERSON, known in the profession as Lucelle female impersonator, rejoins the Rider Burlesque Co., this week at Collinwood, Ind.

ZOLA AYERS, long haired woman and snake charmer, presented her husband, Jr. Hanson Craig, formerly known as Sir Marcus Goodwillie, "the heaviest man alive," with a girl baby last week at their home, Danville, Ind. The aggregate weight of this family of three is now said to be over half a ton, divided thusly: Father, 907lb; mother, 130lb; baby, 12lb. All are reported doing nicely.

FOLEY'S CASINO, this city, reports excellent business. The Lavinie Sister and Pearson and Barr are this week's people.

FRANK RICE has bought Mr. Roop's interest in the Casino, Newark, N. J., and is now the sole proprietor. He will shortly open it as a music hall.

FRANK MCNISH has signed to join Lester & Allen's Picked Stars Oct. 20.

LITTLE TUESDAY has left Herrmann's Trans-Atlantiques.

DELMORE AND WILSON have signed with Carneross' Minstrels at Philadelphia for the season. The team have resumed their black face specialty.

MANAGER JOSEPH H. ARTHUR, of Barlow Bros.' Minstrels, was presented by the members of that company with a magnificent gold chain and a heart shaped locket, set with diamonds, Oct. 4, at Tarentum, Pa.

CAL WEBB closed the season of his Southern Museum at Catskill, N. Y., Oct. 2.

JAMES MACK, female impersonator, is very ill with consumption at his home, Elyria, O.

WILL GAUGE, colored female impersonator with Richards & Pringle's Georgia Minstrels, was the recipient of a handsome dressing glass from his fellow members as a birthday token Sept 23.

BESSIE BONEHILL is meeting with unstinted favor in every city visited by Tony Pastor's Co. She is highly pleased with her enthusiastic reception on her first American tour. Last week she sang a new song in costume, entitled "Father Knickerbocker." It is said to be a great success, and is expected to prove a decieed go in this city when the company return from their travels, Oct. 27. Miss Bonehill is on the look out for some new and good song material for her metropolitan season.

UNDER THE WHITE TENTS.

ACTING INDIAN COMMISSIONER Belt, of Washington, D. C., has issued a letter of instructions to indian agents, in which he says that the Interior Department is informed that a company is preparing to obtain Indians from some of the reservations to join Wild West shows in Europe. The agents are instructed to refuse promptly any applications for this purpose, as it is now against the policy of the Department to grant permits for such purposes, under any circumstances whatever. The agents are further instructed to lay the matter before their respective tribes, and to advise them that if any of the Indians should hereafter attempt to leave their reservation for exhibition purposes, it will be regarded as an open defiance of the authority of the Government, and that prompt measures will be adopted to detain them. This action has been brought about by the numerous complaints of Indians who have been in Europe with Wild West shows.

CHAS. STINE, agent for Capt. Stubbs' Wild West, writes: "Edwin Elroy, manager of Capt. Stubbs' Wild West, is soon to marry Stella Stubbs, the captain's eldest daughter, one of the wealthiest and handsomest young ladies of Denver, Col. E. J. Gosney, late business manager of the Wonderland Muse and Theatre, Denver, now occupies the same position with Capt. Stubb's Wild West. We show at Eaton, O., Fair week, commencing Oct. 6."

CHAS. ANDRESS' GIFT SHOW will take the road this month.

ROSTER of Dr. M. Campbell's Umatilla Indian Medicine Co., No. 5: Newman and Moore, managers, Dr. R. Hazel, lecturer; John A. Newman, Harry A. Moore, Miss Eda Newman and John Rudolph, with the following Indians: Chief Blue Shield, Red Feather, Light Foot and Eagle Bear. They report good business in Northern Michigan.

THE CATHCARTS—Maurice and Jessie—are touring the South with the O'Brien, French & De Arley Railroad Circus. The team have signed with Dick Sutton's Circus for next season, joining in April.

JACOBS BROS.' TEXAS RANCH CO. came to grief at Paterson, N. J., recently. They went from Bowery Bay, L. I., to Newark, N. J., for four days. Here the people left the show for nonpayment of salaries. The next night John Jacobs attempted to give a hall show at Paterson with his trained ponies. The animals wouldn't work, and the audience resorted to the egg and tomato act. The next day Edna Gardner and a blacksmith from South Beach, S. I., put an attachment against the show, and the sheriff took charge of the twenty head of stock. During the night twelve of the horses were stolen, and the next day John and Henry Jacobs and Abe Johnson were missing. It is supposed they have gone across country to Texas, their home. The remaining eight horses are wild. They were to have been sold last week.

PROF. CHAS. E. GRIFFIN sends THE CLIPPER his book, "Traveling with a Circus." It is the first route book to reach us this season. It is a bright and newsy pamphlet of fifty nine pages, and contains, besides the most important happenings of a Summer's tour, some bright sketches, biographies of some of the principal people and a number of advertisements that are useful to show people.

AN ENJOYABLE affair occurred after the ring performance of the Whitney Family September 29, at Lapeer, Mich. A double wedding was announced to take place under the canvas. The groomsmen were Byron Killman and John McGoord, performers with the company. They marched in leading Mary Lumbar and Luella Wescott, the brides, to the centre of the ring, when the Rev. W. G. Stonax, in the presence of the company pronounced them men and wives, amid the congratulations of the crowd of witnesses. The newly wedded performers continue with the show.

WIRTH BROS.' WILD WEST reports good business in Australia. The show, under the care of Harry Wirth, arrived at Auckland Sept. 13. The show carries a 200ft. round top, with four 50ft. middle pieces for the Wild West and circus; a 120ft. museum tent, 90ft. horse tent, 90ft. and 80ft. dressing tents, four side show tents, 47ft. and 80ft. The spread of canvas for such an attraction looks like a city of white tents.

MME. CRAWFORD, a parachute jumper, attempted to give an exhibition at Dalassus, Mo., Sept. 29. The parachute would not work, and the lady fell to the ground, receiving severe injuries.

ZERA'S MUSEE closes its tenting season this month. Prof. Zera presented his wife with a costly pair of diamond earrings recently, the occasion being her birthday.

JAMES FORD has succeeded James Wilson as boss canvasman with Hunting's Circus. Thos. McGovern recently joined the show. Mlle. Lorretta presented Ricardo and Fritz, of this show, with new satin suits Sept. 25. Frank Conroy was entertained by the company 29.

THE ORRIN BROS.' CIRCUS, in Mexico, is achieving grand results. Another troupe of specialists and sawdust performers will sail from this port Nov. 8 for the City of Mexico, under engagement to that enterprising firm.

HENRY GREMMELS JR. and Flora Jane Elliott, of London, Eng., were married at Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 6. They are both trapeze performers with Barnum & Bailey's Circus.

LOTTA AND EDDIE MAGINLEY, aerialists, were each presented with a handsome gold badge at the Wonderland Theatre, Detroit, Sept. 29. The badges were tokens of esteem from friends.

THE TY BELLS have finished their engagement with Hunting's Circus, and will shortly join the Gaiety Burlesque Co. They have also been re-engaged for Hunting's Circus next season.

THE CURTIS WILD WEST closed their tour of the fairs Oct. 3, at White Plains, N. Y. Col. Curtis intends playing a few dates on his way to Newburg, N. Y., for Winter quarters. At Newburg all but two of the horses will be sold. The company, besides Col. L. L. Curtis, includes Wild Burt and wife (Little Sure Shot), Wild Jim, Texas Fred, California Jack, Don Carlos Ravelle and Nettie Latelle. Negotiations are now pending with the managers of a New York seaside resort for next Summer. Should satisfactory terms be made a Wild West show will be given in the afternoon, with a Wild West drama, with fireworks, at night.

AMONG THE PLAYERS EVERYWHERE.

—One more chapter in the lively "Fast Mail" controversy between Managers Lincoln J. Carter and J. N. Rentfrow is sketched in THE CLIPPER'S business columns this week. The story will, of course, attract and interest the general public, as well as the guild of managers and players, to which latter it is expressly directed. Mr. Carter's response to Mr. Rentfrow is made through his attorney, and is as vigorous in tone as it is picturesque in language. It clearly reviews all the facts in the case, and seems to establish that there is not the slightest infringement of one piece upon the other, so far as the subjects, incidents, plot, character, dialogues, etc., are concerned. The mere coincidence of title is really the only point at issue; and upon that point, as THE CLIPPER has explained a thousand times during the past thirty-seven years, no legal battle can be satisfactorily fought. Mr. Carter's right to produce his five act drama, "The Fast Mail," cannot be denied; nor can Mr. Rentfrow's claim to the copyright in his musical farce, "Fast Mail," be disputed either. The other points in the controversary are largely personal, and so do not call for comment here. Indeed, considering the trivial legal issue involved, it would seem that both managers have allowed themselves to become unduly excited. Mr. Carter's play has undoubtedly achieved a valuable success thus far in its tour, and he is naturally anxious to have his proprietary rights established; but all managers who read THE CLIPPER—and is there one who does not?—know by long time experience that "The play's the thing"—not the title. Mr. Carter need not fear that the intelligence of the managerial fraternity at large will be unable to grasp the points in this entertaining controversy.

— Little Evelina Dougherty, the eight year old daughter of the veteran Hughey Dougherty, was recently presented with a pair of diamond earrings by Miss Dempsey, of the McCaffrey-Hart Co., a diamond star, with a brilliant in the centre, from Ethel Lynton, the opera singer, and a gold watch and chain by Managers Mack & Dixon. The little artiste's amazing cleverness as a danseuse called for these costly and deserved tributes.

— In the sketch of Katie Emmett, published in our last issue, the fact was omitted that the lady is the wife of the well known manager, Harry Williams.

— "The Irish Jubilee," recently published by Witmark & Sons, is being sung with splendid success in some of the leading road companies.

— "Farewell, My Darling," by A. C. Moore, has just been published by Geo. M. Kleuk & Co., and is a decided success.

— Manager H. W. Delmar has just completed two new plays, entitled "A Golden Nugget" and "A Lucky Strike," which are to be added to the repertory of Queena Warren. The latter will start upon her annual tour Dec. 10, playing week stands. Manager Delmar is also at work upon a new military drama, to be called "Roanoke," which will give his star four new plays, all from his pen, viz: "Vendetta," "A Lucky Strike," "A Golden Nugget" and "Roanoke."

— Bessie Leslie has been compelled to cancel her engagement with M. A. Scanlan on account of illness.

— Florence Hastings is successfully playing the role of Rose O'Connor with McCarthy's "True Irish Hearts" Co.

— George W. Neville has been engaged by Frederic Bryton for the light comedy role in his new play, "Jim."

— James Horne is playing the leading juvenile role in "The Plunger." Oliver Byron's new play.

— Ethel Chase Sprague, a daughter of Kate Chase Sprague, has joined Richard Mansfield's Co.

— Rockwell & McElroy's Comedy Co., No. 2, are doing an excellent business on the New England circuit. Annie Mitchell, the talented leading lady of the company is said to have achieved a pronounced success.

— Harry Porter has succeeded George H. Woods in Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Co.

— George Mahone has left the Rose Lisle Co., and returned to Terre Haute, Ind.

— Marie Prescott was ill Sept. 30, and was forced to curtail her engagement at Terre Haute, Ind., on that date.

— J. Z. Little's "World" Co. is made up as follows: S. M. Vredenburg (manager), T. E. Commerford, Geo. Devere, G. L. Lawrence, A. C. Sprague, Mr. Summers, Louis Knobb, Chas. Gilday, Edith Mai, Steele Mayhew and May Maysie.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

WILLIAM J. RUSSELL (J. Russell Dowd) died at his residence, this city, Sept 30, aged thirty six. Mr. Russell was born at Boston, Mass., 1854. He went to San Francisco with his parents early in the sixties, and attended the Brothers' College. In 1868 he entered the profession as a jig and clog dancer, and, with T. B. Butler as a partner, traveled through California, Nevada, Oregon and Arizona. In 1879 they went to Australia, joining J. Chas. Davis' Victoria Lotus British Blondes. Mr. Russell left the company at Rockhampton, Queensland, and, separating from Mr. Butler, formed a partnership with Harry Le Clair, returning to America late in 1880. He remained in this country for two years. With Mr. Le Clair Mr. Russell visited Europe in 1882, but, owing to a misunderstanding, did not appear there. Two years ago Mr. Russell separated from his partner, and entered the farce comedy line, in which he did some very creditable work. He had traveled in this line with Kate Castleton's "Crazy Patch," "The Kitty," "Broke Jail," "Myrtle Ferns" and "A Pair of Jacks," closing with the last named company only a few weeks ago, after a tour of thirty two weeks, during which he created one of the chief roles in that farce. He was a loving husband and kind father, and had a host of friends in and out of the profession. For years he was known as a clever dialect comedian. In 1885 Mr. Russell married Jessie Brundage, daughter of Jesse P. Brundage, a well known hotel keeper of this city. His wife and daughter, Mabel, survive. Mrs. Russell is in comfortable circumstances. The funeral services were held Oct. 2. Catholic priests officiating, and the interment was at Union Hill Cemetery.

JAMES PERKINS, a well known leader and performer, died at his home, Baltimore, Md., Oct. 5, aged forty-one years. At various times during the past fourteen years the deceased had played in nearly all the theatres at Baltimore. His widow, Annie Perkins, who is also a professional, survives him. The Actors' Fund assumed charge of the remains.

MME. MERANTE, a famous Paris dancer and professor of dancing at the Grand Opera, died in that city about Sept. 10. She was born Zina Richard, in Russia, in 1822, and, after appearing at St. Petersburg, made her debut at the Paris Opera in 1857, where she remained until 1864. She then went to Milan, but soon returned, and was seen during some time at the Porte St. Martin. M. Halanzier appointed her dancing mistress at the Opera, where she formed several brilliant pupils. Mlle. Subra being of the number. Mlle. Richard married Louis Merante, ballet master at the Opera, who died three years ago. Her illness compelled her to resign her post in May last when Mlle Sanlaville was appointed her successor.

FRANK GEARY, a well known acrobat, of Philadelphia, fell from a chestnut tree Oct. 4, breaking his neck and dying a few minutes later. He was about twenty-five years of age and recently had been performing at the Bijou Philadelphia, as the Zulu contortionist. He had also been with Forepaugh's Circus as a tumbler.

WILLIAM HOEY DUNBAR, son of Thomas Dunbar, property man with Evans and Hoey, died in this city Sept. 29. The little fellow was ill only a few days, brain fever being the cause of his death. The funeral was held Oct. 1.

MRS. JACK SUTTON (Pearl Duncan) died on board steamer Aug. 30, of pneumonia, aged thirty three. Com. Van Oterendorp, of the steamer Zealandra, held his vessel one hour at Honolulu to allow Capt. Jack Sutton time to make arrangements to have the body removed to Johnstown, N. Y. Capt. Jack Sutton and his wife were engaged with Wirth Bros.' Wild West and Circus for a tour of Australia. Mrs. Sutton was formerly one of the Duncan Sisters—Pearl and Hattie.

MAUDE FARWELL, of the Duncan Clark Minstrels, who had been ill at the Infirmary, Little Rock, Ark., of heart trouble, died at that place Oct. 1. She was nineteen years old, and was from Chicago, where she joined the company last August. Her remains were buried in the Catholic Cemetery, Little Rock, 2.

ALBERT VIRTO, of the Two Virtos, died at the Queen's Square Hospital, Bloomsbury, Eng., about Sept. 18, after a short illness. He had appeared in this country and on the Continent.

EMMA PINDER, of the Sisters Pinder Co., died Sept. 15, at Hull, Eng. She was a favorite music hall performer.

C. N. EDWARDS (Christopher Newman), a well known musical director died at his residence in this city Oct. 5, after a long and painful illness. His last engagement was at the New Park Theatre, this city, which he found necessary to give up a few weeks prior to his demise. Mr. Edwards was a son of William Newman, one of the originators of London Punch, and afterwards associated with Frank Leslie's and Harper's publications. The deceased was unmarried. His mother and several sisters and brothers survive him. Only recently he had finished an engagement on the road with "A Pair of Jacks."

THE RING.

Murphy vs. Dixon.

The final deposit of $500 a side in the glove match between George Dixon and Johnny Murphy was staked at Boston, Mass., on Sept. 27. James Colville having positively declined to fill the position of referee after several well known sporting men were proposed for the office and objected to a Boston newspaper man was agreed upon. The fight will not take place at the Puritan Club. The parties thereto object to the person who seems to have been established the permanent referee at the club named, and have concluded to accept the offer of the Gladstone Club, of Providence, R. I. Backers certainly should have some voice in the selection of a referee.

FRANK J. CRINKLER, the former amateur lightweight champion, has opened his boxing academy for the Winter at 394 South Second Street, Brooklyn, E. D. and already is giving regular instruction in the mysteries of the fistic art to a number of the young men of the City of Churches who are alive to the necessity of not only taking beneficial exercise, but of acquiring knowledge that will enable them to defend themselves and take their own part at all times and under all circumstances. Frank is a clever practitioner, and those who want to excel in the manly art should place themselves under his tuition.

JIM MCHUGH, the well known pugilist, died at his residence in this city on Sept. 30, after a long and painful illness. He was buried on Oct. 2, a number of his old friends and associates attending the funeral. Before his demise several of his friends made arrangements for a benefit for him, as the family were in destitute circumstances, and the affair will be carried out as arranged, the proceeds being given to the mother of McHugh, who is in sore need. It will come off at Clarendon Hall, Thirteenth Street, east of Fourth Avenue, on Monday evening,

THEATRICAL.

J. P. T.—1. No. 2. He died Oct. 31, 1879. 3. He was never manager of either of the theatres you name, but from 1853 to 1876 he held the lease and the management of the Theatre Royal, Haymarket.

A. S., Baltimore.—There is no such company now on the road; but there is a company known as Hallen & Hart's "Later On" Co.

E. W. H., Woodbury.—They were unimportant, and were crowded out.

S. F. E., Lancaster.—The managers, Hoyt & Thomas, do their own booking. They are at 1,164 Broadway, this city.

J. R., Titusville.—He is not married.

MASTER R., Brooklyn.—We fear the chances are against you, particularly if, as we suspect, you are quite young and inexperienced. If you can make a living in any other way, we advise you to do so.

T. F. R., Towanda.—See answer above to "Master R., Brooklyn." We might add, in your case, that a consultation with your father would doubtless be of benefit to you.

P. A. T., Atchison.—It arrives on time.

J. G.—1. They did appear together in that play, three seasons ago. 2. "Hoodman Blind" was the attraction, and played there from March 14 to 17, inclusive, losing 12, 13, on account of the blizzard.

C. W. B., Richmond.—He is not dead—at least, as we write these lines on Oct. 6.

W. E., Philadelphia.—See the notice at the head of this column.

O. P. H., West Troy.—1. For those instruments write to R. H. Mayland, 24 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. 2. From $30 to $60, according to your ability.

G. M. S., Little Falls.—From $30 a week upwards. Everything depends upon your cleverness and your versatility.

MISS T. T., Cohoes.—It will be better to write to them. Try such managers as Daniel Frohman, A. M. Palmer, H. Miner, Aug. Daly, Col. W. E. Sinn, Joseph Brooks etc.

J. L., Richmond.—See answer above to "C. W. B., Richmond."

A. L. W., Columbus.—See the notice at the head of this column.

WEBSTER.—1. See the notice at the head of this column. 2. We do not know and we do not seek to know, believing that the private affairs of professionals concern themselves only. 3. It is not the same Mr. Morris.

T. A. O'C., Brooklyn.—Strictly speaking, the playwright may be considered the creator of all the parts, but the technical point of view is not considered in the matter as you put it, stage custom and parlance agreeing that the actor who first impersonates any role shall be regarded as "creating" that part.

R. N., St. Louis.—We should say that a letter so addressed would ultimately reach him.

D. C.—Letters in THE CLIPPER Post Office are advertised only once.

F. D., Seneca Falls.—See the notice at the head of this colum.

J. B. C., San Francisco.—1. Not to our personal knowledge. 2. Yes. 3. Yes.

REGULAR SUBSCRIBER, Fort Worth.—There is no agency of that sort, to our knowledge. "Productions," in these days, are undertaken by managers; but there are several agencies which sell plays for authors, charging various commissions.

"OLD TIMES."—Answer next week. We are investigating, as there seems to be a doubt.

J. F. M., Rutland.—See the notice at the head of this column.

D. O'K., Hartford.—He is alive as we write these lines, Oct. 6. He is a patient in the Worcester, Mass., Insane Asylum.

GREAT BEND.—1. His museum at the corner of Broadway and Ann Street was burned July 13, 1865. The last one he managed (Broadway, near Spring Street) was burned March 3, 1868. 2. No. 3. At Bridgeport, Ct., for the past ten or fifteen years at least. 4 and 5. Please write to Mr. B. himself on these points. He will be glad to tell you more fully than we can at this time.

R. L. B., Garvanzo.—Try to reach him by means of a letter addressed to him in our care. It will be advertised gratis, as per the notice at the head of this column. If that method fails, all we can advise you to do is to advertise in our columns for information as to his whereabouts.

W. McD., Montreal.—1. The Valdis Sisters inform us that they are natives of Lincoln, Lancashire, Eng. 2. He is alive, but in temporary retirement.

QUERY.—1. Hessi Kirk was originally acted Oct. 27, 1876, at Lowe's Opera House, Providence, R. I., under the title of "An Iron Will." 2. "The Danites," Aug. 22, 1877, at the Broadway, this city.

F. Q. T., Baltimore.—We do not publish any such book or guide, nor does anybody else. The only accurate and reliable list is that which you yourself can readily make up from THE CLIPPER'S theatrical columns from week to week.

O. M. A., St. Louis.—We are quite certain he is not the actor you refer to; but, if you like—and the matter seems important enough to justify it—you can write to his widow, whose address you will find by reference to Col. Brown's History of the American Theatre, on another page.

H. G. S.—Our files fail to give the exact date, but it was during December, 1864, two years later than you suggested.

L. G. C., M. D., Wideawake.—1. For catalogues of players, published and unpublished, write to H. S. Taylor 1,193 Broadway, or French & Son, West Twenty-third Street, this city. 2. Write to C. E. Mills, 1,663 Broadway, this city, for scenery such as you would require. 3. For wardrobe, etc., to Dazian & Co., Union Square, or Shannon, Miller & Crane, Maiden Lane, this city.

O. W. P. JR., Lafayette.—Describe it more fully, so that we may answer intelligently.

C. W., Brooklyn.—Go boldly to the agencies, and ask those in charge to take your address, stating at the same time your line of business, experience, etc. A photograph is also desirable.

C. J. F., Manhattan.—No such work is published, to our knowledge. If you wish to secure an instructor, you had better insert an advertisement in THE CLIPPER. See rates at the head of this column.

CARDS.

E. R. H., St. Paul.—Your statement in no way alters the status of the dispute. The reply to "J. M. D." is entirely applicable to the case as cited by you. Your extended reference to supposititious plays and methods of betting counts for naught. It is presumed that you understand the game well enough to know that none of the hands mentioned would be bet or played alike one time in ten. The claim set forth, therefore, borders on the absurd. Indeed, the grounds upon which it is based, are rather puerile and smack very strongly of the dissatisfaction of a "hard loser." Your comparison of the case to that of a redundant hand is also wholly wrong, and it is plainly evident that your ideas as to certain points in the game have become very much mixed.

J. W.—A is not entitled to the pot. The players must withdraw their respective sums contributed after the false opening, and A must be made to pay a penalty, to be mutually agreed upon, for his error. The original pot, with the addition of A's penalty, must then be played for in the regular way.

GUSSIE, Titusville.—It is not necessary. You can order up your opponent without having a trump in your hand. It is you, not your opponent, who takes the risk.

A. M. JR.—The ace-tray diamond flush beat the king-deuce heart flush. It is the relative value of the cards that determines the highest hand. The ace ranks above the king.

G. J. H.—A, the player who held the jack full, wins the pot. C, having verbally acknowledged his opponent's hand to be the superior, has no claim upon the pot whatsoever. His four deuces lost all their value when he declared A's hand "good." The reply to "J. M. G., Peoria," in our last issue, fully covers the point in dispute.

R. K., Philadelphia.—C wins. A was wrong in his claim, according to your statement.

E. H. K., Carrollton.—Your query is very ambiguous and inexplicit. In seven-up, the game is seven points. You state that each player had eight, but do not give the number of points that you recognize as game. If it was nine, the player making high and game wins, but if it was ten, the player securing low and jack wins.

J. F., Burke.—The points count out in their regular order—high, low, jack, game.

W. D., Brooklyn.—1. It depends upon what kind of a game it is. 2. The ace is high.

F. R.—B scores but one point. He ordered the trump up, not A. The latter could not be euchered, nor could he have gone alone, if you had played the game properly.

F. M.—The age, B, had a perfect right, when it came his turn, to raise the ante any amount within the limit. A, the dealer, was wrong in his claim. What confused him probably, was the fact that it was "freeze out," with only two men playing. The change in the name of the game does not alter the methods of play followed in draw poker. "Freeze out" is just what its name signifies, referring to stakes only.

K. C., Lac de Grandes Isles.—The points count out in their regular order. B was partly right in his claim. The dispute, as stated, however, cannot be arbitrated with strict fairness. You have failed to state who secured the high, low, jack and game. Besides, it appears that you have somewhat confounded auction pitch with pedro, or, rather, double pedro. There is considerable difference in the three games. If you will kindly give us all the particulars we will gladly settle the point in dispute.

J. E. M., Boston.—1. He must retain his cards until his turn is reached. 2. He cannot take it. It is a dead card and does not count. The player for whom it was intended must be given the next card, and before any of the players who follow him are served.

M. M., Youngstown.—1. You win. 2. No answers by mail or telegraph.

ATHLETIC.

S. Q., Sackets Harbor.—The fastest recorded time in which one hundred yards has been run by man is 9¾s., which time was made by the late H. M. Johnson at Cleveland O., and by Harry Bethune at San Francisco, both running against time.

GYMNAST, Scranton.—John Wood's gymnasium is located at No. 6 East Twenty-eighth Street, this city.

F. D., Boston.—The best way to reach the party mentioned is to address a letter to him in care of this office. We do not know his present whereabouts.

M. H., Des Moines.—See THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1890, page 48.

W. B. B., Toledo.—The best record for a standing jump, without weights, is 12ft. 1½in., by J. Darby, in England, in May last. The best with weights is 14ft. 5¼in., by G. W. Hamilton, in America.

RING.

E. B.—The bare knuckle fight between John L. Sullivan and Charley Mitchell took place on the soil of France, although the match was made in England.

M. D., Shamokin.—No. Peter Jackson, colored, and Frank P. Slavin, who recently defeated Joe McAuliffe in London, never fought anywhere.

J. R., Washington.—Jack Dempsey defeated Jack Keenan, of Philadelphia, in California, the fight being an impromptu affair and the combatants being bare handed. They fought according to the rules of the ring.

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

F. L. H., Buffalo.—The St. Louis Browns, of the American Association, won the world's championship in October, 1886, when they defeated the Chicago Club, of the National League, in four out of the series of six games. The Chicagos won the first and third games by scores of 6 to 0 and 11 to 4, while the St. Louis won the second, fourth, fifth and sixth games by the respective scores of 12 to 0, 8 to 5, 10 to 3 and 4 to 3. In 1885 these clubs contended for the world's championship. The St. Louis Browns won three games and the Chicago Club was also credited with three victories, one of which, however, was a forfeited five inning game, which ended in a wrangle the spectators then rushing on the field and preventing any further play.

L. C., Rochester.—The bet is off, altogether the Philadelphias won the game. A could claim that Gleason did not "pitch the game" in case the Philadelphias had not.

T. M., Providence.—All bets should be drawn, the game having been declared illegal.

S., Louisville.—The Louisville Club had on that day a better percentage of games won than any club either in the National League or Players' League.

W. R. W., Philadelphia.—The Australian team played thirty-eight games in England during the past season, of which thirteen were won, sixteen lost and nine drawn.

BILLIARDS.

W. H. B., Plymouth.—See answer to "Stuart" in last week's issue of this paper. Your query covers exactly the same points.

TURF.

J. R. B., Memphis.—Iroquois ran but once for the English Derby, which he won. The race is confined to three year olds.

BROOKLYN.—As answered in our last issue, if A and B mutually agreed that all the horses named were to start, or the bet was off, then the parties are to receive back their money.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. T. S., Escanaba.—1. Write to The Brewers' Journal and Gazette, 24 Park Place, this city. 2. No answers by mail or telegraph.

G. H. S., Birmingham.—It is still in existence.

C. McM., Newark.—Under the old law it reverted to the State, but by recent statutes he can, upon declaring his intentions of becoming a citizen, purchase, hold, secure, sell, or dispose of property to heirs or assigns, and in such other respects be treated as a native born citizen.

T. H. R., Washington.—We have not received any. Please look into the matter again.

W. & T., Toledo.—Answer next week, probably.

CHESS.

To Correspondents.

B. S. A., M. D., Chicago.—You are wrong in re Prob. 1,760; as, in ans. to 2..P to Q B 4, Black would play B × P +, etc.

GEN. CONDON.—We have not had the pleasure of meeting Mr. B. Are preparing an answer by mail.

VERY SAD is the news that we shall, probably, never see Capt. Mackenzie's face again. The wear and fatigues of the Manchester congress overtaxed his strength, and the doctors give no hope of his surviving the Winter.

MANCHESTER INTERNATIONAL.—Despite all his care, Bro. Seguin was somewhat misled in ranking the prize winners. Mr. Blackburne secured one half game more than Mackenzie and Bird, taking second prize; Herr Gunsberg, one half less, ranking him fifth and sixth ex æquo with Mason. The "Somnoborn system" placed Dr. Tarrasch's victory in a singularly conspicuous and honorable light. Disregarding fractions, the six leaders stand credited—Tarrasch, 189 points; Blackburne, 131; Mackenzie, 128; Bird, 125; Mason and Gunsberg, 114, Mason leading by three fourths of one point. The next five, in succession, were Von Scheve, Tinsley, Alapin, Taubenhaus and Scallopp. The maximum possible points was 256. Surely we are, now, or soon, entitled, as we are thoroughly well prepared, to enjoy the much proposed match, Gunsberg vs. Mason.

THE WRITER'S little chess poem, "An Invitation," appeared in a particularly flattering form in the last number of The Delta Upsilon Quarterly.

THE CHESS MONTHLY commenced its twelfth volume with September. The portrait is of the renowned problemist and teacher, Herr Professor Berger. The number opens with a wonderfully elaborate and interesting analytical article (Part I), Queen vs. Rook, of which every lover of such studies should possess himself.

(!) This "trap" has a history. Dr. T. caught the late Dr. Zukertort in it in the Hamburg congress, '87, in which Herr Gunsberg also played! In the minor tourney of the present Manchester congress D. Y. Mills sprang the same trap on Mr. Schott. The text reply is singularly fatal. 11..Kt to B 4, though uncomfortable, is seemingly Black's best.

THE CHESS PLAYERS' POCKET BOOK.—We have been favored with a copy of James Mortimer's remarkable little book, by the courtesy of Dick & Fitzgerald, 18 Ann Street, this city. It is "remarkable" in its compact comprehensiveness, and yet so perfectly readable. Sixty-one openings by name, the variations running from ten moves to over twenty, and all for 50cts.

Correction of Robertson.

Harry Stevens suggests the following: Var 61, Part I, Bristol, at sixth move, play 9 to 13 and win, as follows:

| Black. | White. | Black. | White. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1.. 9 to 13 | 24 to 6 | 3.. 1 to 10 | |
| 2..12 19 | 22 17(a) | Black wins. | |

(a) If 30 to 26, then 2 to 9 wins.

BREVITY.—James Moir, the well known Scottish draught player, expects to make a six months' tour through the United States and Canada, as principal tenor in Lambeth's Choir. As Mr. Moir is one of Scotland's strongest players, he no doubt will exhibit rare skill in the game while in this country.

MEMBERS of the Yonkers (N. Y.) Athletic Club indulged in a cross country run Sept. 29, the distance traversed being about seven miles, and the time 49m. 15s.

THE opening college football match of the season at the Elm City was contested on Oct. 1, the teams engaged representing Yale and Wesleyan, and the local players winning by a score of 8 to 0.

THE Varuna Boat Club are to hold a boxing tournament in Brooklyn on Jan. 14, and the Lorillard Debating and Athletic Association will hold a similar event at Jersey City on March 16.

Amateur Sport in Chicago.

The traveling teams of the Salford Harriers and Manhattan Athletic Club appeared at the Windy City on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4, where they met members of the local clubs in a series of games. Unfortunately they struck the city on a day when rain and fog were struggling for the mastery, and made everything very unpleasant, besides greatly limiting the attendance at the meeting and softening the track. Although record breaking was out of the question, the events were generally well contested and interesting. Summary:

One hundred yards run—Final heat: W. C. Skillinger, Wanderers' Cricket and Athletic Club, 4yds. start, first, in 10s.; G. L. Estes, Manhattan Athletic Club, 6yds., second; W. M. Christie, Manhattan Athletic Club, 4yds., third.

Half mile run—J. S. Roddy, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, first, in 2m. 3½s.; G. H. Morriss, Salford Harriers, 10yds. start, second.

One mile walk—C. I. Nicoll, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, first, in 7m. 3¾s.; Otto Harsell, Wanderers' Cricket and Athletic Club, 50yds. start, second.

Quarter mile run—Mortimer Remington, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, first, in 52⅝s.; W. C. Skillinger, Wanderers' Cricket and Athletic Club, 18yds. start, second.

One mile run—T. P. Conneff, Manhattan Athletic Club scratch, first, in 4m. 37⅛s.; J. P. Keary, Wanderers' Cricket and Athletic Club, 100yds. start, second.

One furlong run—G. L. Estes, Manhattan Athletic Club, 10yds. start, first, in 24s.; N. D. Morgan, Salford Harriers, 5yds., second.

Five mile run—W. H. Morton, Salford Harriers, scratch, first, in 27m. 36⅝s.; E. W. Parry, Salford Harriers, 20s. start, second.

Running long jump—W. Farrant, Wanderers' Cricket and Athletic Club, allowed 1ft., first, 22ft. 3in.; I. Gelder, V. A. C., allowed 2ft. 6in., second, 22ft. 2in.

Pole vault—Russell J. Hogg, allowed 2ft. 6in., first, 10ft. 9in.; E. Goetz, V. A. C., allowed 1ft. 6in., and G. Riddle, Wanderers' C. and A. C., allowed 1ft., each cleared a height of 10ft. 3in.

One mile bicycle race—S. K. Barrett, Chicago 'Cycling Club, first, in 29m. 42⅘s.; H. Githens, Chicago 'Cycling Club, second.

The Manhattan's Country Home.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Manhattan Athletic Club held at 524 Fifth Avenue, Friday night, Oct. 3, the report of the committee on new athletic grounds, Messrs. William J. Swan, Geo. W. Carr, Warren Sage, S. J. Cornell and Geo. A. Avery, came up for consideration. It was finally decided to refer the matter of the purchase of Berrian Island to the committee on new athletic grounds, with power. The proposition made by E. J. Woolsey, the owner of Berrian Island, will no doubt be accepted by the club committee. The proposition is that the Manhattan Athletic Club issue $300,000 in five per cent first mortgage bonds, E. J. Woolsey accepting $125,000 of said bonds in payment in full for the island, the remaining $75,000 in bonds to be disposed of at par, and the proceeds of sale to be applied to the improvement of the island. The consummation of this sale is contingent upon the committee on new athletic grounds disposing of the $75,000 in bonds. It is understood that over one-half of the $75,000 has already been taken, and it is confidently expected that the remaining bonds will be disposed of within a very short time. The Manhattans will take possession as soon as the purchase has been consummated, and will begin work on the country club house, the stables running and bicycle track, boat houses, etc. If the committee meets with the success that is expected, the island will probably be ready for occupancy in the Spring of 1891. The island is about forty acres in extent, is very favorably located and is well adapted for the purpose for which it has been bought. The athletic track will be in the middle of the island and will be made between two hills, which form a natural amphitheatre. The club house will be very handsome, and there will be every facility on the island for the enjoyment of all kinds of out door sports. The water is sufficiently deep around the island for the largest ocean steamers to anchor at the club's docks, and the water in Bowery Bay is sheltered and is in every way suitable for swimming, rowing, yachting and other aquatic contests.

English Athletes at Detroit.

The first of the series of joint meetings arranged by the Salford Harriers, of Manchester, Eng., and the Manhattan Athletic Club, during the visit of the former team to the States, came off at the grounds of the Detroit (Mich.) Athletic Club on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 1. Great interest was manifested in the meeting by the Wolverines, and over two thousand persons passed through the gates and watched the contests closely. The competitions furnished excellent sport, and also a surprise in the defeat of Champion Owen by Fred Westing in the short sprint race. Summary:

One hundred yards run—Final heat: Fred Westing, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, first, in 10¾s.; M. Remington, Manhattan A. C., ½yd. start, second, by a foot; Luther Carey, Manhattan A. C., scratch, third, six inches away.

One furlong run—John Owen Jr., Detroit Athletic Club, scratch, first, in 23s.; Luther Carey, Manhattan A. C., scratch, second, by six feet; N. D. Morgan, Salford Harriers, 3yds. start, third.

Quarter mile run—Mortimer Remington, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, won, in 51s.

Half mile run—W. Gregg, Detroit Athletic Club, 25yds. start, first, in 1m. 58⅘s.; J. S. Roddy, Manhattan Athletic Club, scratch, second.

One mile run—Thomas P. Conneff, Manhattan A. C., scratch, first, in 4m. 26⅖s.; H. Austin, Detroit Athletic Club, 75yds., second; F. Calirhue, Young Men's Christian Association, 90yds., third.

Five mile run—W. H. Morton, Salford Harriers, scratch, first, in 27m. 35⅘s.; F. F. Carr, Manhattan A. C., 30s. start, second.

Two mile steeplechase—W. Perry, Salford Harriers, scratch, first, in 10m. 44s.; G. H. Morris, Salford Harriers, 10s., second.

Hurdle race, 120yds.—F. L. Ducharme, Detroit A. C., scratch, first, in 16⅗s.; C. Annesley, Detroit A. C., 6yds. second.

The Amateur Championships.

Amateur athletes of the higher class throughout the country have had their eyes and thoughts fixed on Washington for many weeks past, and have taken their exercise mainly with a view to securing that perfection of physical condition necessary to give them a chance to secure a coveted championship at the annual field meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union, to be held at Analostan Island, in the historic Potomac River, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 11. They are now busily engaged in putting on the finishing touches to their preparation before starting for the seat of government, and should the weather conditions prove favorable on Saturday, we may expect to see more than one best-on-record accomplished both on the cinder path and in the field, for the quality of the contestants who will participate in the struggles for athletic fame are the pick of the land. The meeting promises to be the best ever held in America. The rival New York and Manhattan Athletic Clubs of this city will send especially strong delegations, and that there will be a bitter battle between their representatives for supremacy goes without saying, while there will be several delegates from other organizations who are liable to relegate to the back ground the pick of both.

Sailors' Sports on Dry Land.

A field meeting was held at Oak Point, this city, Oct. 2, under the management of the stewards of the steamship Servia, and it was a complete success, participated in by a large number of the lady and gentlemen friends of the promoters, while the contests between the Jack Tars were interesting to a degree. Summary: 120yds. run—Final heat: A. Simpson, 5yds., first, in 15⅗s.; James Williams, 10yds., second; W. Hill, scratch, third. Forty yards (blindfold race—J. Booth first, H. McClune second. One mile run—G. Jones, scratch, first, in 5m. 55s.; J. W. McQuarrie, 15yds., second; Chas. Johns, 10yds., third. Potato race—J. Jamieson first, and Charles Beattie second. 120yds. hurdle race—W. Sweetman, 10yds., first, in 45s.; J. Wainwright, 5yds., second; Charles Johns, scratch, third. 220yds. consolation race—William Webber first, in 28s.; Fred Stanyer second and William Croke third. Egg and spoon race, 50yds.—Miss D. Duff first, Miss McLasher second.

Amateur Athletic Union.

The Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union held a meeting in this city Oct. 2. J. B. Connolly's running hop, step and jump of 44ft. 10⅝in., made at Boston, Mass., recently, was allowed as a record. Permission to hold a set of benefit games at which amateurs could compete was refused to Trainer Jack McMaster, of the Brooklyn National League Baseball team. The Passaic City Wheeling and Athletic Association, the Seventy-fourth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., of Syracuse, and Montclair (N. J.) Athletic Associations were admitted to membership in the Union, and the applications of the Park and Standard Athletic Clubs for admission were referred back for investigation. It was decided to arrange a schedule for a series of games for the amateur football championship, four clubs to enter from each section or no schedule. Owing to the committee having the case in charge being absent, nothing further was done in the M. W. Ford matter.

JOSEPH F. DONOGHUE, of the Manhattan Athletic Club, the champion amateur skater of America, has secured passage on the Steamer Thingvallia, leaving here on Saturday, Oct. 11, for Christiania, Norway, which will reach her destination in season to admit of "Joe" getting the benefit of several weeks' good practice before the annual skating meetings in Europe are at hand. The son of the illustrious "Tim," himself a terror on skates when in his prime, is in capital condition, so far as health is concerned, at present, and he may be relied upon to give a most excellent account of himself and show his flying heels to more than one of the fameus ice skimmers of the continent. We wish him a safe, pleasant and victorious trip.

MEMBERS of the Acorn Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, gathered at Washington Park on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 5, to witness the decision of a couple of events. The first was a five mile run, which was won by Michael Bent, scratch, in 29m. 4⅘s.; J. Ernest, 4m., second; M. Healey, scratch, third. The next was a walk against time, three miles, by the old champion, Frank Murray, who compassed the distance in 22m. 21⅘s.

G. W. BURTON, a member of the Blackheath Football Club and one of the most celebrated players in England, died of hasty consumption at his residence in London, Sept. 18, and was buried at Shooter's Hill

"Everybody will agree that a compromise between the Players' and National Leagues would benefit the national game," says The Chicago News, "and there seems a better chance just now for so happy an ending of the war than ever before. All season there have been rumors afloat regarding the possibility of a settlement of the great difference. But at last the true lead has been struck, and at the Pittsburg meeting of the Players' League something is likely to happen. The time and place have been selected for the attempt at the treaty, and known to the favored few for several weeks. There has been a desperate attempt on the part of those concerned to keep the matter quiet. Along in August, when the crowds were the poorest and the outlook the bluest, the magnates of the National League came to the conclusion that something would have to be done. Jno B. Day, of the New York Club, was instructed to write to Secretary Brunsell, of the Players' League, and the two, with one or two representatives of their respective leagues, met in New York, but the conference came to naught. Matters slid along in a very unsatisfactory manner, and at last, driven to desperation, a prominent official of the Players' League sought a conference with a magnate of the National League in the hope of arranging another conference. Sept. 27 was named as the date for the meeting, which was to take place in Philadelphia. After due consideration, however, the National League men changed their minds, said they wanted to wait until Al. Spalding came home, and asked the Players' League men to name a later date. After some correspondence it was arranged to call the conference just before the meeting of the Pittsburg Club, of the Players' League, so the Players' League men could shape their action according to the result of the conference. Many schemes will be presented for consideration, none of which is at present more popular than that looking to the forming of a new national agreement. By such an arrangement conflicting dates could be avoided, a championship series could be arranged, and things made generally agreeable. Then, there will be an amalgamation plan offered. A circuit of the clubs will be proposed, dropping Pittsburg and Cleveland from both leagues, wiping out Buffalo, and consolidating the Brooklyn clubs. Another scheme is for a complete consolidation of the two organizations, the dropping of all the weaker men, and leaving an eight club circuit. This would elevate baseball, as only the best players would be retained; but it is doubtful if this plan will work. Should it meet with favor the National League will offer to do away with the reserve rule and institute other needed reforms to be ingrafted into the new constitution, in return for which the Players' League will surrender the player management scheme."

In a recent interview Manager John M. Ward, of the Brooklyn Club, of the Players' League, is quoted as follows: "I would like to see a new National Agreement fixed up at the earliest possible opportunity. The Players' League stands ready at any time to agree upon some general instrument which will be of use to all the baseball leagues now doing business. I think that it is idle now for the older organizations (the National League included) to ignore us as factors in the baseball business. Now, it has been shown pretty effectually, I believe, that the men who stand at the back of the Players' League mean business, and that they are here to stay. I say that the managers of the National League, and in fact of all the greater organizations, need do no violence to their feelings by recognising us in a way that in reality will prove to their own interest, and I believe that the issue will prove that I am right. I am in favor of one containing provisions to protect the players of one organization from the other organizations, a uniform code of rules, an interchange of games, etc. I would like to see some satisfactory clause which would cover up the disputed question of the world's championship at the end of the regular season. Our three year or long term contract fully obviates the necessity of a reserve rule. The old rule would not have proved such an evil if its original purpose had been followed out. So long as the reserve rule was operated for the purpose of holding a ball club together and maintaining its strength year after year, there was no possible objection to it. It became an evil when it was used for the purpose of working injury to players and individuals; when it developed into a lever, whereby players were bought and sold like cattle, and whereby it was used solely for the purpose of holding up the prices of players when the Presidents desired so sell them to other clubs. That is the point at which the reserve rule became unjust and injurious. Now, the long term contract is not unjust, and, while it protects the player, it also protects the club."

The championship season of the Western Association for 1890 was finished Sept. 30. It has been one of the prettiest races ever engaged in by the clubs forming the Western Association. With the exception of Omaha and St. Paul, who occupied the first two positions in the race of 1889, all the clubs have at one time or another led the others in the race of this year. The Denver Club bid fair to carry off the honors until the season was nearly half over, when the management caused it to fall back beaten. Des Moines, now Lincoln, was decidedly in the race until, from a lack of funds, which disheartened the players, they dropped back, to bring up in the rear. For the first time in its history of eight years Kansas City captured a pennant. It had tried for the honor in the Union Association, two Western Leagues, the National League, the American Association and the old Western Association. Two years ago it seemed sure to win the Western Association pennant, and a huge pole was purchased, but Des Moines won the final and decisive games. When the Milwaukee team appeared for the final game a handsome flag was run up the leaning pole. When Manager Manning came to the bat the first time he was presented with a handsome solid silver tea service, the gift of the members of the team. This ended the most successful season ever known in Kansas City. The management is said to be $20 000 ahead on the year. The standing of the clubs is as follows: Kansas City, won 78, lost 39, percentage .666; Minneapolis, won 78, lost 45, .639; Milwaukee, won 77, lost 45, .631; Denver, won 57, lost 63, .475; Sioux City, won 56, lost 64, .466; Omaha, won 51, lost 69, .425; Lincoln, won 48, lost 73, .391; St. Paul, won 38, lost 84, .311.

John B. Day, the president of the Metropolitan Exhibition Company, which controls the New York Club, of the National League, on Oct. 2, filed in the Common Pleas Court, at Philadelphia, an affidavit of defence for the company, in response to the suit of Elwood G. Wagenhurst, who was engaged as a player in the New York Club, for the season of 1889. The plaintiff was discharged before the expiration of the season, and his suit was to recover $781.94, the salary for the remainder of the season. Mr. Day says that Wagenhurst's contract was not with the Metropolitan Exhibition Company, which is the defendant in the suit, but with the New York Club, of which he, Mr. Day, is also president, and that club did not, as alleged, either orally or in writing, alter the contract, relieving the plaintiff from his liability to be discharged from the service of the club. He says, further, that it appearing the plaintiff was not qualified to play ball with sufficient skill and ability for a position on the nine, ten days' notice of his dismissal was given him, and that about the time of the expiration of the notice, to wit, May 18, 1889, the plaintiff was paid $172.55, in full settlement of all claims for salary, and a receipt to that effect was given by him.

The local amateur championship season is over, and the pennant goes to the Staten Island Athletic Club. The season has been the most prosperous that the Amateur League has ever had. A suitable set of resolutions were presented to Manager Conroy, of the Staten Island Athletic Club, and each of his players was given a handsome gold watch charm, shaped like an old coin, with the club's emblem and "S. I. A. C." on one side, and "Amateur League Champions, 1890," on the other. The record of the clubs is as follows: Staten Island Athletic, won 18, lost 5, per centage .771; Staten Island Cricket, won 16, lost 6, per centage .727; Crescent Athletic, won 6, lost 17, per centage .261; Englewood Field Club, won 6, lost 18, per centage .250.

In the game between the Buffalo and Boston teams, of the Players' League, Oct. 1, at Buffalo, Kilroy, of the latter, accomplished a play not often seen. With Mack on second and Beecher on first, Brouthers played well off his base. Kilroy stood a foot to the right of the pitcher's box, and when he got Beecher's head turned to look for Brouthers, he started for the base. The coacher yelled "look out" and Beecher ran for his base. Kilroy, however, was too quick for him, and touched him with the ball as he slid, and the two went rolling over and over. Beecher was put out and retired from the game, owing to an injury of his right arm.

In the game between the Cincinnati and Boston teams, of the National League, played Oct. 2, at Cincinnati, Umpire Strief, in the seventh inning, declared Rhines out for being hit with a batted ball and then upon the testimony of the Cincinnati players that Tucker diverted the ball against Rhines, changed his decision. By this action Strief deliberately violated the rule which prohibits the umpire to take the testimony of any player in regard to a play, and the violation is more gross because of the testimony, it in this case causing him to change a decision he had already made, and which was in full force.

Pitcher Weyhing, of the Brooklyn Club, of the Players' League, was arrested Oct. 2, at the Players' League grounds at Buffalo. He was bailed out by City Clerk Marshall going on his bond for $200. Ward claims that Umpire Snyder was the first offender, and Weyhing retaliated in kind. Police Captain Cable warned Weyhing to desist, but, finding the quarrel growing warmer, laid hold of the passionate young pitcher. "Let go of me!" cried Weyhing. "I'll show you how I'll let go of you," said the captain, as he grabbed Weyhing and rushed him out of the grounds, followed by the Brooklyn players and a big crowd.

Norman Baker, of the Baltimore Club, was paid his salary in full Oct. 1, and at 2.30 P. M. he left with his wife for Texas. Baker's contract with the Baltimores closed with the end of the Atlantic Association season. When he received his salary, he was informed that he was reserved by Baltimore for next season, and he said he was anxious to remain with the Baltimores. He has somewhat recovered the use of his injured arm. Baker will visit his brother in law in Texas, and hopes to strengthen himself during the Winter for next season.

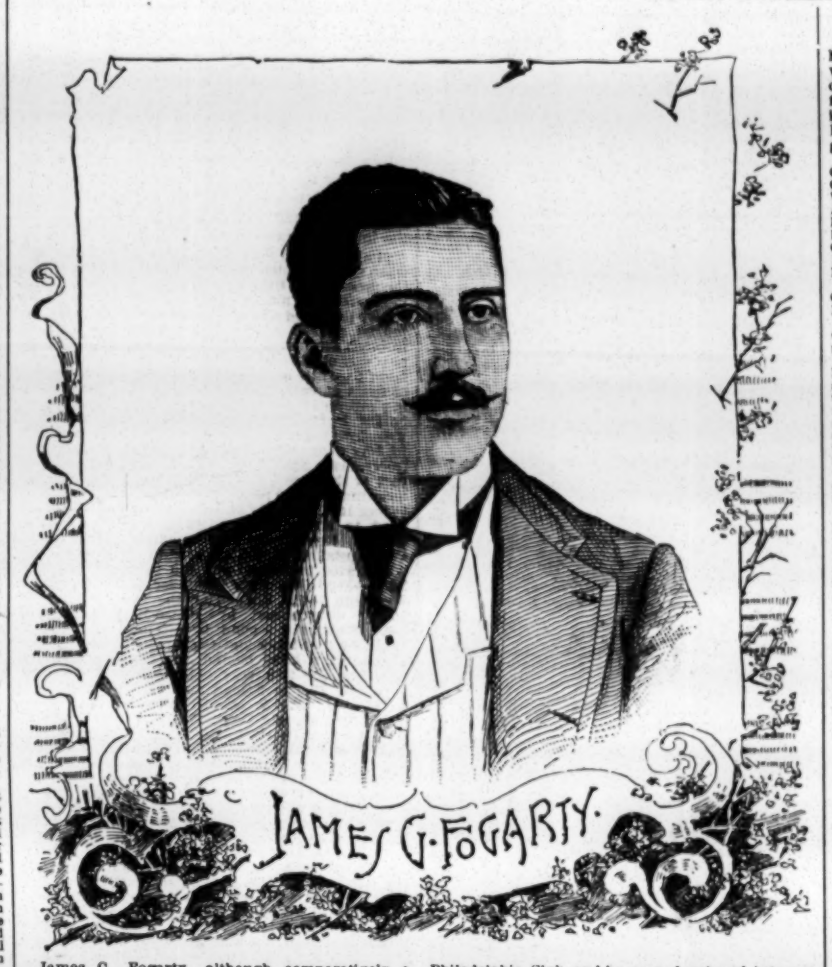
German, Tate and O'Rourke's contract with the Baltimore Club expired Sept. 30, but, by a special agreement, they will play out the American Association's championship season. When Manager Barnie signed his men in the Spring it was for the Atlantic Association season, which closed on the last day in September. He expected, however, after that to play exhibition games, and the men extended their time two weeks later, which just brings them to the close of the American Association season.

The championship game between the San Francisco and Stockton Clubs, of the California League, played Sept. 27, at San Francisco, Cal., resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 3 to 0. The Stocktons made only one safe hit off Pitcher Coughlan, and it was a palpable scratch.

Manager Manning has been elected secretary of the Kansas City Club in place of E. R. Martin, resigned. The club has voted Manning $500 in stock. The purpose of this is to make the manager an officer of the club so that he may represent it at meetings of the Western Association.

Keefe & Becannon, of this city, have brought suit against the Buffalo Club, of the Player's League, to recover $850 for supplies they furnished that club during the Summer.

Peter T. Donnelly, who died, Oct. 2, at Jersey City, was a well known amateur about twenty odd years ago, being a member of the Champion Club, of that city, where he was born forty-one years ago.



James G. Fogarty, although comparatively a young man, is already one of the best known professional players in the country. He was born Feb. 12, 1864, at San Francisco, Cal. He first played with an amateur club of his native city, of which Charles Sweeney, who was afterwards connected with the Providence Club of the National League, was the pitcher, Fogarty filling the positions of left field and third base. His first professional engagement was with the Haverly Club, the champion team of San Francisco, for which he covered third base for two years. In 1884 Manager Harry Wright, of the Philadelphia Club, of the National League, following the example of several other clubs, started a reserve nine. Among the young players engaged was Fogarty. He was signed as an infielder, but after Remsen had proved weak at the bat, Fogarty was given a trial in his place, at centre field, by the Philadelphia Club, and he soon developed into one of the best outfielders in the National League. He is a very fast runner, and can cover a remarkable amount of ground, while some of his catches are really of the phenomenal order. He is a good batsman, while as a base runner he has no superiors, and few equals. He can also play any infield position in good style, and is a very valuable man. He takes delight in the game, and plays for his club rather than for a record, taking desperate chances that some other players shirk in order to save their records. He accompanied the Chicago and All America combination, as one of the latter team, on their tour around the world, and made many friends while away. Fogarty played for the Philadelphia Club, of the National League, for six successive seasons, and with the Philadelphia Club, of the Players' League, during the season now at an end.

A new form of contract has been prepared by the officials of the National League. The important changes are summarized as follows by Secretary Rogers: "The reserve or eighteenth paragraph is entirely stricken out, and a new paragraph gives the club, in clear definite phraseology, the option to renew the contract for whatever number of years may be mutually agreed upon. The word 'reservation,' in case of disbandment, is also stricken out of the fifteenth paragraph, and an authority for the club to assign the contract inserted. The seventeenth paragraph, containing the ten days' clause, is materially altered to the advantage of the player, by inserting a reason for the notice, namely, a lack of skill or playing ability below the standard requisite in a National League club,' it limits the serving of the notice to the period of the playing season. A player under this form cannot be released between seasons without his consent. If during the season he be released while 'abroad' with the club, he shall be entitled to traveling expenses back to the home city. Another change in favor of the player is his right to appeal to the League directors against such fines and penalties that he may consider unjust, whilst always prescribed in the League constitution, is affirmatively expressed in the contract for the time. The clauses against dissipation and immorality are strengthened by adding that the player must 'absolutely refrain from late hours and from any excess and dissipation in eating, drinking, or otherwise,' and must 'keep himself in the best physical condition to play ball,' etc. While the reserve rule is no longer referred to in the contract, it does not follow that it will be stricken out of the national agreement. In all probability it or its equivalent will always be, as heretofore, preserved as a necessity for the perpetuation of the game, but it is not likely to figure in legal contracts or lawcourts hereafter."

It is announced that Horace B. Phillips, the former manager of the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, is back in the insane asylum at Merchantville, N. J., and that the chances are very much against his recovering his reason at any time in the future. It will be remembered Mr. Phillips was suddenly taken ill on Aug. 1, 1889, while in the East on business for his club, and was confined in the asylum for several months, and by careful attention of his physician so far recovered that he was pronounced cured. For a time it seemed as though a permanent cure had been effected, but recently it was noticed that he showed the same symptoms that marked his former sickness, and it was decided to again place him in the Merchantville asylum.

The reserve list of the Columbus Club, of the American Association, for 1891 has been sent to President Zach Phelps. The list includes M. M. Lehane, Charles Reilly, John O'Connor, John J. Doyle, Henry C. Gastright, John Easton, John L. Sneed, James McTammany and Ralph Johnson. Charles Crooks, Elton Chamberlain, Frank Knauss and Warren Wheelock have already signed contracts for next year.

The players of the Athletic Club team of 1889, most of whom are now with clubs of the Players' League, have expressed a willingness to play the Philadelphia team of the Players' League, the proceeds of which will be turned over to Manager Sharsig. The game will be played Oct. 14, at Brotherhood Park, Philadelphia.

The Chicago team, of the National League, and the Milwaukees, of the Western Association, played an exhibition game Oct. 1, at Milwaukee, Wis., when the home team won by a score of 8 to 1.

The Omaha and St. Paul teams, of the Western Association, played three games, Sept. 28, at Omaha, the former winning all of them. Seven innings were played in the second game and five innings only in the third.

Pitcher Luby, of the Chicago Club, of the National League, won his twentieth consecutive championship game Oct. 3.

James Tyng, formerly Harvard's greatest catcher, and now pitcher of the Staten Island Cricket Club, is sick with typhoid fever at his home at New Brighton, S. I.

Higgins, the second baseman of the St. Louis Club, of the American Association, was released Oct. 2.

The Brooklyns Win a Pennant for the Second Successive Season—The Chicagos Finish Second, Closely Followed by the Philadelphias, Cincinnatis and Bostons, while the New Yorks, Clevelands and Pittsburgs Bring Up the Rear.

The concluding contest between the Brooklyn and Cleveland Clubs took place Sept. 30, at Cleveland, the Brooklyns then scoring their seventeenth victory of the series. The lead alternated until the ninth inning, when the home team tied the score. O'Brien was given a base on balls in the tenth and worked his way home on two successive outs, thus making the winning run for Brooklyn. Caruthers was batted hard, but fine fielding saved many a hit off him.

Chicago vs. Boston.

The nineteenth game between these clubs was played, Sept. 30, at Chicago, the home team then scoring their eleventh victory of the series. Luby kept the Bostons from making more that six safe hits, four of which were bunched in the third and eighth innings, and yielded a like number of runs. Clarkson pitched well up to the seventh inning, when the visitors went to pieces, and five fielding errors, together with three hits, helped the home team to five runs and the victory. Two of the hits credited to Chicago were the result of a base runner being hit by the ball, Wilmot being the victim each time. Lowe deprived Foster of a home run by a great catch at centre field.

Pittsburg vs. Philadelphia.

The Pittsburgs scored an unexpected victory over the Philadelphias Sept. 30, at Pittsburg, it being their second of the series. Smith held the visitors down to five hits, but by a wild pitch game them their only run. Vickery was batted freely, especially in the fifth inning, when the home team bunched five safe hits and scored four earned runs. The Philadelphias played poorly in the field, Allen and Hamilton each having two costly errors.

Cincinnati vs. New York.

The twentieth and last game between these clubs was played Sept. 30, at Cincinnati, the home team then scoring their fourteenth victory of the series. Burkett held the Cincinnatis down to three scattering hits, but his wild pitching, in the first and third innings, gave them five unearned runs and the victory. Good batting by Denny and Whistler earned the two runs scored by the New Yorks. Both teams played brilliantly in the field.

Brooklyn vs. Pittsburg.

These clubs played Oct. 2, at Brooklyn, where the closing series had been transferred by mutual consent. Terry pitched the first six innings, and then gave way to Foutz, who was hit only once safely during the remainder of the contest. The Brooklyns batted Anderson freely in the first three innings, when they bunched six safe hits and secured seven runs and a winning lead. Clark and Terry led in batting.

The twentieth and last game was played Oct. 3, when the Brooklyns scored their eighteenth victory of the series. A drizzling rain fell during the contest and the grounds were in a muddy condition. The Pittsburgs played poorly, Berger making five wild throws to second base. Foutz and Day were both batted freely, but the hits off the former were more scattering. Foutz led in batting with four timely singles.

Chicago vs. New York.

These clubs contended Oct. 2, at Chicago, the home team winning by timely hitting. Sharrott was hit hard, while Hutchison held his opponents down in fine form. Foster made a home run in the fifth inning. At the conclusion of the seventh inning, the game was called on account of darkness. Rain fell at intervals during the contest, and the grounds were in poor condition.

The Chicagos won again Oct. 3, when the contest was limited to seven innings, on account of darkness. Honan, a local amateur, caught cleverly for the home team. Kittridge and Nagle being laid up with sore hands. Hornung complained of being sick in the first inning, and gave way to Murphy. Rusie was hit only three times safely, but his very wild pitching helped the Chicagos to two of their three runs. He sent no fewer than ten men to first on balls, and hit a batter when the bases were full, and thus forced in a run. Singles by Glasscock and Burkett gave the visitors their first run, and a muff by Carroll helped them to another run.

Cincinnati vs. Boston.

The seventeenth game between these clubs was played, Oct. 1, at Cincinnati, the home team then winning for the seventh time. The Bostons batted Mullane freely, but were unable to bunch their hits, except in the seventh inning, when a triple bagger by Getzein and three singles earned three runs and saved a shut out. Costly errors by McGarr and Smith, together with two safe hits in the eighth inning, gave the home team three runs and the victory. Getzein pitched effectively, but was poorly supported.

Pittsburg vs. Philadelphia.

These clubs had a close and exciting contest Sept. 30, at Pittsburg, the home team then winning by superior batting. Maul held the visitors down to six safe hits, which were widely scattered. Sanders was batted freely at the finish, the Pittsburgs bunching five safe hits and scoring four runs in the last two innings. Robinson and Shindle excelled in fielding on behalf of their respective teams.

The Pittsburgs beat the Philadelphias for the twelfth time, Oct. 1, when the nineteenth game of the series was played. The home team hit Husted hard in three innings, ten safe hits then yielding eight runs, seven of which were earned. Morris was also batted with ease, but the hits were well scattered, except in the sixth inning, when four helped the visitors to three earned runs. Fields and Mulvey led in batting, the former making two timely triples and two singles, and the latter a home run, triple and single.

Chicago vs. Brooklyn.

The nineteenth game between these clubs was played Sept. 30, at Chicago, the home team then securing their ninth victory of the series. The visitors started off with the lead, three hits in the first inning yielding a like number of runs. King kept the hits widely scattered, and the visitors made only one more run during the remainder of the contest. Hemming held the home team down to six safe hits, but his wild pitching proved fatal. The home team tied the score in the fifth inning, and won in the tenth, when three singles and two bases on balls brought in four runs. It was nearly dark when the contest was concluded.

Chicago vs. New York.

The New Yorks were shut out Oct. 2, at Chicago, the home team then scoring their eighth victory of the series. The home team failed to score up to the eighth inning, when errors by Shannon and Whitney, together with two bases on balls and two scratch singles, let in four unearned runs. The game was then called on account of rain and darkness. Baldwin and Crane pitched very effectively.

The New Yorks were shut out again Oct. 3 and the Chicagos then evened up the victories in the series. King kept the visitors down to seven safe hits, which were so widely scattered that none yielded runs. O'Day was batted hard in the first and sixth innings, when six safe hits helped the home team to six earned runs. Ryan and Duffy did most of the batting, the latter's three hits including a timely triple and a double bagger. Darling made a home run in the first inning, when two men were on bases.

The season closed Oct. 4, when only five innings were played before the game was called on account of rain and darkness. A drizzling rain fell and the crowd was the smallest of the year. The home team made two runs without a solitary safe hit in the first inning. The visitors made two runs off four hits in the third and fourth innings, and thus tied the score.

Pittsburg vs. Boston.

The thirteenth game between these clubs was played Oct. 3, at Pittsburg, having been prevented by rain on the preceding day. The Bostons were shut out, making only five singles off Staley, and these were scattered through as many innings. The Pittsburgs bunched five safe hits in the second and seventh innings, when they scored four runs. The Pittsburgs played without an error, while the Bostons fielded poorly.

Two games were played Oct. 4, when each club was credited with a victory. Daley was batted out of the box in the seventh inning of the first game. He then gave two bases on balls, and was hit for two singles and two triples, helping the home team to six runs and the victory. Nash pitched the last two innings. Beckley did the best batting for the Pittsburgs. Murphy was hurt in the seventh inning, and gave way to Sweet. The Bostons batted Maul freely, Richardson, by leading with four timely hits, sending in four runs.

The Brooklyns beat the Buffalos for the twelfth time Oct. 4, when the season closed. The Buffalos were shut out, making only four scattering singles off Sowders, who was splendidly supported. Stafford kept the hits well scattered, but a timely triple by Orr, and a home run by Sauer, earned three of the five runs credited to the Brooklyns. Ward was absent, and Van Haltren covered short stop. This victory secured the Brooklyns second place in the race.

The Season's Results.

The race for the pennant has been remarkably close and exciting throughout. The Bostons took the lead early in the season, and, with the exception of one day, held it to the end. The Brooklyn Club, which finished second, has done wonderfully well when all things are taken into consideration. Manager John M. Ward's players were gathered together at the last moment, after all the other teams were virtually made up, and the club made a wonderful showing. With another good pitcher or two the team would have come pretty nearly winning the pennant. The Chicago and New York teams, although doing very well, did not come up to the expectations of their friends. The New Yorks, however, finished a good third, although they were weak in the pitcher's position. The Chicagos also were handicapped all season by being weak at third base and sh rt stop. The Philadelphias, although very strong individually, were crippled in the early part of the season by poor management and internal dissensions, and failed to make the record expected of them, finally finishing fifth. The Pittsburgs and Clevelands did about as well as could be expected from the teams they had, and the latter had the additional disadvantage of being badly managed. The Buffalos, who were weak in the pitcher's position all season, finished last in the race. Thirty-five games remained unplayed at the close of the championship season, twelve of which were to be played by the Pittsburg Club, while only three games were required by the Chicago Club in order to finish its quota.

RUNNERS AT MORRIS PARK.

Light Fields at Westchester—Raceland's Victory Over Firenzi.

Wednesday, Oct. 1, was the opening day of the Autumn meeting of the New York Jockey Club, and, although the race card was by no means inviting, the lovely weather and the desire to see the contest for the Manhattan Handicap sufficed to attract to the course about six thousand persons, who were easily accommodated comfortably on the immense grand stand. The grounds were in capital order and the track good, but not fast. The stake race to which we refer was the only event on the programme that merited special attention, and it furnished a magnificent contest at the finish between Raceland and Firenzi, who dashed past the judges a head apart, with the former winning through the grand riding of Hamilton. Ike Murph

Racing in Kentucky.

The Fall meeting of the Latonia Jocky Club was continued on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 30, the weather being fine and the attendance good, as was the track. ### The Washington Meeting.

The running meeting of the Washington Jockey Club, which is to open on Tuesday, Oct. 21, and continue till the 29th inst., promises to furnish excellent sport to the residents of the Capitol and the region roundabout. Nearly $21,000 have been hung up, and a steeplechase will be among the attractions on alternate days, commencing on the first day, while the Hunters' Steeplechase, for gentlemen jockeys, will again be one of the special attractions. Joseph J. Burke will be the presiding judge for the meeting, and James Rowe will hold the flag. H. L. Ditmas has bought the betting privileges, and has sublet to twenty-five bookmakers. Several improvements that will be appreciated have been made since the Spring meeting. The west end of the grand stand has been enclosed with glass, so the occupants will be protected from the weather and have a clear view. A new stable is among the additions to the club property.

Racing in Australia.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Victoria Racing Club's programme for the season of 1890-91. The Spring meeting there commences on Nov. 1, continuing the 4th, 6th and 8th, while the Autumn meeting opens on Feb. 28, 1891, continuing March 3, 5, 7, and the annual grand steeplechase meeting will be held July 11, 18. There is also a special day's racing on Jan. 1 and another on May 25, in celebration of the Queen's birthday. This is the most powerful racing organization in Australia, and that the management is liberal is evident from the fact that they give away from the club's funds $220,000, no entrance fee being demanded, and no nomination or deduction of any kind made. All sweepstakes and forfeits go to the stake. The stakes this season will reach between $300,000 and $350,000. The Melbourne Cup, to be run in November, has $50,000 added and a trophy worth $750, and in all cases the second horse receives 20 per cent. and third 10 per cent. of the added money.

THE GREATEST TROTTING MATCH of the present season is that between Nancy Hanks, the four year old filly with a record of 2:14½ on a circular track, and Alabaster, a four year old stallion, who has a record of 2:15, made on the balloon shaped track at Independence, Ia. The match is for $1,000, usual conditions, and will be decided at the Queen City Driving Park, Cincinnati, O., on Oct. 11, the association adding a purse of $1,000. The contest should attract an immense crowd to the track, and, with all the conditions favorable for fast time, the race should be productive of a sensational performance.

IRA OWEN, the jockey who rode Hearst at the Brighton Beach track on Decoration Day, when that horse and two others fell, Hearst being killed and Owen receiving serious injuries, died at his residence in Saratoga, N. Y., last week.

Trotting at Trenton.

ATHLETIC.

New York Athletic Club.

Several thousand persons, a large proportion of whom were ladies, visited Travers Island on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4, when were held the Fall games of the New York Athletic Club. The day was delightful and the grounds were in capital condition, while the entry of a number of the best athletes in the East served to make the games highly interesting, as the contests as a rule could not be otherwise than close. The occasion was marked by the creating of one new record, that interveterate manufacturer of fresh figures, George Gray, putting the 12lb shot considerably further than anyone had ever done previously. Considerable surprise was depicted on the countenances of the spectators at the close of the hurdle race, when L. C. Lewis, from the City of Quakers, defeated both H. L. Williams and A. A. Jordan of the local club in handsome style. Summary:

One hundred yards run—R. C. Fisher, New York A. C., first, in 10⅝s.; F. W. Robinson, New York A. C., second; F. M. Reilly, Acorn A. C., third.

Obstacle race—Won by J. H. Bell, N. Y. A. C.; F. M. Hartshorn second, C. F. Migand third.

Sports on Sunday Afternoon.

The Pastime Athletic Club held another of their Sunday field meetings, confined to members, at their grounds at Sixty-sixth street and the East River, this city, on Oct. 5, and as the day was beautiful there was a big turnout of the lady and gentlemen friends of the "Indians." A series of events that afforded the fullest satisfaction to the spectators came off, resulting as shown in the summary:

One hundred and seventy-five yards run—Final heat: A. Werner first, in 20⅝s.; E. De Lam second, close up.

Quarter mile run, final heat—P. Kirsner first, in 58s.; W. J. Hughes second, the finish being exciting.

One mile walk—F. R. Simonson first, in 7m. 15⅘s.; William Burkhardt, scratch, second, in 7m.; W. McIntyre third.

Two mile run—H Lowenstein first, in 10m. 44s.; H. C. Johnson second, and A. Gillespie third.

Eight hundred and eighty yards run—C. Gries first, in 2m. 14s.; W. O'Reilly second, and Thomas Golden third.

Putting the 16lb shot—Charles Dimse first, 30ft. 10½in.; J. O'Reilly second, 30ft. 9¾in.; Charles J. McCarthy third, 38ft. 8in.

The events were all handicaps, but the officials refused to make known the allotments, so that the times and distances as here given are of no real value. As the object of refusing to make public this knowledge is obvious, it would seem to be a matter for the consideration of the central body, similar to the suppression of time in trotting and pacing races.

Youthful Christians Take the Field.

The lads belonging to the different branches of the Young Men's Christian Association held their annual field meeting on the grounds at One Hundred and Fiftieth Street and Walton Avenue on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4. The weather was highly favorable for outdoor sport, and the relatives and friends of the contestants gathered in large numbers to encourage and applaud their efforts, which were very creditable. Summary: 100yds. run—O. Kipp, Yonkers Branch, first, in 11¾s.; J. Van Loan, Harlem Branch, second, 75yds. run—J. Van Loan, Harlem Branch, first, in 9⅘s.; Frank Knight, Twenty third Street Branch, second. 440yds. bicycle race—Percy Powers, Harlem Branch, first, in 51¾s.; Frank Knight, Twenty-third Street Branch, second. Sack race—Harry Clelland, Twenty-third Street Branch, first; E. Yegerson, Harlem Branch, second. Potato race—E. Yegerson, Harlem Branch, first; Victor Schoeffer, Twenty-third Street Branch, second. Running high jump—Frank Knight, Twenty-third Street Branch, first, 4ft. 9½in.; W. Simpson, Harlem Branch, second, 4ft. 9in. During the afternoon E. W. Goff, of the Manhattan Athletic Club, made an attempt to beat the record for running hop, step and jump, but failed, his greatest performance being 44ft. 10in., which fell three-quarters of an inch short of the record held by J. Connolly, of Boston. Goff's performance, however, was a grand one.

TEAMS representing the University of Pennsylvania and Swarthmore College were opposed in a match at football at the latter place on Oct. 1, the visitors winning by two touchdowns and a goal.

THE ELEVENS of Harvard University and Exeter Academy played a match at football on Oct. 1, the former winning by a score of 41 to 0.

Among the Leather Kickers.

The football season is now fully under way throughout the country, and the promise of a very lively period for the handlers of the leather is bright. The following games were contested on Saturday, Oct. 4, with the result shown: Yale College team beat Crescent Club, 18 to 6. Washington Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.: Princeton beat a team made up of students at Franklin and Marshall Colleges, 38 to 10, at Princeton N. J.; Harvard College beat Dartmouth, 43 to 0, Cambridge, Mass.; Lafayette and Buchnell Colleges were opposed at Easton, Pa.; darkness coming on before either team had scored; Orange Athletic Club defeated Columbia College, 21 to 0, East Orange, N. PETER HEGELMAN won the thirty hour race (contestants traveling four hours nightly on five days and ten hours on Saturday) at Edward Dillon's Athletic Grounds, Fishkill on the Hudson, N. Y., ending Oct. 4. The scores were: Hegelman, 135 miles; Curley, 193; Craig, 190; Sullivan, 175; Golden 176. Financially the affair was a success, there being $375 to divide among the five winners, on the basis of 40 per cent to first, 25 per cent. to second, 15 per cent to third, 12 per cent. to fourth and 8 per cent. to fifth.

THE SOUTHERN ATHLETIC CLUB, of New Orleans, La., are desirous of securing the services of an instructor who is thoroughly competent to give instruction in indoor gymnasties and outdoor games. To such a person the club will give a liberal salary and a year's engagement. Further particulars can be obtained by calling at this office, or addressing the club, as directed in advertisement.

IT IS STATED that there is to be a six days' roller skating race at the Olympia, London, Eng., during the coming Winter, at which the leading professionals of this country and Albion are expected to compete. The prizes, it is said, will amount to about $5,000.

JAMES TASKER, of Queensland, 33⅓yds. start, was the winner of the Sir Joseph Banks Handicap, decided at Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 26. Thomas Elliott, England, 36½yds., was second; P. Doyle, aboriginal, 33⅓yds., third, and J. Harrison, mulatto, 31yds., fourth.

BERT SCHELLER defeated "Mons. La Garde" in a mixed wrestling contest, alleged to be for the receipts, at Harrisburg, Pa., night of Sept. 29. He won two straight falls, respectively catch as catch can and Graeco Roman.

BILLIARDS.

SAMUEL H. CHAPMAN, who had been prominently identified with billiards in this city for many years, died at his home on Tuesday, Sept. 30, of consumption. He was cordially liked by all with whom he came in contact, and during the years he was connected with Marron's, in Park Row, and other down town rooms his sunny disposition and even tempered manner made him hosts of friends. For some time past he kept a small billiard room on Fulton Street, just east of Broadway, but the location, or the fact that it was up a flight of stairs, caused the venture to prove an unprofitable one. He was never a strong man, and the germs of consumption were in his system. Latterly the disease had assumed an aggravated form, which prevented him from giving to his business the necessary attention. He leaves a widow, to whom he was devotedly attached. Funeral services were held at St. Mark's Church on Friday, Oct. 3. Mr. Chapman was fifty years of age.

THE BRUNSWICK-BALKE-COLLENDER Co. have issued a neat "Handbook of Rules of Billiards and Pool," of 132 pages, containing the rules of all the different games of billiards and pool, as practiced by the great players of today. The rules have been most carefully revised, and have been approved by all the great billiard and pool experts. Straight rail billiards, the balk line game, fifteen ball, pyramid and continuous pool especially are now most complete in detail. The book also contains valuable instructions regarding the care of billiard tables, etc., as well as instructions for the purchasing of billiard materials, so as to secure the best value for their money.

THE series of billiard and pool tournaments for handsome prizes which were recently inaugurated in Catholic Library Hall, Savannah, Ga., were brought to a close Oct. 2. R. J. McHugh, who won six games and lost but one in the billiard tournament of the first class, won first prize, a gold medal and a handsome scarf pin, and J. R. Blum second prize, a meerschaum cigar holder. In the second class billiard tournament Gus Lesbiteau won first prize, a gold scarf pin, and J. S. Moriarty second prize, a meerschaum pipe. In the pool tournament C. C. Dixon won first prize, a set of gold studs, and J. H. Strauss took second prize, a silver matchbox.

THE NATIONAL BILLIARD ASSOCIATION held its annual meeting at Philadelphia, Pa., on Oct. 5. The following officers were elected: C. Bird, president; Frank Hassur, A. F. Troesher and Captain John Miller, vice presidents; James Palmer, treasurer; H. J. Bergman, secretary; Frederick Seeberger, assistant secretary; William V. Barry, financial secretary. The collections of dues amounted to $110, the largest amount ever received, five new members were proposed, and after the meeting the Knights of the Cue were tendered a banquet.

THE PROFESSIONALS and room keepers of Pennsylvania are organizing a State tournament, which will be played in the lower room of the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, Mr. Kingsley, the owner of the room, having generously offered the use of the room and donated $100 in cash to help swell the prize fund. Room keeper Greevy, of Philadelphia, has subscribed $50 for the same purpose. The style of game most favored is fourteen inch balk line billiards. Dodds, of Pittsburg, has signified his intention of entering.

AN AMATEUR POOL TOURNAMENT will be played in Wendler's Little Puck billiard and pool room, Mount Vernon, N. Y., commencing Oct. 15. There will be a preliminary series of games, with six contestants, the winners of first, second and third place to enter the final tournament. Several fine prizes will be given to the successful players.

SLOSSON AND SCHAEFER will probably play their fourteen inch balk line match for the world's championship challenge cup in Chickering Hall the third week in November.

"THE CASTAWAYS."

I have had to refuse dates in Chicago and Western theatres, as my time is booked East and South. The above play has strong title, which is a draw and is an unqualified success. I am willing to lease the play reasonably, for the West, to an energetic manager or leading man (who can play Sailor), together with the use of lithographs, pictorials, music, etc. Some capital, although small, is required. The play has never been produced to a losing house. Apply to undersigned, as we never book through agents. HARRY LINDLEY,

"The Castaways," Cambridge, Maryland.

---

"THE CODE,"

A 3 ACT COMEDY, WRITTEN BY HARRY LINDLEY. A pronounced success on its first presentation. Honored with two recalls. No specialties.

"A true picture of ante bellum times, vivid Southern characters, an unexaggerated negro who is original and true to nature, a plot which is interesting and dialogue that is often brilliant. We congratulate Mr. Lindley not only on his play, but also on his assumption of the negro slave, which is perfection of comedy."—EASTON DEMOCRAT.

THE CONTROVERSY OVER LINCOLN J. CARTER'S

"THE FAST MAIL,"

Grows out of a spirit of greed and dense ignorance upon the part of J. N. Rentfrow, who sought early in the season to have Mr. Carter buy the right to use the words "FAST MAIL" as a title to his five act drama.

THE FACTS

Are as follow:

1. Rentfrow claims to have obtained a copyright February 22, 1889, for a three act musical farce, under the title of "FAST MAIL."

2. On Oct. 2, 1889, Lincoln J. Carter, of Chicago, obtained a copyright, as author and proprietor, of a five act drama, under the title of "THE FAST MAIL."

Rentfrow's Musical Comedy is on the Shelf, but

"THE FAST MAIL,"

belonging to L. J. Carter, is one of the most pronounced artistic and financial successes ever given to the American public. The wild excitement it produced in the early part of the season in Chicago to a week of packed houses at Havlin's Theatre, and the unqualified praise it received at the hands of the press of that city seems to have attracted the attention of a Mr. Rentfrow, from some town in Michigan, who immediately, through a series of letters, endeavored to have Mr. Carter purchase his

WORTHLESS TITLE

To a 3 act musical farce, not one line of which had ever been seen or used by Mr. Carter.

In a letter, July 24, 1890, Rentfrow says: "I know that my title can be paid for. * * * If it is worth anything to you, I am willing to negotiate." It is and was worth nothing to Mr. Carter, and Rentfrow was so informed. Not a dollar. Mr. Carter has always been willing to contribute liberally to needy and worthy members of the profession, but has always declined being forced to give up one cent.

PERSONS OR PAPERS

GUILTY OF DAMAGING THE BUSINESS OF

Carter's "The Fast Mail,"

BY SLANDERING ITS TITLE, WILL BE HELD RESPONSIBLE.

In this connection we wish to suggest that Mr. L. J. Carter's copyright is in conformity with the U. S. Statutes, and his right to the production of "THE FAST MAIL," 5-ACT DRAMA, absolute. Mr. Rentfrow, and all persons or papers through whose utterances or publications Mr. Carter's exclusive right to produce the above drama is denied, or his right to the above title, when used in connection therewith, is assailed, are again notified that they will be held strictly accountable for all resulting damages.

The law of

against property, real or personal, is well and widely settled. Having taken the full advice of my attorneys in Chicago and Indianapolis on the questions involved, we know our rights, and have the pluck and money to maintain them.

AMUSEMENT MANAGERS

over the country, we are confident, will give little heed to the absurd claims of this Michigander. The slightest inquiry on their part will quickly settle the point in issue against him. Any manager who plays "The Fast Mail" of L. J. Carter, will do so to packed houses, and be protected in his rights to the last dollar.

THE COLD LAW

Governing the case needs only to be stated:

The Librarian of Congress, A. R. Spofford, July 19, 1890, wrote Mr. Carter as follows:

"In reply to your communication of the 16th, I have to advise you that by the general tenor of judicial decisions, a copyright protects the SUBSTANCE of the publication entered, IN CONNECTION with its title, and NOT THE MERE WORDS OF THE TITLE. Most titles have been used MANY TIMES, and CANNOT be made EXCLUSIVE property by COPYRIGHT OR OTHERWISE. "Fast Mail." is a general title to which NO ONE could have EXCLUSIVE right. SEVERAL different plays by that name are protected by copyright."

It appears, also, that on Aug. 14, 1890, Librarian Spofford wrote to Mr. Rentfrow, in reply to some inquiry (showing, by the way, contrary to his Clipper ad. that "he doesn't know what he is doing"), stating plainly that: "Copyright protects the SUBSTANCE of the publication entered IN CONNECTION WITH ITS TITLE and not the REAL WORDS of the TITLE ITSELF." Yet our poor deluded friend pays for space to publish this conclusive argument against his pretended rights.

We are not using the words, "FAST MAIL" IN CONNECTION WITH the SUBSTANCE of his production (a 3-Act Musical Farce). We never read or heard of his comedy.

It is the substance with or without the title that is protected. The mere title without the substance is not protected. We could not lawfully use Rentfrow's musical comedy, even if we were to do so under some entirely different title. But he has no more exclusive right to the title "Fast Mail," which has been used by newspapers and authors ever since the introduction of steam as a motor power, than Strauss would have to the "Wedding March," or D. Appleton & Co. to the "Holy Bible," though substance matter is now, and for years has been, produced and protected under these very titles.

The gentleman from Michigan will hardly contend he was the first to use the phrase: "Fast Mail." Perhaps in connection with his musical comedy, yes; without it, no.

Will he say that the law forbids the newspaper man or the author from using "Fast Mail" as a title to any article, book or drama, because he, after an application of those words for 50 years, has used them to designate some musical farce? It would seem he has.

He can say: I am protected against your using "FAST MAIL," or any other title, in connection with my musical comedy. But that is all.

L. J. Carter is using "The Fast Mail" as the title of and IN CONNECTION WITH (not Rentfrow's unknown musical farce) but his own five act drama—conceded to be the greatest attraction of its kind now on the road.

PRESENTED BY

A POWERFUL CAST.

There is little wonder that Carter's "THE FAST MAIL," with its ten special sets, including The Race Up the Mississippi, Engine Room of the St. Louis, Startling Explosion and Instantaneous Transformation behind a Curtain of Rising Smoke, Realistic Railroad Scene, with a Full Sized Practical Engine, with Fourteen Freight Cars, should play to "standing room only," or that it should attract the envy of "barn stormers."

A HOWLING SUCCESS.

"Not since the days of the Old Bowery," says THE CHICAGO INTER-OCEAN, "has there been such a howling success. The American end of Suspension Bridge and a full front view of Niagara Falls by Moonlight, produced with real water, with the awful roar, boiling foam, rising mist, etc., as seen from the centre of Suspension Bridge, and the realistic railroad scenes, are triumphs of scenic art never excelled in this country."

Deeming the foregoing rather full explanation necessary to protect managers, theatrical publications and myself, against impositions.

I am, respectfully,

LINCOLN J. CARTER,

Care LEON O. BAILEY, Attorney at Law, Indianapolis, Ind.
